Predawn Fire Routs 75; Trio Rescued

4-Story Park Towers Blazes; No Injuries

By DAVID DIETZ

About 75 persons were forced into the predawn chill and fog in San Rafael today when fire broke out in a four-story apartment house. (See photos, other story, page 30.)

No one was injured in the blaze at 108 Professional Center Parkway, although firemen rescued three persons and a dog trapped on fourth floor balconies.

Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci said crews battled for two hours to bring the fire under control. Flames were confined to the top floor and attic of the stucco and wood dwelling, known as Park Towers, but Marcucci said the rest of the U-shaped building suffered heavy water damage.

Total damage was estimated at $50,000. Cause of the fire was unknown.

The blaze broke out shortly before 5 a.m. in the apartment of Joyce Coniglio, 26. She aroused other tenants on the fourth floor, pulled an alarm and ran to the third floor to notify the managers, Robert and Madge Patrick.

"I just woke up," said Miss Coniglio. "It was all burning around the heater. I just rang on doors."

Miss Coniglio arrived at the Patrick apartment clad in a bathrobe and "yelling 'fire,'" said the Patrick's son, Michael. "She said something blew up in her living room. It was probably an exploding window."

Firemen, who arrived to find flames bursting from fourth floor windows, brought the trapped people down ladders.

"I guess the fire got out in the corridor and they couldn't make it," said Fire Marshall Kenneth Mazza, one of the rescurers. "They were very calm. In fact, one of the women said only, 'It's getting a little smoky up here.'"

Many of the routed tenants huddled next door in the Northgate Convalescent Hospital, where nurses fed them coffee.

Marcucci, who led a complement of 25 firemen and five pieces of equipment in the fire-fighting effort, said the blaze "had a real good start on us. Flames were just billowing out the windows."

Marcucci said the battle was made difficult by the fire's entry into the attic, which the chief described as little more than a crawl space.

"It was inaccessible to us. From the roof, we had to pick a point where we thought the fire had reached. But every time we tried to find an opening, the fire had gone past us."

A pumper unit had to climb a dirt road leading behind the building to relay water through the rear of the structure.

Marcucci said firemen conducted an inspection of the building in October following a minor blaze in a first-floor apartment.

"We said at that time that if there was a fire here," said Marcucci, pointing to the rear of the apartment house, "we'd have nothing but trouble because of the inaccessibility of fire lines.

"And sure enough, we had a fire right here where we wouldn't have wanted it."

The five-year-old structure, with a total of 40 units, is owned by Bellinger Realty of Castro Valley.

'Little Summit' Talks Near End

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) —President Nixon and British Prime Minister Edward Heath neared the end of their "little summit" talks today after apparently reaching an early accord on mutual economic and monetary issues.

The two allied leaders conferred for two hours and 50 minutes before breaking for lunch. There was no definite word whether they would have another private meeting before Nixon's afternoon departure for Washington.

The full U.S. and British delegations, however, arranged for a final meeting together before ending the two-day conference.

The signal that economic matters were disposed of came when Treasury Secretary John B. Connally flew back to Washington while the Nixon-Heath morning meeting was still in progress.

A British spokesman said the two leaders "continued their review of the world situation and dealt among other areas with Europe and the Middle East."

The President and the Prime Minister reached general agreement in their discussions that the historic Anglo-American "special relationship" that has existed since World War II is a thing of the past. But both agreed a new partnership must continue in the future.

The two, after spending eight hours together Monday, acknowledged that the post-war ties must loosen when Britain enters the Common Market next year with a new set of European partners.

Their two-day meeting, with no "structured agenda," was the fourth in a series of sessions Nixon has scheduled with major allied leaders in preparation for his trips to China and the Soviet Union early in 1972.

At a black tie dinner hosted by Heath on the Royal Navy guided missile destroyer, HMS Glamorgan, Nixon noted in his formal toast that the relationship "which meant so much in 1953, in 1957, and in 1971 (at previous U.S.-British summits in Bermuda) —" is not the same.

"The fact that it is not the

New Storm Is Expected By Tonight

The cold gray stuff that has been blanketing the Bay Area since the weekend was due to drift away today in the face of a storm expected to bring rain by tonight.

Weather bureau officials described the weather of the past few days as a "typical tule fog," dense and cold and originating in California's interior valleys. The fog occures each winter during dry spells between rains, a spokesman said.

The "winter drought," as he termed it, was due to end today with the chances of rain predicted as 80 per cent tonight and tomorrow.

The cold weather was due to continue, however. Although temperatures were above freezing in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, the penetrating fog made the weather seem colder than it actually was.

Although the fog has resembled smog, the Bay Area Pollution Control District said the pollution level was below standards established by the Air Resources Board and the federal government.

Five Nabbed For Giant Bank Haul

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI)—Five persons have been arrested and most of the money recovered in the $1,129,000 robbery of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, police said today.

Police said two men and one woman were arrested in a motel room in Toronto and two women were picked up in a raid on a private home in Mississauga, a suburb of Toronto, shortly before the motel raid. More arrests would be made, police said.

Windsor police chief Gordon Preston said about $1 million was recovered in a trunk, a little smaller than an army footlocker.

The money, about half in U.S. currency and half in Canadian currency, was taken from the Windsor bank Saturday morning, just a few minutes after a Ryan armored truck delivered it from the Windsor Raceway.

Preston said the suspects were arrested "as a result of information given to Toronto intelligence and relayed to us yesterday morning."

He said $11,000 was confiscated by Toronto police at the private home in Mississauga, which is near the Toronto airport.

Two other men, believed to be in Windsor, were being sought. Preston said he expects their arrests later today. Other persons may have been involved, he said.

The two women arrested in Mississauga were identified as Edna Helen Lefebre, 45, and Jessie Delorme. The others were arrested at the Holiday Inn.

Insp. Bernard Simmonds identified the three as George Ivan Davidson, 43, William Ferguson, 48, and Edna Simpson, 56. All were Canadian citizens. They were to appear later today in court to face as yet undetermined charges.

The robbery occurred as 12 bank employes were working in a counting room, totaling Friday night's receipts from the Windsor Raceway. Of the $1,129,000 stolen, $297,000 was from the race track.

The robbers were in the bank

Subsidized Housing Rules Eased

The San Rafael City Council last night dropped a residency requirement for the Marin County Housing Authority's subsidized housing program in the city but adopted a priority system recommending preference to residents and senior citizens. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 3.)

San Rafael was the last remaining city in the county to scuttle the residency requirement, which has been declared unconstitutional.

Under the resolution adopted last night, preference is to be given first to persons who have lived in San Rafael two years or more, then one year and then persons who currently live in the city. Senior citizens also are to receive priority for the city's 50 subsidized housing units, for which there is a long waiting list.

At the suggestion of Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, the council removed a phrase from the last category of persons eligible for the housing. This group was changed from persons residing elsewhere in Marin to, simply, elsewhere.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, who said he did not want the old favored over the young and poor said "we have substituted something worse" for the original residency requirement, voted against the resolution.

Plans To Clean up The Air Under Fire

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans by Bay Area and state smog officials that are supposed to clean up air pollution were described yesterday as so vague as to be meaningless and so "pitifully inadequate" as to warrant immediate federal intervention.

Speaker after speaker tore into the "implementation plan" — required by the federal government from all states next month — in a hearing on it by the state Air Resources Board.

Strong criticism also came from a spokesman for the federal Environmental Protection Agency, which can accept the plan, reject it and demand it be rewritten, or intervene and write a statewide plan itself.

The last hearing on the proposed plan will be held on Jan. 7 in San Diego, only three days before a final 400-page version is due for completion so the public can view it before adoption at the state board's Jan. 19 meeting in Sacramento.

Because of the tight deadlines, little rewriting of the plan is expected, despite criticism. Several of the critics, however, said they will take their complaints to the federal agency.

Much of the strongest criticism was aimed at the segment of the plan drafted by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Critics, many of them calling for a halt to urban growth, included the Sierra Club, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, Hastings Environmental Law Society, Clean Air

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Empire-Builder Roy Disney Dead

BURBANK (UPI) — Roy O. Disney, whose behind-the-scenes business acumen built an entertainment empire on his brother Walt's talent, died yesterday at 78.

Disney

Roy Disney inherited the Disney entertainment empire, and was its chief moving spirit, following the death of Walt Disney in 1966. His title was chairman of the board and chief executive officer, but his real function, as he saw it, was keeper of the wholesome spirit that Disney created.

He pushed through creation of the $300 million Disney World Development in Orlando, Fla., and devoted himself to keeping the business financially successful.

He did not try to fill his creative brother's shoes.

In the early years Walt drew the pictures and Roy worked the cameras and kept the books. They parlayed an original $790 stake into a multi-million-dollar business.

Whale As Pet Food

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has reversed itself and given the green light for use in pet food of 2 million pounds of sperm whale meat previously embargoed because of hazardous mercury content.

Kalcan Foods, a California firm, imported the whale meat a year and a half ago from Japan and put it on ice.

The FDA tested it, found mercury content above the level deemed hazardous and seized it.

Last week a special assistant to the FDA said the whale meat could be used after all, but said the finished pet food could contain no more than 5 per cent whale meat.

Chevalier Health

PARIS (UPI) — The health of ailing French entertainer Maurice Chevalier, 83, is "worrisome," Necker Hospital said today.

A medical bulletin issued by doctors treating Chevalier for a kidney ailment was couched in more pessimistic tones than previous communiques issued twice daily since his hospitalization eight days ago.

The bulletin said "the use of an artificial kidney took place as scheduled and was carried out without incident. The condition of the patient is stationary and worrisome."

Berrigan Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Imprisoned antiwar priest Daniel Berrigan, suffering from an ulcer, a kidney ailment and a hernia, has been granted a parole hearing Jan. 26 because of his failing health.

But the U.S. Parole Board Monday rejected a parole bid by Capitol Hill influence peddler Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, who is serving a one-to-three year sentence for tax evasion, larceny and fraud.

Berrigan, 51, is serving a three-year sentence for destruction of government property in connection with a raid on the Catonsville, Md., Selective Service offices.

Baker, 43, former Lyndon B. Johnson protege, was making his first bid for parole.

The board also denied parole to Anthony D. Angelis, 56, the "salad oil king" from New Jersey who figured in a multi-million dollar fraud and Guy B. Gillette, 26, serving two years for violating Selective Service laws.

Doctors Wasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government auditors said today many doctors, dentists and nurses in the military are being wasted on administrative duties despite a critical national shortage of medical professionals.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) said there would be more time for patient care if administrative, command and other duties were assigned to qualified nonprofessional personnel.

In a report to Congress, the GAO said a defense department study found that revised work practices and use of dental assistants could increase productivity of dentists by more than 40 per cent.

Stalin's Birthday

MOSCOW (UPI) — Half a dozen frozen red roses and a bunch of cellophane-wrapped chrysanthemums lay on the snow-covered Red Square grave of one-time Soviet leader Josef V. Stalin today — his 92nd birthday.

Pravda made no mention of it.

Crowds who passed the grave at the foot of the Kremlin wall showed no sign they were aware of the occasion.

The early settlers of America made pumpkin soup, stew, pudding, bread, and griddle cakes as well as pie.

Surcharge Lifted, But No Refunds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Treasury Department says the 10 per cent surcharge on imports, which increased the cost of foreign cars and many other products used by Americans, would be lifted immediately but there would be no refunds.

A Treasury spokesman said the surcharge would not have to be paid on any goods in transit to the United States, clearing customs or being removed from bonded warehouses for delivery. If the surcharge had already been paid on those products, however, it will not be refunded, he said.

That meant it might be several days or weeks, even months, before prices of any foreign goods are lowered to reflect removal of the surcharge.

Under President Nixon's new economic program, importers were allowed to pass on the cost of the surcharge to customers in the form of price increases.

Nixon announced removal of the surcharge shortly after a meeting with British Prime Minister Edward Heath in Bermuda Monday.

Pub Owner Is Latest Victim Of Downtown Belfast Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Bombs ripped through downtown Belfast today for the second straight day, underscoring extremist vows to reduce the capital to "a pile of rubble by Christmas," the army said.

An army spokesman said publican Jack Lavery was killed when a blast demolished his pub, Lavery's Bar, on the Lisburn Road in the city center. The three-story building suffered structural damage.

Another explosion tore the front out of a bicycle shop on King Street, several blocks away, the spokesman said. No injuries were reported.

Lavery's death brought to 205 the number of persons killed in two years of fighting in Northern Ireland involving the province's Roman Catholic minority, Protestant majority, the British Army and the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

The IRA has vowed to reduce Belfast to "a pile of rubble" by Christmas in revenge for alleged brutality by British troops questioning persons detained as suspected IRA members.

Monday 13 explosions, seven in the downtown shopping area, scattered Christmas shoppers and damaged buildings. Seven persons were injured, none seriously, the army said.

The spokesman said army demolition experts removed another bomb today from a gas station in Durham Street, just outside the downtown area.

Earlier, British soldiers wounded a civilian who refused to halt when soldiers challenged him on Stanfield Street, in the capital's market area.

Late Monday a machine gunner firing on British troops in Belfast shot and killed a young Roman Catholic woman.

In Dublin the city's Roman Catholic archbishop, John C. McQuaid, appealed for a fiveday Christmas truce in Northern Ireland. But Lt. Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, commander of British forces in the province, rejected the suggestion.

The army said Margaret McCorry, 20, was killed when a sniper opened fire on British troops from a house in the Catholic Crumlin Road area of Belfast as dusk fell. An army spokesman said Miss McCorry was standing at a bus stop when she was shot in the head by the sniper's bullet. The troops did not return the fire, the army said.

Miss McCorry was the 204th person killed in violence-related incidents in Northern Ireland in the past three years.

A bomb attack on a hardware store was foiled by a woman shopkeeper who grabbed the explosive device shortly after gunmen planted it in the shop and hurled it at their getaway car. The bomb did not explode.

"They blew up the back of the shop previously and I was determined they would not get the front," said the woman, who asked not to be identified. "I did it all in a fit of bad temper. I did not think of the consequences at the time."

The bomb attacks followed a vow by the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) earlier this month that its men would reduce downtown Belfast to a "pile of rubble" by Christmas in their campaign to cripple the province's economy.

Red Commandos Raid Secret Laotian Base

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese commandos early today raided the secret Laotian base of CIA-supported guerrilla leader Gen. Vang Pao despite massive American air strikes carried out against increased resistance by North Vietnamese Migs and missiles.

Gen. Thongphan Knocksy, the official Laotian military spokesman, said in Vientiane that the military situation in Laos was deteriorating rapidly since the strategic Plain of Jars fell to the North Vietnamese on Monday.

The situation also was serious in Cambodia where a string of Communist successes have theateed the capitol of Phnom Penh and brought a grave political crisis that threatens the government of Premier Lon Nol.

U.S. military sources said stepped up Communist MIG and missile warfare had downed five U.S. planes over the weekend and two Laotian Air Force T28s, most of them over the Plain of Jars or near the border of North Vietnam and Laos.

U.S. sources said the American planes had hit antiaircraft and missile sites in Laos and in North Vietnam near the Quang Long Mig base, believed to be the base of Russian-built MIGS that downed one and possibly three of the American planes.

The Plain of Jars about 120 miles north of the Laotian capital of Vientiane controls almost every important highway in Laos and has been fought over for the past two decades with each side winning it from time to time.

Long Veng, the secret base of Gen. Vang Pao, is in the mountains about 20 miles below the Plain. Knocksy said 20 North Vietnamese commandos slipped into the base today, damaged a parked aircraft and burned three military barracks and a truck. Knocksy said three attackers and three defenders were killed and nine guards wounded.

Communists also fired two 122 millimeter rockets into Long Cheng Monday and although they misfired, they spoiled the New Year celebrations of the Meo hill tribesmen who are led by Vang Pao and financed by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Humboldt Atom Plant Now 'Safe'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. says it has taken corrective measures at its nuclear power plant on Humboldt Bay because of safety regulation violations pointed out by the Atomic Energy Commission.

A PG&E spokesman also said Monday that the two violations pointed out by the AEC did not endanger anyone and that procedures have been corrected to put the plant in compliance with regulations.

The violations came to public attention in a Wall Street Journal article concerning safety complaints made by Robert J. Rowen Jr., a plant technician who was fired by PG&E.

Rowen was discharged after writing the AEC saying that there were 49 violations at the Humboldt County plant.

One violation that PG&E said was corrected involved permitting an employe into an area in which the monitoring was inadequate for determining the possibility of radioactive dust.

The other was the failure to give two departing employes a report on their exposure to radiation.

135-Unit Apartment Plan Hit

The Marin County Planning Commission rejected a developer's proposal yesterday to place 135 new apartment and townhouse units on a Tamalpais Valley site previously designated for 45 units.

In tossing the Villa Marin Development proposal out, the commission voted 5-to-1 to limit development on the site to a maximum of 90 units. Commissioner John F. West, voting against the motion, maintained that figure was still too high.

As outlined by architect Norman T. Gilroy of Mill Valley, the Villa Marin proposal would have placed a combination of townhouse and apartment units on about two acres of the 7.5-acre site located on Tennessee Valley Road near Shoreline Highway.

The remaining area — made up mostly of a forested hillside — would be left as open space, he said.

Gilroy argued that the site — adjacent to another apartment development — has been designated for high density residential use since 1958 and that a great need exists for such housing in Marin.

However, his arguments failed to sway the commission which advised him to revise his plans to show no more than 90 units.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

CIRCLE V RANCH — Set Jan. 24 for a public hearing on rezoning the 400-acre Circle V Ranch west of Fairfax. The property is currently zoned for a planned development of about 70 homes but the landowner wants the density reduced so he can sell in 20-acre chunks.

LAND DIVISION — Upheld the appeal of William M. Nelson to split his property at the intersection of Shoreline Highway and Dolan Avenue in Tamalpais Valley. The division was denied by the zoning administrator last month since the new lots would be substandard in size. In overruling that decision, the commission noted the two new lots would be consistent in size with neighboring parcels.

VENETIA COVE — Approved rezoning 10.6 acres in Santa Venetia from suburban agricultural zoning to planned development zoning at seven units per acre. The site, proposed for the Venetia Cove townhouse development, is located on North San Pedro Road near Lowell Avenue. Venetia Cove developers had requested rezoning to nine and a half units per acre.

FLEA MARKET — Rejected a staff recommendation that the People's Community Market in Marin City be forced to build a fence around the market as a means of controlling access and parking.

Hauling Firm Operations Near End

Drastically reduced hauling operations by Toby's Trucking, Inc., said to have been the largest employer at Point Reyes Station, may find the trucking company obliged to close or move out of West Marin, its owner has announced.

The cutback, affecting most of the firm's 26 employees, has been caused by the loss of its bulk milk trucking for the Point Reyes Co-op Milk Producers, whose dairy products are sold under the Challenge label.

Last month a majority of co-op members voted to merge with the North Bay Milk Producers in Petaluma, which also supplies products to Challenge Foods, and have formed their own trucking system.

Toby Giacomini, who has operated Toby's Trucking for the past 30 years, said he plans to remain at Point Reyes Station through next summer and keep his hay business, but has to let about 22 drivers go. Most of these now have other jobs, some hauling for the North Bay Milk Producers group, Giacomini said. He now has much of his trucking equipment for sale.

Fifteen of the 45-member Point Reyes Co-op who did not join the North Bay Milk Producers are reported to have signed up with other milk processing organizations.

Giacomini said that if his hay operations and other trucking business do not pay off he probably will move out of point Reyes Station. He said he has not yet decided on a location.

Average Cost Of Toys Put At $32

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The average American child gets $32 worth of Christmas toys, according to a study by Crocker Bank.

The study released Monday noted that the California child fared a little better from Santa, getting $38 worth of toys.

Swift Nod On Bolinas Lagoon Plan

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday endorsed the controversial Bolinas Lagoon plan which designates the picturesque West Marin inlet as an ecological preserve with allowance for recreational viewpoints and visitor use.

Approval of the plan came swiftly and almost without comment before an audience of one woman who was attending the meeting on another matter.

During earlier hearings before the parks and recreation commission, West Marin residents complained bitterly that provision in the plan for recreational facilities around the lagoon would be ill-advised.

Their objections were rejected by the park and recreation commission as a selfish move to keep people away from their communities.

As proposed, the plan calls for observation points, nature interpretation centers, hiking trails and picnic and parking areas. It is required by the state which turned over trusteeship of the lagoon to the county a few years ago.

The plan must be adopted by the board of supervisors and turned over to the state within a year.

In endorsing the plan, the planning commission commended the park and recreation department as being "sensitive" to both the environmental and recreational aspects of the lagoon.

Vacant San Rafael Library Slot Filled

The San Rafael City Council last night appointed Richard H. Bradshaw III, 32, of 412 Jewell Street, to fill a vacancy on the city's library board. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said the council made the appointment from among five applicants because councilmen thought it would be desirable to add a professionally trained person to the board.

Bradshaw is a librarian at Tamalpais High School and holds a master's degree in library science from San Jose State College.

Other applicants were Robert E. Howard, Robert M. Mertz, Neil D. Schwed and Jeanne M. Wasp.

The San Rafael City Council also:

PROPERTY — Approved a resolution stating intention to accept a 70-foot strip of land between Dominic's restaurant and property owned by automobile dealer Hercules Viglienzone on Francisco Boulevard for a 40-foot strip on the other side of Viglienzone's property over the objections of the owners of the restaurant. Councilmen John A. Miskimen and Harry A. Barbier voted no.

CLAIMS — Postponed to the Jan. 3 meeting adoption of a procedure for processing claims presented to the city.

DRAINAGE — Agreed to call for bids Jan. 20 for drainage projects and improvements to Jacoby Street in East San Rafael Drainage Assessment District No. 1 estimated at $2,516,236 and set a public hearing on the matter for Feb. 14.

SEWAGE — Called for bids on phase two of the sanitary sewer reconstruction project for Jan. 14. The cost of the work in the Montecito and Dominican areas is $610,000 to $625,000.

SIGNS — Approved stop signs for the intersections of Docie and Simms streets, Mission Avenue and Embarcadero Way and Embarcadero Way and Marina Court.

PLAN — Agreed to send a letter from the planning commission which was critical of portions of the countywide preliminary plan to the City-County Planning Council of Marin. Councilmen Miskimen and Lawrence Mulryan voted no.

Longest Ride On BART Train Set At $1.25

OAKLAND (UPI)—The longest ride on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system will cost $1.25 under a fare structure approved by the BART Board of Directors.

The fares, approved Monday, are based on a scheme of three cents a mile up to 25 miles and one cent a mile after that.

It will cost $1.25 to ride from Fremont to Daly City.

Some typical fares include: anywhere within San Francisco, 30 cents; across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco, 55 cents.

The board eliminated a five-cent surcharge on trips to Daly City. The surcharge was recommended by the transportation committee because Daly City was outside the three-county system.

It also cut five cents off the fare from Concord and Union City to San Francisco, making the ride $1.20.

The directors elected George R. Silliman prefident. Silliman had been a director for 15 years.

Bandit Never Finished Count

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — "I'm gonna give you three to open that door," the bandit said Monday as he waived his gun at Stanley Sawicki, a teller at the Coraopolis branch of the Pittsburgh National Bank.

"One."

Sawicki said it was impossible for him to open the bank vault.

"Two."

Sawicki, trembling, insisted he couldn't get the vault open.

And then came the voice of the second of the three bandits: "We gotta go."

Unable to get the vault open, the bandits settled for cash behind the tellers' counter and fled with an undetermined amount of money, according to PNB spokesman C. W. Abel.

Coordinating Committee, Santa Clara County Medical Society, and Brisbane Citizens for Civic Progress.

Speaking for the Sierra Club's bay chapter, Peter H. Zars said the Bay Area segment of the plan was "nothing more than a warmed-up, leftover rehash of past history with future hopes."

He scored a host of details, including the placement of equipment to measure pollution. The measurements should be "down where people see, breathe and live pollution, not on the well-ventilated room of the Department of Public Health (in Berkeley), or 98 feet above Ellis Street (atop the district's headquarters in San Francisco)," he said.

It was Zars who suggested federal intervention because of the district's prediction that federal air quality standards will not be entirely met until 1985 — 10 years after the federal deadline.

He and other speakers urged that the plan be redrafted to include a permit system to govern all new air polluting facilities, including airport runways, freeways, bridges and industries.

Pollution, Zars declared, "will not cure itself; it will require specific economic surgery. Rampant technological growth is poisoning our cities, our countryside, to the detriment of us all."

Dr. Donald E. Watson of the Clean Air Coordinating Committee of Livermore, said the state board's plan should have provided for tough controls on industrial growth to control pollution, but instead chose "to pussyfoot around." He said the board "looks ridiculous by presuming to lecture EPA on various predictions of economic chaos which might accompany growth limitation.

"These threats are vague, ominous and frightening — but entirely unsubstantiated. In fact, I believe we are feeling the clumsy hand of the Chamber of Commerce here," he told the board.

Kathleen Becker of San Rafael, speaking for the League of Women Voters ofthe Bay Area, also scored the plan for being too vague."

Dr. Rodney Beard, a member of the state board's technical advisory committee, urged that the state train 10,000 citizens as a "pollution guard" to police enforcement controls by anti-pollution agencies. Speaking for the Santa Clara County Medical Society, he objected that the plan ignored this need for public education.

William Crowell of the Hastings Environmental Law Society, said that the plan had ignored the EPA's requirement that it include mandatory controls to curtail pollution when contamination reached dangerous levels.

He also criticized emission controls on 1972 cars, predicting most citizens will fail to follow the necessary 29 maintenance steps every 6,000 miles.

The statewide portion of the plan was targeted for special criticism by Richard S. Gaines of the Sierra Club's Loma Prieta chapter. The plan conceded that federal carbon monoxide standards will be met by the 1975 deadline in all but four of the state's air basins, he noted, but he added that more than 90 per cent of the state's population lives in these four basins.

The spokesman for the federal agency, Terry Stumph, testified that the Bay Area segment of the plan failed to make sense as part of an effective state plan. He said a "significant omission" in the Bay Area segment was its failure to consider controls to meet the 1975 deadline on oxidants.

Two spokesmen for industry assured the board of their support for the plan, but warned that tougher air pollution controls could hurt them and, in turn, the economy. Robert G. Trevorrow, vice chairman of Lone Star Industries, operator of 26 cement, concrete and aggregate plants in the state, urged "the maximum forbearance in the severity of the regulations, as well as the time allotted to industry for compliance."

Clifford Trammel, environmental director of the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association, claimed that congestion and pollution were reduced by construction of shopping and industrial centers by spreading out the work force and traffic. He also said that freeway construction reduces air pollution by allowing traffic to flow freely.

Trammel urged that contractors be given several years to comply with smog controls on off-highway equipment, and that it be required only on new equipment.

The state board, with only two of its 14 members present, commented rarely on testimony.

Bhutto Names Aide, Lays Down The Law

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Zulfiquar Ali Bhutto today appointed Nurul Amin as Vice President of West Pakistan and then, as chief martial law administrator, Bhutto issued a series of directives including one freeing students, laborers and peasants jailed by the military government.

In a speech to the nation Monday night Bhutto asked the Pakistani people to give him time to restore the country to democracy. He also pledged to regain East Pakistan, lost in the 14-day-war with India, but Indian sources in New Delhi said this was for Pakistani consumption.

Bhutto's directives as broadcast by Radio Pakistan included:

Sentences against students, laborers and peasants passed byythe military courts will stand remitted.

All pending death sentences handed down by ordinary criminal courts will be commuted to transportation (exile) for life.

Whipping sentences will not be administered.

Government officials will tighten measures against smuggling, hoarding and profiteering.

Forbade travel abroad by Pakistanis except students going abroad for education and government officials.

Ordered government ministers and other officials to fly tourist class when they travel abroad.

UPI correspondent Frederick H. Marks, reporting from Islamabad, said the government was virtually at a standstill waiting for the result of Bhutto's deliberations and consultations with political and military leaders.

Monday Bhutto fired seven generals including former President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan. Yahya Khan was ousted shortly after he had turned over the government to Bhutto.

He named Gen: Gul Hassan commander in chief of the armed forces and said the general would act as defense minister and foreign minister. Today he appointed former Foreign Minister Azia Ahmad as Secretary General of the Foreign Ministry.

Bhutto announced he would shortly visit the war-affected areas to meet the Jawans (soldiers) and civilian population. Today he met the governors of the Punjab, Sind and Northwest frontier province and addressed a meeting of police, security and intelligence leaders.

Former President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan had announced early in December that Amin would become president and Bhutto Vice President and Foreign Minister, but the loss of East Pakistan— now called the Peoples Republic of Bangla Desh—changed that.

Warsaw Radio indicated meanwhile that Warsaw might join India in recognizing the Soviet-supported Bangla Desh government. A broadcast heard in London said Bashir-ul-Alam had raised the flag of Bangla Desh in Warsaw, said he would serve as ambassador and that he would work for formal recognition. Warsaw Radio played the Bangla Desh anthem.

Political observers said there was little chance that Bhutto's selection of Amin would aid his East Pakistani cause. Amin is a political enemy of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader held on treason charges in West Pakistan, and has little political following in the East Wing.

Radio Pakistan also announced that Aziz Ahmad, former secretary of foreign affairs in the Pakistan government, has been appointed secretary general of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Pakistan Radio said the central government had forbidden all Pakistani except students and government officials to leave the country as of today. And on instructions of Bhutto, all government ministers, governors and officials were ordered to travel tourist class when on official duty.

Bhutto, in a speech Monday night, promised to reunite Pakistan and warned India not to become too complacent about same does not mean that it is still not very necessary, and perhaps even more important than it was.

"We live in a world where there are dangers on the scene today that no one could foresee 25 years ago, at the end of World War II, or even 10 years ago in 1961," Nixon said.

He said that while Heath seeks to explore new opportunities in Europe, "we in our own policies, seek to explore those opportunities for building a structure of peace, by these significant journeys to nations with which we have now and will continue to have very profound differences of philosophy."

In his toast, Heath also referred to the new relationship.

"A healthy relationship can withstand change," Heath said. "And as the date of Britain's entry into the European community approaches there will indeed be some changes in our relations.

"I see no cause for alarm or dismay in this. "In many fields our traditional ties will remain unchanged. We have always made it clear that we believe that a united Europe should maintain the closest possible links with the United States based on the vast area of common interests which we shall continue to share."

President Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler described Nixon as "very pleased" with his long hours of talks with Heath.

Sanity Hearing Ordered In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A sanity hearing was ordered yesterday in Central Sonoma Municipal Court for Carolyn Parsigian, 56, accused of assailing Msgr. Clyde Tillman of Petaluma.

Mrs. Parsigian was shceduled to appear today in Sonoma County Superior Court to begin the hearing. She was arrested Thursday at her Santa Rosa apartment after allegedly stabbing the priest in the back with a knife in front of St. Rose's Church, Santa Rosa.

Rev. Tillman, pastor of St. Vincent De Paul Church, was reported in fair condition and responding well to treatment at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital. He is not permitted visitors or telephone calls.

Santa Rosa police said Mrs. Parsigian had written letters complaining of harassment by the Catholic Church.

Jail Term For Burglary

Victor Royal Van Wagner, 28, of San Francisco yesterday drew a suspended state prison term in Marin Superior Court for burglary.

Judge E. Warren McGuire placed Van Wagner on supervised probation for 18 months and ordered him to serve nine months in Marin County Jail.

Van Wagner admitted the Nov. 5 burglary of a home on Sonora Avenue in Corte Madera.

about 20 minutes and had been gone about 90 minutes before the first police arrived at the scene.

Holiday Inn manager Erwin Rieck said police arrived at the motel less than 45 minutes after one of the two men registered at 7:34 p.m. Monday in a single-occupance $19-a-day room. Rieck was unaware the man was later joined by a second man and woman.

Rieck said the raid by "eight or 10" policemen was carried out so quietly that none of the motel's other guests was aware of what was happening.

Police have described the robbery Saturday as "beautifully planned" and thoroughly "professional." Staged in 10 minutes, the gang then gave themselves a 90-minute head-start on police by locking bank employes in a washroom.

Yule-Decorated Home Wins $25

The Leo R. Harning residence at 128 Peacock Drive has won first place in the Peacock Gap Homeowners' Association Christmas lighting contest, Mary Carpou, association secretary, announced today.

The home's decorations were done in red and white, including red packages and a white snow-like cover, Mrs. Carpou said.

Harning will receive $25 for the first prize.

Second prize of $15 was won by the residence of Mack B. Johnson at 11 Riviera Place, and $10 third prize was awarded to the Herman A. Pieczentkowski residence at 118 Fernwood Drive, Mrs. Carpou said.

First Under 21 Jurists Selected

RENO (UPI) —Two 18-year-old Reno students are the first under-21 voters in Nevada selected for a jury list.

Robert Soma, data processing systems analyst, said 3,013 names were run through the Washoe County computer Monday and named jurists were Cynthia Warwick and John Alexander Erwin.

"I'm sure these are the first voters under 21 to be selected for jury duty in Nevada," said Soma. "They could be the first ones in the United States, but we have no idea if anybody else uses the same selection techniques."

Sanitary Panel Picks President

Eugene Ostaggi last night was named president and treasurer of the Ross Valley Sanitary District as the district's board reorganized.

Peter A. Ribar, who had been president and secretary, was named treasurer, a post that had been held by Ostaggi.

The board last night also approved an agreement to lease storage space at the district's plant site to San Rafael Equipment Co. of San Rafael in exchange for the district's use of the company's hydroflusher, according to district manager Ralph C. Noah.

A Big Jump In Riders Of Buses

The Golden Gate Bridge District's new local bus system in Marin carried 3,099 passengers yesterday — a jump of nearly 2,100 from last week's opening day 1,000.

The district's transportation developer, Jerome Kuykendall, said the Dec. 13 passenger count of 1,000 was about double the average daily patronage reported by Marin Transit Systems Inc. after a year of operation.

OBITUARIES

W. Marin Ex-Rancher D. McClure

Funeral for David H. McClure, former West Marin rancher who died in Placerville Sunday, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Chapel of the Pines in Placerville.

McClure, 63, died in an El Dorado County hospital following a short illness.

He was born on a ranch on property now occupied by Radio Corporation of America in Point Reyes and lived in West Marin until five years ago. McClure's mother, the late Margaret McClure, donated McClure's Beach to the county about 25 years ago.

McClure and his brother, the late John McClure, operated the Pierce Ranch, a 1,200-acre ranch where they had a herd of 1,000 cattle. That ranch was sold to Land Investors Research, a holding company, in 1966, and is now the subject of a condemnation suit by the government which seeks it for the Point Reyes National Seashore.

After the sale of the ranch, McClure moved to Diamond Springs, a suburb of Placerville in El Dorado County. He worked as a bailiff in the El Dorado County courthouse.

McClure was a member of the Mother Lode Lions Club and American Legion Post 119. He was a veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Grace E. McClure of Diamond Springs; two sons, David and Dennis McClure of Diamond Springs; two stepsons, James Oswalt of Novato and Kenneth Eckstein of Placerville; a stepdaughter, Shirley Falconer of Mill Valley; two brothers, William McClure of Corte Madera and James McClure of Point Reyes, and three sisters, Elizabeth Small and Helen Driscoll of San Francisco and Annie Kilpatrick of Livermore.

Burial will be in Westwood Hills Memorial Park in Placerville.

The family prefers contributions to a favorite charity.

ESTHER McDANIEL

Esther McDaniel, 42, a substitute teacher in Marin and Sonoma counties, died yesterday at a local hospital after becoming ill at her home at 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma.

The Sonoma County Coroner's office said death was apparently due to natural causes. Her husband, Frederick McDaniel, a Western Union employee in San Rafael, said his wife went to bed early and that he could not awaken her at 11 p.m.

Mrs. McDaniel was born in Los Angeles and reared in Stockton where she graduated from University of the Pacific. She had been a teacher for 19 years and had lived in Petaluma for two years.

Mrs. McDaniel was a member of the American Association of University Women.

She is also survived by two brothers, Albert Molina of Lagunitas and Hubert Mokina of Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

VIRGINIA KENT

Private Mass of the Resurrection for Virginia Kent, retired administrator of the San Francisco Unified School District, was offered yesterday at St. Raphael's Catholic Church, San Rafael.

She died, after a long illness, Friday at her home at 146 Ridgewood Drive, San Rafael.

She was born and reared in San Francisco, living there until moving to San Rafael seven years ago. For 43 years she had been a teacher and administrator with the San Francisco schools, retiring a year and a half ago. She was 64.

She is survived by her mother, Camille A. Kent; a sister, Tennessee Kent and a brother, Walter C. Kent, all of San Rafael.

Entombment was at Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

C. L. GALLATIN

Requiem Mass for Charles L. Gallatin of Corte Madera will be celebrated at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Joseph's Catholic Church at 1415 Howard Street, San Francisco.

Gallatin died Sunday in San Francisco.

He was born and reared in San Francisco. He moved to Marin County 24 years ago and lived at 127 Palm Avenue. He had worked as a fireman for the Treasure Island Fire Department for 25 years before retiring.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara Gallatin; his mother, Sarah Gallatin; a stepson, William McCarthy; four sisters, Lorraine Powers, Grace Gallatin, Rhoda Perry and Ramona Gallatin, and two brothers, Edward Gallatin and Willis Gallatin.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Gantner-Felder-Kenny Chapel at 1965 Market Street, San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

A. W. SCHMITZ

Anthony W. Schmitz of Tiburon died yesterday in a local hospital after collapsing at work, according to the Marin County coroner's office, which said death was apparently from natural causes. He was 46.

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, he came to California and Marin County 10 years ago and resided at 45K Redhill Circle. He was a sail maker for the Peter M. Sutter Co., of Sausalito and a veteran of World War II.

Schmitz is survived by his wife, Helen A. Schmitz of Tiburon, three sisters and six brothers, all of Ohio.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley. Burial will be in Willamette National Cemetery, Portland, Ore.

NELL YOUENS

Funeral for Nell B. Youens, of Corte Madera, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary in San Rafael.

Mrs. Youens, 87, died Sunday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in San Francisco. For 30 years before her retirement, she was a secretary for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. She lived in Marin County for 20 years, making her home at 711 Meadowsweet Drive before moving into a rest home two years ago.

She is survived by a son, Arthur B. Youens of Belfair, Wash.; a brother, Winfield E. Brace of Oakland and two grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

R. S. BAUM

Private funeral for Robert S. Baum of Sausalito, who was killed Saturday in a hunting accident in Merced County, has been held in Los Altos.

Baum, 49, died after being accidentally shot by a fellow duck hunter in a Los Banos duck blind.

He was an executive with Crown Zellerbach Co. in San Francisco, where he had worked for 25 years.

Baum was born in San Jose. His home in Sausalito was at 84 Crescent Avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Sally, of the family address; two sons, Roberts E. and Bradley S. Baum, both of Los Altos, and his mother, Mrs. Burt Baum of San Carlos.

The family prefers donations to the Cancer Society.

Council Pay Is Eyed Once Again

The Mill Valley City Council revived the old issue of salaries for councilmen last night as it held first reading on an ordinance to pay councilmen $150 per month.

Second reading and possible adoption of the ordinance will be held at 8 p.m. Jan. 3 at city hall.

Councilman Robert H. Andresen said he favors salaries but couldn't support them because voters rejected them in 1968.

The other four councilmen, however, approved the stipend, which could not take effect until after next April's municipal elections.

Jean S. Barnard presented a list showing five of Marin's 11 cities pay no council salaries, but that three of the five — Ross, Belvedere and Larkspur — meet only once a month.

Of the councils meeting twice per month, only Mill Valley and Tiburon pay no salaries and Tiburon is on the verge of considering them, she said.

Jerome C. Hauke said he opposed salaries when he was elected in 1968 but had changed his mind since.

The Mill Valley City Council Also:

PARKING — Referred to staff a proposal that parking be banned on downtown streets in the early morning hours to allow for street sweeping.

DRAIN — Awarded a $3,741 contract to W. K. McLellan Co. for storm drain work on Willow Lane.

APPOINTMENTS — Heard Mayor George E. Wickham appoint Ivan S. Poutiatine and John DeBecker to the planning commission for confirmation by the council at the next meeting. The council confirmed the appointment of William D. Devlin to the commission.

MILLER AVENUE — Agreed to send a letter to the Marin County Board of supervisors reiterating the city's opposition to widening of Shoreline Highway instead of extending Miller Avenue near Dolan's corners.

STEPS — Voted up to $400 to repair 12 steps on Madrona Lane.

CITY HALL — Put off until Jan. 3 discussion of expanding city hall or leasing new office space for the building and planning department.

PARKING — Established a no-parking zone in front of the Miller Avenue landslide and eliminated a no-parking zone in front of the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant nearby.

APPEAL — Endorsed Normand B. Black's appeal of the Marin County Planning Commission's approval of a Howard Johnson's office building at Shoreline Highway and Highwav 101.

HOUSE — Accepted a planning commission recommendation that a title search be initiated to determine the ownership of a street right-of-way on Janes Street. The existence of a house built partly on the right-of-way at 55 Janes Street was discovered recently by the city, and the planning commission has recommended either selling or giving the land to homeowner L.E. Robinson.

DELAY — Extended to April 30, 1972, deadline for payment of $10,000 by developer Peter C. Haywood for improvements to Sycamore Avenue adjacent to Haywood's condominium development at Sycamore and LaGoma Street. The original deadline was Dec. 31.

ANNEX — Asked the Marin County Local Agency Formation commission not to allow Tiburon to proceed with annexation of a portion of the Strawberry Peninsula until Mill Valley has had a chance to try annexation in the area.

Mill Valley Opposes Sewer District Plan

Consolidation of Southern Marin sanitary districts under an independent sanitation district, approved last week by representatives of eight sanitary agencies, was opposed last night by the Mill Valley City Council.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke, Mill Valley's representative to the Advisory Board for Improvement District A, asked the council to reaffirm its support of consolidation under direction of the Marin Municipal Water District.

Hauke was one of three representatives to vote Wednesday against consolidation under a sanitation district, which would be governed by city councilmen and sanitary district board members in Southern Marin.

However, Hauke and representatives of the Alto and Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary districts were outvoted, 5-3.

Hauke said he thought Mill Valley "stands a reasonable chance of defeating it (the sanitation district'" before the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission, which must approve the consolidation.

Other agencies involved in the proposed consolidation are the Alto, Almonte, Richardson Bay and Tiburon sanitary districts and the Tamalpais Community Services District.

Reed School Surplus Sold

Bargain hunters paid a total of $524 Saturday for surplus desks, chairs and tables sold as obsolete by the Reed School District.

Business manager Charles L. Condrotte said the furniture, priced at $1 per item, was bought mainly by parents who wanted to give their children a place to study at home. A few private schools also purchased some of the furniture, he said.

Approximately two-thirds of the items were sold, and Condrotte said he is looking for buyers for the remainder of the furniture.

The district also gave away several hundred obsolete textbooks, most of them to private schools, Condrotte said.

Money-Giving 'Should Increase'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The economic situation will be brighter in 1972 than this year, a leading money raiser said Monday.

David S. Ketchum, president of Ketchum, Inc., one of the nation's largest fund raising firms, said in a statement:

"Considering philanthropy as a significant economic indicator, there is evidence that the American economy is really on the move. Total giving in 1972 should break the $20 billion mark for the first time in history."

He said that in 1971, there was "considerably more strength" for gift-supported institutions than many had anticipated."

Building Fee Claim Is Booted

The Mill Valley City Council last night quickly denied a claim for $100,000 by the Marin Builders Exchange over allegedly excessive building fees.

The claim maintans the city collected approximately $150,000 in building inspection fees between December 1968 and December 1971 but spent only about $50,000 to run the building department.

The builders allege that state law prohibits use of building inspection fees for general fund purposes but this is in fact being done by Mill Valley.

Last night's denial of the claim was mostly a formality, since the council in July failed to act on a similar request for a refund.

A suit on behalf of the Kendall Construction Co. of Mill Valley has been filed in Marin Superior Court. That suit, which seeks to recover the alleged excess fees, still is under consideration by the court.

12,000 Accidents

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)— There were 12,704 road accidents in Malaysia during 1970 in which 579 people died and 7,034 were injured. Registered vehicles on the road totaled 699,294 by December, 1970.

Plan Launched To Change Dog Controls

A Mill Valley resident last night served notice on the city council that he is working to bring the city's dog control ordinances to a vote of the people.

David Marcus, of 500 Throckmorton Avenue, said he will attempt to collect the signatures of 975 voters, 15 per cent of the city's registered voters in order to put the measure on the ballot.

The council, in effect, told Marcus he could take any action he wants but the laws will not be repealed.

If Marcus succeeds in obtaining the signatures of 15 per cent of the city's voters, said City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, the city would have to call a special election. If 10 per cent of the voters sign the petition, the election would be held at the next regular city election.

Councilman Robert H. Andresen said he was of the opinion that the city's residents want stricter enforcement of the ordinances governing dogs, including the one requiring dogs to be on leases in downtown and park areas.

Oil Spill Cases Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Superior Court Judge Ira A. Brown Jr. Monday dismissed two lawsuits seeking $20 million from Standard Oil of California for the big Jan. 18 oil spill caused by the collision of two tankers.

The suits said that Standard Oil should pay persons who aided in cleaning up the beaches and rescuing wildlife after the collision which caused an 840,000-gallon spill in San Francisco Bay.

Brown said the class actions were impractical and each person who had a claim should sue Standard Oil individually.

Attorney Gary Near said he would appeal the decision. He filed a $12 million action. The other lawyer, Helen Culiner, said it was not known whether she would appeal. Her suit amounted to $6 million.

FINALLY — A CHRISTMAS DINNER

Reg Smith, 42, will have his first Christmas dinner in 39 years. Smith, of Brisbane, Australia, swallowed caustic soda when he was 3 and until recently had lived on liquids. Three months ago an operation was performed which enables him to eat and drink normally. But the unaccustomed exercise make his jaws ache, he says.

2-Member Panel Picked For Merger Discussions

The Ross School District board last night set up a two-member committee to plan a joint meeting of Ross and Kentfield trustees to discuss merger of the districts.

According to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson, the board named trustees Dr. Gwynn Thomson and Sally Ann Rakow to arrange the date along with a like committee of Kentfield trustees.

Anderson said merger talks have been held intermittently for four years, but nothing has come of them.

The Ross School District Board Also:

NEW TEACHER — Hired Jewell K. Dodge as a temporary teacher for the rest of the school year for $5,601 to teach a third second grade class formed to handle a larger than normal number of second graders.

REPRESENTATIVE — Appointed trustee Thomson to represent the trustees at meetings of the Marin County School Boards Association.

EMERGENCY SERVICES — Approved the countywide disaster agency and its plans to meet emergencies.

SOCCER — Heard a report that the Ross Soccer League will be expanded in the spring to include a girls' league.

MATH — Commended seventh and eighth grade students David Ballard, Jake Eschen, Don Seitz, Seth Miller and John Norby for placing first in a mathematics competition against peers from throughout the Tamalpais High School District.

AUDIT — Accepted the 1970-71 audit prepared by Sleezer and Eckhoff.

SUPERINTENDENT — Renewed Anderson's contract for two years at the same salary, $20,000 a year.

PRINCIPAL — Gave the Ross School principal, William M. Cooper, a two-year contract at the same pay, $18,000 a year.

BOWLING — Heard a report that a first period girls' physical education class will be allowed to take bowling for physical education.

MUSIC REVIEW

Overdue Debut By Young Vocalists

In its long overdue Marin County debut, Madi Bacon's San Francisco Boys Chorus presented an extraordinary program yesterday afternoon to an audience of about 200 people in the Fine Arts Building Theater at College of Marin.

This chorus of 40 boys between the ages of 8 and 13 is one of the Bay Area's most competent vocal groups.

Yesterday's performance was a beautiful demonstration of the breadth of their abilities. The two-hour program ranged from a 13th Century motet to contemporary folk songs — all sung without a sheet of music.

From the outset communication between director Bacon and the choir was phenomenal. Clarity of tone, trueness of pitch, and balance of ensemble were the tools of expression. Miss Bacon rarely conducted in the formal sense, but would make occasional spontaneous motions to bring out expressive passages. A subtle hand motion turned into a delicate lilt in a phrase, while a clenched fist turned into a powerful vocal forte.

Along with the choral work, several of the boys performed solos of an amazing professional quality.

Soprano Gary Levy has an exceptionally beautiful, clear and strong voice with an interpretative maturity that defies his years. With eloquent sotto voce passages, extended crescendos, and careful rhythmic phrasing, his performance of Mozart's "Laudate Dominum" was truly magnificent.

Pianist David Sigal, who also accompanied the chorus, performed two solo works by Chopin and Dohnanyi. Chopin's Scherzo in B Flat Minor is an acrobatic work that requires considerable ability just to get through. Sigal went far beyond. He plays cleanly and makes a lot out of dynamic contrasts. His rubatos were always subtle and consistent. On the large scale, it was a remarkably mature performance.

Brad Brennan and Lenny Kelm, with their guitars, assisted the eleven Ensemble Singers as they created individual holiday moods — "Doing their own thing" as Miss Bacon put it.

Folk songs like "Go tell it on the mountain", and "When the spirits sing", nearly had the audience involved in a very exciting sing-in.

In its 24 years of existence, the San Francisco Boys Chorus has graduated over 1,000 boys, who besides their voice training have had extensive instruction in theory, sight singing, harmony, and composition along with conducting, languages, diction, and acting.

It is a remarkable group. I hope we will be honored by more return engagements. R.N.

Marriage Dissolved

Mary Jo Murray, former chairman of the North Marin Chapter of the Junior Social Service Auxiliary, and her husband William W. Murray have dissolved their marriage of 17 years.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court approved the dissolution last Friday on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Mrs. Murray, who lives at 419 Calle De La Mesa, Ignacio, said they were married in Reno in 1954, and separated on May 15 this year. They have two minor children, aged 16 and 10.

He must pay $150 per month support for each child.

Revolvers Stolen From Hall Of Justice Office

Two revolvers were stolen from desks in the Marin County District Attorney's office during the weekend, but one was found discarded near the Civic Center Lagoon, still fully loaded.

Lt. Ronald Retana, who heads the Civic Center Security Division, said there was no evidence of a break-in, and he has no idea who took the weapons or how. The only ones who have access to the hall of Justice offices after hours are the maintenance crew and security patrols.

Joshua W. Thomas and J. Michael Anthony, deputies in the district attorney's office, came to work yesterday morning and found their .38 - caliber snub-nosed revolvers missing from their desks. They were not sure whether they locked the desks before leaving Friday night.

In the meantime, one of the revolvers, Anthony's, had been picked up at the south end of the lagoon near the water fountains by a security patrolman, Larry Woodall, Sunday afternoon.

Congress repeals automobile excise tax.

Tax savings up to $278 on a new Chevrolet.

We can't take credit for the savings listed here. Thank Uncle Sam for that. But we're elated that a new Chevrolet is now priced lower. It makes our better way to see the U.S.A. even better.

All extra cost equipment is priced lower, too. For example, if you equip a new Impala with Four-Season Air Conditioning, a popular vinyl roof cover and power windows, the price will be reduced an additional $33.80. What it all adds up to is an even better value when you buy a new Chevrolet, making it easier for you to get what we both want: your new Chevrolet to be the best car you ever owned.

The tax savings listed below are for the models shown with all standard equipment based on Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices in effect December 1, 1971.

Many dealers still have a good selection of 1972 cars at the lower 1971 prices on which the Excise Tax savings are slightly less.

Seven Hurt In Series Of Accidents

A 25-year-old Napa woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital after a one-car accident on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

Six other persons were injured on Marin highways yesterday and today, according to the California Highway patrol.

Trudy L. Simning, of Napa, suffered a back injury and a cut forehead at 4:40 p.m. when the car in which she was riding skidded off Shoreline one-half mile south of Panoramic Highway and into an embankment, according to the patrol.

BUMP ON HEAD

Officers said the driver, Thomas W. Suellau, 29, also of Napa, told them he would seek treatment for a bump on the head.

Lisa C. Duggan, 17, of Upland, San Bernardino County, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital for observation of a head injury.

The patrol said she was a passenger in a car which struck a utility pole at the Bridgeway entrance to northbound Highway 101, north of Sausalito at 9:50 p.m. yesterday.

The driver of the car, Robert C. Bynog, 22, of Chino, San Bernardino County, also was taken to the hospital, the patrol said, but officials there had no record of him.

In a third accident, William D. Kelly Jr., 54, of 54 San Marino Drive, San Rafael, suffered cuts and bruises in a three-car pileup on Highway 101 in San Rafael.

The highway patrol said Kelly was northbound in heavy traffic at 5:40 p.m. when his car struck the rear of a vehicle driven by Norman S. Halsey III, 52, of San Francisco, pushing it into the rear of a car operated by Viola M. Swanson, 46, of 4 Laurelwood Court, San Rafael.

IS TREATED

Kelly was treated at Marin General Hospital.

William T. Brannigan, 24, of 1311 Kaehler Street, Novato, was injured at 11 p.m. yesterday in a one-car accident on Bolinas Road south of Fairfax, the patrol said.

Officers said his car left the road, plunged down an embankment and hit a tree. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Philip J. Perry, 23, of San Bruno, was treated at the hospital for a bruised chest following a one-car crash on Highway 101 at 1:35 a.m. today.

Officers said his northbound car hit the center divider one-half mile south of the Highway 37 interchange in Novato.

LBJ's Family To Gather For Tree Ceremony

STONEWALL, Tex. (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, his wife Lady Bird, and their children and grandchildren will gather tonight for a tree-lighting ceremony and a session of Christmas carol singing.

Officials said one of Johnson's four grandchildren will turn on the lights of the official Christmas tree at the LBJ State Park, near the LBJ ranchhouse —probably with an assist from grandfather.

The children and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Nugent of Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robb of Charlottesville, Va., will stay for a caroling program and a social hour afterward at the park's visitor center.

Paul Taybi To Receive Eagle Award

Paul S. Taybi, 14-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Hooshang Taybi of 120 Gelder Drive, Tiburon, will receive the Eagle Award at a court of honor at 8 p.m. next Monday at the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon.

Paul, a freshman at Redwood High School, has been a Boy Scout for three years, serving as patrol leader, quartermaster and now as assistant senior patrol leader.

For his Eagle Scout service project he prepared a display showing techniques used in the X-ray examination of children. The exhibit is now on display in the waiting room of the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Oakland.

Paul's interests include camping, hiking, coin collecting, skiing and tropical fish. He is a member of Community Congregational Church, which sponsors his Boy Scout troop, Troop 148.

Rollin M. Warner Jr., former Scoutmaster for the troop, will present the award to Paul.

Black School Faces Cutback

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—Shaw University, one of the leading black schools in the nation, is expected to announce soon a 50 per cent cutback in faculty and staff.

The disclosure came Sunday in a Raleigh News and Observer interview with Shaw president, Dr. Archie Hargraves, who said the school is facing a financial crisis.

Hargraves said Shaw was operating $1 million in the red and was in the worst financial shape in its 106-year-old history.

To regain sound footing, the school will dismiss about 100 of its 200 faculty and staff members before July 1. Last summer 20 per cent were cut.

Drug Charges Draw Guilty Pleas By Pair

Clayton Stephen Anderson, 22, and Kenneth Wilkes Bright, 22, both of San Rafael, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to drug charges. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Jan. 24 for sentencing.

Anderson admitted selling amphetamines and marijuana, and Bright admitted selling narcotics and pot. They were arrested last June 4 by narcotics agents who said an undercover man had bought marijuana, amphetamine and other drugs from the pair in April and May.

New Sewer Plan To Be Studied

A recommendation by eight Southern Marin sanitary districts that a new agency be created to take over waste treatment in Southeast Marin will be considered by the Marin Municipal Water District board at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district office in Corte Madera.

At their meeting last Wednesday, the sanitary district representatives, members of an advisory committee to Improvement District A, agreed an agency other than the water district should be formed to build and maintain treatment facilities in Southern Marin.

For the past several months a controversy has raged over whether future treatment should be provided by a sanitary district (governed by elected directors), a sanitation district (governed by represenatatives of the present sanitary districts and cities in Southern Marin) or by the water district itself.

Improvement district A was established by the water district a year ago to study consolidation of the eight sewage agencies and is empowered by work only up to the point of a bond issue to finance consolidation.

The advisory committee has also asked the district to dissolve Improvement District A and form Improvement District B, which would hold the bond election and build and maintain collection and treatment facilities until a consolidated sanitary agency comes into being.

In other business the water district board will act on an application from the Ross Grammar School for a land use permit to allow the school to use a portion of an old district pumphouse for an ecology study center.

Grand Theft Pleas Are Guilty

Roy Chester Johnson, 27, and Anthony Paul Bell, 18, of San Francisco, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of grand theft. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Jan. 17 for sentencing the pair.

They were arrested Sept. 16 and charged with burglarizing the home of Herman A. Vanderkamp on Ridgecrest Road in Kent Woodlands. After negotiations with the district attorney, the burglary charge was amended to grand theft.

Club Given Time To Solve Parking

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night gave the Lion's Share, a rock nightclub, 60 days to present solutions to inadequate parking.

The commission also said it would use that period to look at the effectiveness of the club's new approach to late night vandalism on neighboring side streets.

The club at 60 Red Hill Avenue, has drawn neighbors' complaints that its music is too loud, its patrons sometimes loud and partying on nearby doorsteps and that parking spaces for residents' guests are preempted.

After a lengthy discussion last night, the commission settled on a requirement of "about 50 parking spaces" to be provided on and off-street by the Lion's Share.

The club's maximum capacity is 150 and often on weekends it is filled, according to the club's owner Michael Considine.

Attorney Hadden Roth, representing Considine, said he would negotiate with Atlantic-Richfield for use of the nearby ARCO service station's 25 extra parking spaces.

Roth questioned the "50 or spaces" that the commission had come up with at a previous meeting, because Roth said the ordinance only requires about 29 — one per 100 feet of the club's 2,900 feet.

Commissioner Phillip Heinecke said because of the number of people attending, an exception should be made.

Roth also told the commission and two Forbes Street residents that a security guard, hired by the Lion's Share, would patrol the area on weekends perhaps alleviating vandalism in the area.

Ellen Abernathy of 22 Forbes — around the corner from the club — said youths would wake her in the middle of the night, after the club had closed, with screams and partying. In the morning, Mrs. Forbes said, she would find beer cans and wine bottles discarded on her lawn.

Roth said there was no complaint the last two weekends when the security guard was on duty. Roth also said that the loud music was only bothersome when the club's doors were open.

San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

AMENDMENTS — Put over until the next meeting hearing amendments to zoning ordinance.

REZONING — Put over application by owner John Komo to rezone 154-158 Tunstead Avenue and 39 City Hall Avenue.

TWO-FAMILY — Denied application by George and Vicka Surovtsov to rezone from single — family residential to two-family at 122 Sycamore Avenue.

SCHOOL — Granted application to conduct a nursery school at 1509 Sir Franics Drake in the Church of the Nazarene to James A. and Angela Gonsman.

NIGHTCLUB — Granted application to Peter Montalbano, to operate a place of business serving alcoholic beverages and providing entertainment at the Tale of the Tiger, 726 San Anselmo Avenue.

SHED — Granted application for variance in sideyard setback for shed and awning at 500 Center Boulevard to Donald W. Welty.

NURSERY SCHOOL — Granted a 20-foot variance in frontyard setback for parking and a 5 foot variance in sideyard setback for open deck to San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School, 24 Myrtle Avenue.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to regular meeting 8 p.m., Jan. 3.

Security To Be Tight For Angela

SAN JOSE (UPI) — The courtroom security for the trial of Angela Davis has been tightened to include closed circuit television, an alarm system and metal detectors.

Miss Davis, 27, a self-avowed Communist and former UCLA philosophy instructor, will go on trial Jan. 31 in Santa Clara County Superior Court in San Jose. She is accused of murder, kidnap and conspiracy resulting from a bloody gunbattle at the Marin County Civic Center in San Rafael.

SECURITY ORDER

The courtroom security order was signed yesterday by Santa Clara County Superior Court Judges John T. Racanelli and Marshall Hall, who said the action was requested by the sheriff's department.

The judges also issued work orders for security lighting, erection of a portable building for spectator searches, and the conversion of an existing juvenile section on the second floor of the main county jail for a cell for Miss Davis.

Additional sheriff's deputies also were ordered to follow Miss Davis when moved from her cell to the courtroom, to search spectators and to conduct a roving patrol.

The judges also called for the purchase of 16 additional walkie-talkies and other electronic gear.

CHANGE OF VENUE

The trial, which has been delayed for months in pre-trial proceedings, was transferred to San Jose on a change of venue motion.

In the San Rafael shooting, a judge, two convicts and an outside accomplice died on Aug. 7, 1970. The accomplice, Jonathan Jackson, 17, had smuggled weapons into a courtroom in an attempt to help the convicts make an escape.

Jackson was the brother of George Jackson, who died in August in an attempt to break out of San Quentin prison.

Firm Called Free Enterprise Promoter

Alexander Taylor Inc., a San Rafael clothing firm headed by cosmetics king William Penn Patrick, is not an endless chain type of operation but a legitimate enterprise that encourages free competition, two marketing experts testified yesterday.

Dr. Charles Lapp, professor of marketing at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., and Dr. Steven Baumgarten, associate professor of marketing at University of Wisconsin, testified for the clothing firm before Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

The state attorney general filed suit last August, charging that the company is an endless chain operation and violates the State Franchise Investment Law.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., attorney for Alexander Taylor, drew from the marketing experts testimony that the company requires no franchise fee because distributors purchase inventory that is resaleable.

Dr. Lapp and Dr. Baumgarten said that the marketing plan used by Alexander Taylor is not only legal but actually promotes free enterprise and competition.

The judge set Jan. 18 as time for final arguments by both the company and the state, represented by Diana Woodward Cohan and Michael J. Kelly, deputies in the attorney general's office in San Francisco.

Stolen Property Case Trial Set

Donald H.L. DeSurville, 35, of Kentfield, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of receiving stolen property. Judge E. Warren McGuire set his trial for Feb. 22.

DeSurville, owner of Town and Country billiards, in Kentfield, was arrested Nov. 12 on a charge that he received a valuable coin collection stolen from a Larkspur home on Oct. 26.

Petaluma, Swim Club In Fee Stalemate

The Petaluma City Council stalemated last night in negotiations with the Petaluma Swim Club on cost sharing for winter use of the municipal swim center.

A council committee recommended the swim club be permitted use of the pool in Janury, February and March if it pays utility bills estimated at $1,150 per month. The city would pay $250 per month for normal utility bills and for reheating the pool.

Swim club president Thomas Nolan said the charge "would bankrupt the club" and that it could afford to pay only $500 per month since most of its annual budget of $18,000 is for salaries for four coaches for the 300 youthful swimmers and for pool rental.

Councilman Richard Clecak said the committee agreed that the city could not reduce charges further for the club because the pool is already $14,000 in the red from last year.

Attorney Clyde Nelson, a club director, argued unsuccessfully that the club should not be expected to finance both the coaches salaries and pool costs.

Offers to split the costs in half were rejected by the council as well as a club request to rent the pool for $500 in January while negotiations on costs continue. "We've got to do something for January," Nolan said. "We'd hate to lose our momentum," he said, explaining that competitive swimmers must practice at least 11 months of the year to remain in statewide competition.

The council urged Nolan to take the problem to a general membership meeting of the club on Jan. 5 and to return to the council meeting on Jan. 17 to continue discussion.

The Petaluma City Council also:

WATER — Heard City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer report the Sonoma County Water Agency yesterday approved installation of a new booster station at Cotati and new wells on the Russian River which should provide enough water for Petaluma and North Marin to meet demand next summer.

WARRANTS — Expressed interest in a countywide plan to computerize traffic and criminal warrants. Police Chief Larry D. Higgins said Sonoma County would bear 75 per cent of the cost and that Petaluma's share was estimated at $1,017 for the first year.

CURBS — Heard Heritage Homes of Petaluma urge that the council encourage the retention of cobblestone curbs where feasible.

BASEBALL — Heard that the American Little League had withdrawn its request to enlarge the ballfield at Lucchesi Park because of conflicts with the nearby soccer field.

Fixture Stolen

A light fixture valued at $75 was taken during the weekend from a home under construction by the Marken Corporation of Oakland at 176 Esmeyer Drive, San Rafael police reported today.

Armed Robbery Innocent Plea

Ernest Barrow Biard, 18, of San Francisco, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of armed robbery. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Feb. 7 as the date of trial.

Biard and George Gregory Watts, 18, also of San Francisco, are accused of holding up John D. Mackie and Sandra Pazamickas in their San Rafael apartment on Oct. 29. The victims told police that four men robbed them at gunpoint, gagged and threatened them before taking off with about $600 in cash and personal belongings.

Watts is scheduled to appear tomorrow for plea to the robbery charge.

Absenteeism In Congress Is Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, has proposed a constitutional amendment that would remove from office any senator or congressman who failed to vote at least 60 per cent of the time.

Mrs. Smith, who has one of the best voting records in Congress, directed her ire toward the absenteeism of several senators who are considered potdntial presidential candidates.

She said the absences of the presidential candidates, "moonlighters" and "junketeers" was a disgrace to the Senate.

$700 Sable Scarf Taken From Store

A $700 sable scarf was stolen yesterday from a fitting room at Livingston's store at the Northgate Mall, San Rafael police reported today.

Police said Lois B. Dohrmann, 55, of 36 Dominican Drive, San Rafael, told them she left the scarf in the fitting room while she tried on some new clothes and it was gone when she returned to the room.

Ted Unfazed By Chappaquiddick

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was quoted Monday as saying the Chappaquiddick tragedy would not affect his political plans.

In an excerpt from a forthcoming book, "Ted Kennedy: His Triumphs and Tragedies," published in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal, Kennedy said:

Whether the accident is fading as an issue or not is not my criterion for being in public office or staying out of it."

He also was reported to have said he did not think what happened at Chappaquiddick was responsible for his defeat as Senate democratic whip last January.

Corte Madera Councilmen Rip Into Proposed Countywide Plan

The Corte Madera Town Council doesn't like the Marin preliminary countywide plan any more than the town's planning commission did.

As recommended by the planning commission the council last night returned the plan to the City-County Planning Council of Marin for further study and clarification.

The council had no kind word for the plan. Biggest objection was to a proposed county superagency that would monitor and overrule, if need be, municipal development of countywide importance.

Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff feared the plan would be "more or less starting a superagency that would have overriding power over the cities."

While that was the major objection, Councilman Byron D. White also wanted it made clear the town might object to other provisions. He didn't name any others.

Planning Commissioner John W. Gates called the agency a first step toward creation of a "city and county of Marin." He said that without the agency the plan provides good, nonbinding guidelines.

Mayor Holmes S. Norville agreed. "In terms of guidelines, I don't think any of us have objections to he county plan," he said.

A major tenet of the plan is a 60,000 growth rate per decade confined mostly to the urban, eastern third of the county.

Provisions directly affecting Corte Madera include stopping the spread of shopping centers and making the Civic Center-Northgate area the hub of the county, making Highway 101 eight lanes all the way from the Golden Gate Bridge to San Rafael and giving high priority to purchase of ridges and bay shoreline for open space.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

FAIRVIEW — Vacated portions of Pleasant Avenue, accepted deeds for easement on Fairview Avenue and formalized the lot lines of 11 parcels nestled near the junction of the roads in the Madera Park subdivision.

ZONING UPON ANNEXING — Set a public hearing for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 17 on a proposal to allow county zoning to continue on parcels built on prior to annexation to the town.

PUBLIC HEARINGS — Set a public hearing for 8 p.m. Jan. 17 on a plan to delete the requirement of a council hearing for applications denied by the planning commission and not appealed.

REFERRAL — Referred to the fire department improvement committee a request from the Mariner Townhouses Owners Association for employment of more firemen immediately.

DAMAGE CLAIM — Denied a claim by Margrit S. Wetter of 125 La Goma Avenue Mill Valley, who claimed her car sustained $171 damage when hit by a town garbage truck.

LEASE — Agreed to lease a room at the recreation center from the Lions Club for $150 a month for recreation programs over the objection of White, who felt the vote should be delayed until signups are analyzed.

RIDGES — Put over to Jan. 3 a planning commission recommendation to go on record in favor of preserving ridge tops and regulate development for their preservation.

NO EXTENSION — Declined to add ridges on the Tiburon Peninsula to the North Ridge Plan as requested by the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association.

MENKE PARK — Agreed to look into acquiring Menke Park in the Village Square. It is a small park the city has leased from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad for $5 a year.

REZONING — Rezoned a vacant lot at Corte Madera Avenue and First Street from apartment to local shopping to allow construction of a nursery.

VACATIONS — Adopted an ordinance raising the annual vacation from 10 to 12 days for town employees with fewer than five years employment.

STAMP SELLER — Granted Don Rowe of 243 Golden Hinde Passage a home occupation permit to conduct a business in collector's postage stamps.

ANOTHER BUSINESS — Gave Robert J. Weissen of 45 Tamal Vista Boulevard permission to run a part-time financial and business consultant firm at his home.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Shirley A. Walker from the park and recreation commission.

EMERGENCIES — Introduced an ordinance setting up machinery for handling emergency situations as part of a countywide program to update Civil Defense rules and passed resolutions to get state and federal aid in calamities.

PROMOTION MONEY — Turned down a request by the Redwood Empire Association for $250 or more to fund stepped up visitor promotion efforts.

AIRPORT HEARING — Agreed to ask the Association of Bay Area Governments to hold a hearing in Marin on a proposed airport plan as requested by Novato.

WATER REUSE — Authorized Warner Odenthal to study uses of recycled water and a recycling plant for his proposed 540-unit Meadowsweet Station development. The recycling program was suggested by conservationist Elizabeth C. Terwilliger of Mill Valley.

ANNEXATION — Acting at the Corte Madera Sanitary District board, approved annexing one acre of land near Branch Road at Paradise Drive, the site of a home being built by Richard D. Munden.

COMPENSATION — Voted to pay Lewis Spengler, a volunteer fireman injured while fighting a fire last week, $16.50 for a working day he lost because of his injury and set a policy of paying volunteers $82.50 for the first week lost because of injury — thus filling a gap in the town's insurance coverage.

State Allocates Road Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Money to pay the state's share of a widening project at the intersection of Shoreline Highway and Almonte Boulevard has been allocated by the California Highway Commission.

Cost of the project, estimated at $65,000, will be shared by Marin County and the state, which will pay $51,000.

The project calls for widening Almonte Boulevard to provide two southbound lanes through the intersection, and widening Shoreline and installing a traffic signal.

Committed To Vacaville

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Mark Dee Souza, 32, of Petaluma, was committed yesterday to three months at the State Medical Facility at Vacaville for psychiatric evaluation.

Sonoma Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. said Souza would return in March for formal sentencing on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Souza had pleaded guilty after the charge was reduced from assault with intent to commit murder. A psychiatric examination in November ruled him sane and able to stand trial.

Souza was arrested Oct. 11 after stabbing his estranged wife, Carolyn, 21, with a knife during an argument at her home at 101 Burlington Drive, Petaluma.

PEDIATRICIAN'S VIEW

Medicine As A Career

By PAT BALMES

"Medicine is a wonderful career for women. Parents should rear daughters with the idea that there are opportunities for women in many different types of work. Whatever interests a girl is a field she should go into."

That is the view of Catherine Cline Pike, M.D.

When Doctor Pike came to Marin in 1945 she was the county's second pediatrician. Dr. Anne Brady was first.

"I made house calls from China Camp to Olema and Sausalito to Novato. You never thought of asking anyone to bring a sick child out in the cold; we thought it too dangerous.

"I remember going out to give a penicillin shot and sending a technician to the home to take blood tests. I made many a house call with my four little boys and a dog in the back of the station wagon," she said.

Pediatrics was difficult to do part-time then; if a child was acutely ill parents wanted their familiar pediatrician, she said.

Mothers brining well babies to Doctor Pike for checkups often wanted to talk about their older children's problems. But pressures, interruptions and emergencies left little time for counseling.

"An emergency like a child taking a bottle of aspirin or cuts that had to be sutured would occur and off I'd go," she said.

WHEN HER fourth son was born in 1951, Dr. Pike limited her practice to pediatric counseling, practicing part-time. She was also a Well-Child Conference physician for Marin County Health Department and guidance consultant for San Rafael City Schools. In 1966-67 she had a psychiatric fellowship at University of California Medical Center.

Doctor Pike, assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at the university's Medical School in San Francisco, works with the department of ambulatory and community medicine teaching medical students in the field of sex education in public schools, family planning and, with Dr. Herbert Vandervoort, developing a course on sexual problems in medical practice. Former electives, these courses are now taken by all medical students. She also works with the obstetrics and gynecology department on psychiatric problems of pregnant and surgical patients.

Her students work as resource teachers on family life, sex and drug abuse education in San Francisco public schools, showing films on human reproduction to parents before they are shown to children, and answering questions about the program. They develop skills in public speaking and are a catalyst to make teachers more comfortable when teaching students these subjects.

"Sex education is always done in the home and school. Sometimes it is a negative education by silence and reproval," Doctor Pike said.

At the Planned Parenthood Association her medical students observe, attend seminars, assist in clinics and participate in pregnancy counseling.

SHE ALSO counsels families in which there are emotional behavior problems, working with children, adolescents and adults at her Ross home, where she has lived for 20 years.

She tries to help parents and adolescents understand each other. It is hard to be an adolescent because the world is a complicated place, Doctor Pike said. Children often have parents who are not sure of what they believe. One task of the adolescent is to look again at all values a young person has been taught by parents, church and community, shake them up and develop his or her own scale of values.

There are too few places for the adolescent in society. He is too often a consumer, not a worker or contributor. Industrialization, urbanization and increasing population have made it difficult to find adequate opportunities for him to contribute, according to Doctor Pike.

When she counsels women, Doctor Pike encourages them to avoid the "empty nest" problem by keeping up adult interests during their children's childhood so they can expand them later. The broader a woman's interests, the more she can contribute to marital companionship. Doctor Pike praises the trend of women's involvement in adult education and volunteer, community and political activities.

For some women with young children, one day is too much like another. When their children reach nursery school age, some women will find it rewarding to work. Quality of time a mother spends with her children is more important than quantity as long as loving supervision is supplied in her absence, says the pediatrician.

DOCTOR PIKE received her medical degree from U.C. in 1943, when some hospitals would not take a woman intern. Now part-time medical work is possible. Opportunities for continuing medical training are abundant and medical school can be finished in five years instead of four. Refresher courses are available.

"Many of the medical and drug procedures used now were not even discovered when I was in medical school," she said.

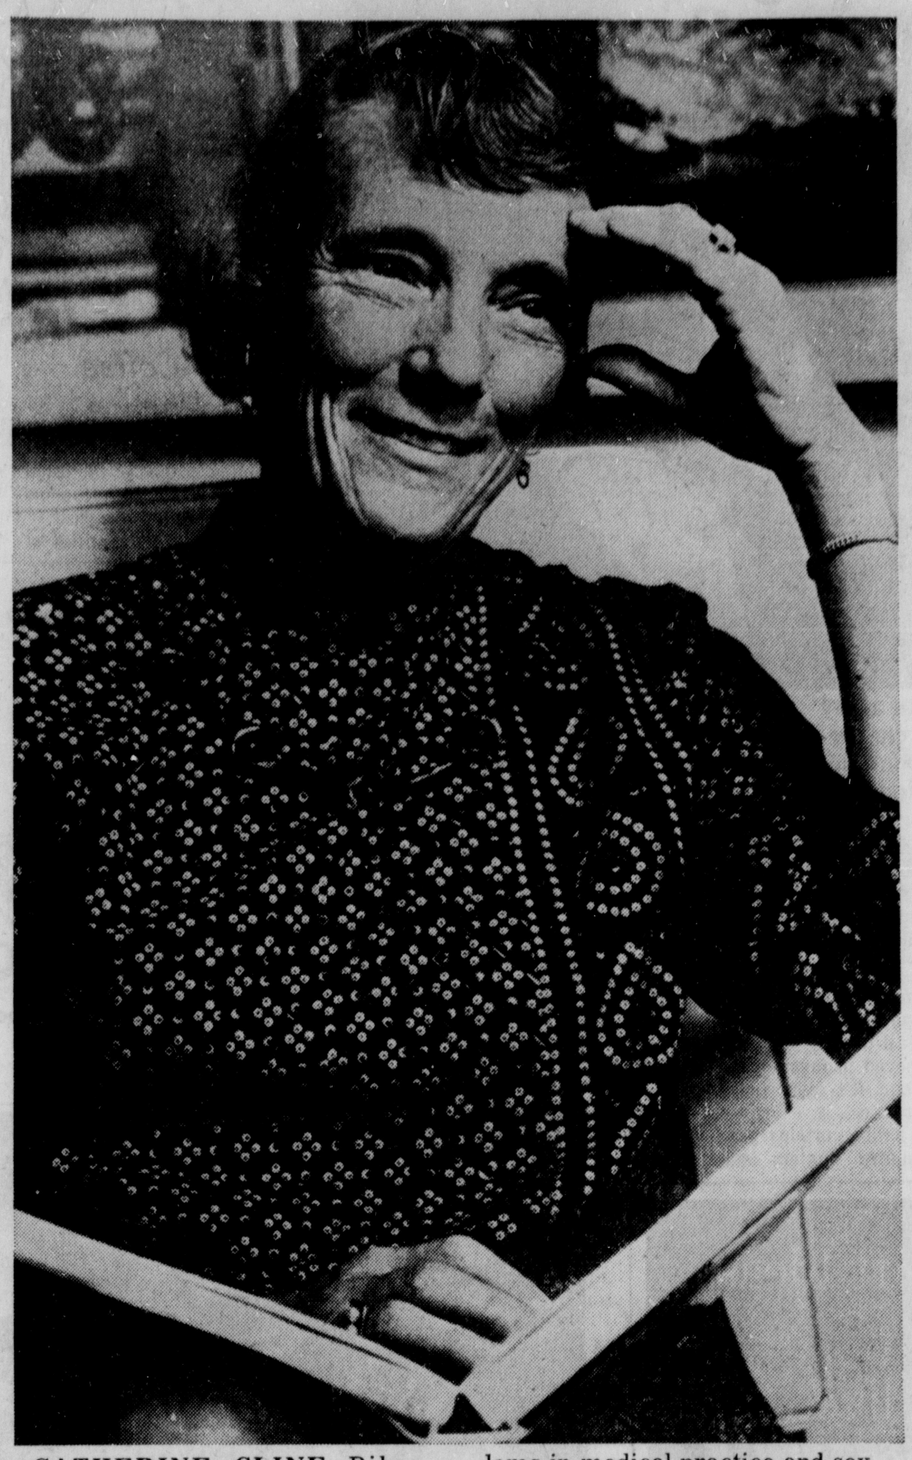
The doctor shares with her husband, San Francisco investment broker Peter Pike, enthusiasm for camping, snow shoeing and traveling. Their sons are grown. Peter Jr., 28, in business in Switzerland, plans to sail his 26-foot boat from England to the United States to settle in San Francisco. Alan, 26, a Kenya bush pilot, is interested in Africa's livestock problems and zoology. Drummond, 23, works for the Center for Community Change in Washington, D.C. Bruce, 20, of San Rafael, accompanied his mother in 1965 when she joined Drs. Richard Hahn and Michael Franzblau in a tuberculosis case-finding project at Clinica de San Vicente in Zacapu, Mexico. He returned to volunteer for two summers and later six months in 1969.

Doctor Pike's interest in politics began "in response to my sons' questions and interest." She is a member of Common Cause, a citizens' lobby group to influence legislation.

"THERE IS an incredible need for more government funding of medical care for all. We raise people's hopes for medical schools and health facilities in the areas where people live. Too often bond issues fail for facilities such as completion of the medical school at Davis. Health care is not extended to where people live. Before the riots, people of Watts had to make three bus changes to get to the county hospital, an expensive hour-and-a-half trip," she explained.

America's neo-natal mortality rate is too high, she stated. Contributing factors are inadequate care and nutrition of pregnant women and housing problems. When a child is handicapped due to inadequate pre- or post-natal nutrition, it damages society economically to say nothing of the heartache to the child's family, according to the pediatrician.

"We must see that our government puts a higher priority on funding as well as passing legislation to provide adequate health care for all," she said.



CATHERINE CLINE Pike, M.D., second pediatrician to practice in Marin, urges parents to encourage their daughters to study to become doctors. She teaches courses on sexual problems in medical practice and sex education in public schools at University of California Medical School and gives pediatric counseling at her Ross home.

CHP Officers' Wives Elect New President

Mrs. Raymond B. Nelson of Novato has been elected president of the Marin-Golden Gate California Highway Patrol Officers Wives Club.

Janet Marie Nelson, the wife of a traffic officer with the CHP, has been a member for a year and a half. They are the parents of Eric, 5, Kenny, 3, and Christopher, 7 months. Mrs. Nelson says rearing three active boys and sewing are her pastimes.

Janet was born in Weeksville, N.C., and attended Illinois State University in Normal, Ill. She has lived in Marin County two years.

The informal, social and philanthropic organization makes party favors at Easter for the Dependent Chapter of the Sonoma County Juvenile Hall and on the Fourth of July and donates Halloween favors to the Marin County Juvenile Hall. They are preparing Christmas treats for the Marin County Juvenile Hall.

The new president was installed this month. Other officers are Mmes. Daniel Parr of Novato, vice-president; J. D. Lee of Santa Rosa, secretary; and William McChristian of Santa Rosa, treasurer.

Girls Can Compete With High School Boys

ALBANY N.Y. (UPI)—Responding to the pleas of a teenager, the New York State Board of Regents approved participation by girls on previously all-boy high school cross-country teams.

Earlier this year the regents voted to allow girls to play other non-contact sports with the boys such as tennis, bowling, archery and golf.

The latest move toward coeducational sports came as a result of Katie Schilley, who wanted to run against the boys on the Central Square High School team near Syracuse.

Regent Stephen K. Bailey of Syracuse offered a 10-stanza poem, dedicated to Katie, after the regents voted to make the change.

Entitled "The Ballad of Katie Schilley," Bailey's poem read, in part:

"Because of her stamina, fleetness and grace,

"She covets a spot in the cross-country race

"In central New York for Central Square High,

"To help them to win, or at least to a tie.

"Regents aren't ogres, our tenor's not terror;

"Like Scrooge let us happily note a sad error;

"In the course of this meeting our chinny-chin-chin,

"Let's amend Section 4 and let 'cross-country' in."

Thieves Fooled; Box Of Dirt Held A Diamond

DENVER (UPI)—Miss Margaret Hickman was red-faced as she told police about the box that was stolen from her unlocked car Monday.

"It was very embarrassing to try to explain to them that someone had stolen a box of dirt," she said.

The dirt came from an elevator shaft at the Mountain Bell offices where she works. She had lost the diamond from her engagement ring down the shaft and janitors boxed all the dirt for her when they were unable to find the gem.

Police believed the story, carried out a search and found the missing box in a clump of bushes a block away. The thieves apparently dumped the box after discovering it was filled with dirt.

Garbo's 'Evolution' To Be TV'd

Author Larry Carr, who devoted five years to writing the book, "Four Fabulous Faces," about Greta Garbo, Gloria Swanson, Joan Crawford and Marlene Dietrich, is planning a television special for early next year, according to Women's Wear Daily. Joan Crawford and Gloria Swanson will host the show.

His book illustrates the evolution and metamorphosis of these beauties, Carr said.

"I don't think any of the four could have been called extraordinary beauties to begin with," he said. "But each one learned to develop her potential and her face by accenting her best features and minimizing her shortcomings. Most people say that Garbo was the perfect beauty, but when you see what her face was in her early years, pudgy and undistinguished, you think again."

She lost weight, her hair was lightened, her teeth were capped, she learned makeup, grooming and became a beauty in a span of five years, according to the author.

"She came to Hollywood from Sweden in 1925, and by 1930 every woman in the world wanted to look like her," Carr said.

Hair Is Set En Route

Women traveling on the deluxe Italian train, Sette Bello, which runs between Rome and Milan, can have their hair set en route.

A small hairstyling salon opened recently on the train to give women something to do with their heads during the six-hour-ride, according to Women's Wear Daily.

The salon girls wear red, green and black wool tartan plaid uniforms especially designed for them by Heinz Riva.

Miss Ekwall Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ekwall of Corte Madera have announced the engagement of their daughter, Georgie Ann Ekwall, to Laurence Hale Vantrease of San Rafael.

The bride-elect, who is the granddaughter of Mrs. Dora Frederico of Fairfax, is a graduate of Redwood High School and is a student at the College of Marin.

Larry is the son of Mrs. Dolf Visser of Corte Madera and Laurence Vantrease of Novato. He is the brother of Linda Vantrease of San Rafael and Mark Vantrease of Corte Madera, who is serving with the Army at Fort Hood, Tex.

A graduate of Novato High School, he attends the College of Marin and is completing apprentice carpentry training. He is employed with the Vantrease Construction Co. in Novato.

The couple plans a June 23 wedding at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Boyfriend Always Sure He's Right — But Is He This Time?

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I am 17, Bo is 19. We went together six months and everything seemed perfect. I really thought it was love. He's the type who always knows he's right, so I tried every way to change so I'd be just the way he wants a girl. I thought I succeeded. We never even fought.

But suddenly he decided we shouldn't see each other so much because his parents "were hassling him." He suggested that we cool it for a month.

Two days later I saw him with another girl, and after that he was always with this girl.

Finally I decided to have it out so I asked him if it was all over. He said "yes" but not because of the girl. In the time he hadn't seen me, he said, he looked at "us" with an open mind and realized we were so different in thoughts, ideals and backgrounds that we'd never make it. But he still loves me, he added.

I have a lot of love invested in him and the way I feel now, I'll always have. But when his mind is made up, no one can change it, and he's so darn sure he's always right. Is he this time? — HURTING

DEAR HURTING:

More and more guys, it seems, are using the cop-out, "My parents are hassling me; let's cool it for a while." Guess it gives them time to think up a new excuse. Really, a simple "it's over" would be lots kinder.

The next dodge — your two personalities couldn't make it —doesn't go down either. Opposites usually attract. The differences add excitement. Maybe what Bo is trying to say is, "We're getting too much alike and it's a drag."

I'm glad you wrote this letter (though I'm sorry you're hurting) because it gives me a chance at a bit of advice: Girls, don't change for your guy so you'll be like him. He doesn't really want that, because then he sees in you a reflection of himself. What a bore.

And guys: Say what you mean. A clean break heals faster. — SUE

DEAR HURTING:

I don't think much of a fellow who leaves a relationship hanging when it's already dead. And when he's "always right" to boot —well, you'll soon realize how wrong he was for you. (Say in about a month, or maybe less if you make the clean break yourself.) — HELEN

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I broke my wrist roller-skating down a steep hill. I got my cast off three weeks ago but now I'm scared stiff of even the smallest hill. Will I ever get over it? — J.M.

DEAR J:

Yes. But only if you think of that fear as a challenge. And try the baby hills first. — SUE

DEAR J:

How about regaining your confidence in a rink? Excuse me if I make noises like a mother, but roller skates on steep sidewalk hills can be hazardous not only to the wearer but to the person he meets on the way down. (And I know, because I once crashed into a woman carrying two dozen eggs, back in my roller-skating prime.) — HELEN

Bras, Freedom And Vanderbilt

Any woman who wears a bra when she does not have to does not know what freedom means, says etiquette authority Amy Vanderbilt.

Miss Vanderbilt says she concurs with the French rule, "Put a pencil under the breast, and if the pencil falls you do not need a bra."

The Transition To Young Adulthood

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

How can you help a pre-teenage youngster make a graceful transition from childhood to young adulthood? Most of us operate on a kind of brinksmanship policy — the event is upon us before we've taken the time to formulate a program of helpfulness.

Changes in clothes and behavior patterns occur almost without our guidance. Schoolmates are much more likely to succeed in this diplomatic field. But home environments can be shaped only by interested parents or adult members of the family.

The 11 or 12-year-old has a special clarity of vision, a critical eye and awareness of what's going on in the world and at home. It's a time when order and personal interests can develop. And it may be the last time a strong family influence will be appreciated.

The private or shared domain of a pre-teener can be organized into a more appropriate growing room. A new theme could easily be created around some special interest and the youngster's opinion could prove to be a fun takeoff point.

One example of an upgraded room is shown here. Designer Robert Charlton helped co-ordinate it for his 11-year-old daughter who has been hooked on the Peanuts cartoon characters of Charles Schulz. The theme was an easy one to accomplish because of the universality of Peanuts. Charlton and his daughter found clocks, books and a line of sheets and pillowcases imprinted with the cartoon family, so it gave them an inexpensive starting point.

A FUN INVESTMENT: An array of everybody's favorite characters embellishes this room designed by Robert Charlton and his 11-year-old daughter. Motif sheets and pillowcases provide an inexpensive theme for a Peanuts fan.

For several years the twin beds had been arranged against two walls, but now they decided to create a simple wall-hung shelf that could act as a desk. So one of the beds was shifted to an L-shaped island position. The shelf area has two spacious drawers for papers, books and utensils, two yellow canvas "Snoopy" chairs and wall decorations made of framed Peanuts pillowcases.

Bright red felt was cut to create a giant bulletin board and skirts for the beds. An old wall-to-wall carpet was removed in favor of the parquet floor (it's more fun for dance practice).

Frilly curtains gave way to painted shutters and a plant was added for the young ecologist. The resulting room encourages tender loving care, a sense of independence and responsibility. It's an investment in the future, yet when Miss Charlton's interests change as she matures, the dollar investment will not have been exorbitant. The basic room design will last; the motif can change.

Furnishings Style Rules Are Relaxing

Mixing different furniture styles such as contemporary with Spanish, once considered taboo by almost every decorator, is now a fashionable trend, according to a California interior designer.

Carole Eichen, an Orange County housewife without any formal interior design training, who has become a top decorator of subdivision model homes and apartments, says that the "eclectic look" is sweeping the interior design field and anyone can emulate it. Mrs. Eichen describes eclecticism as "blending the old with the new, or combining different furnishing styles such as traditional and country French."

"Rigid decorating rules, once demanding a single style be carried throughout a home, no longer apply," she explained.

"People are finding that discarded furnishings such as the old rocking chair they were going to throw out five-years ago but instead stuck in the garage, now fit in beautifully next to a contemporary chrome and glass coffee table. Or, wicker furniture, once banished to the patio or game room, is right at home today in even the most formal living room."

THE ALUMNAE

"Remember that old superstition about money not growing on trees?"

Dessert Coffee For A Change

Serve a steaming cup of dessert coffee instead of the usual cup of coffee and dessert, some nutrition consultants suggest.

Combine equal quantities of hot double-strength coffee with steaming hot milk in a deep heat-proof mixing bowl, beat until frothy.

Serve in tall cups or glasses, top with a fluff of whipped cream and a spoonful of shaved sweet chocolate.

Mission Vows Are Exchanged

Melanie Brusati of San Francisco became the bride of Andrew J. Waite of Auckland, New Zealand, in a ceremony Dec. 11 at Mission San Rafael Arcangel in San Rafael.

The daughter of Mrs. Muriel Brusati of San Rafael, the bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Harold J. Miller of San Rafael.

Mrs. Robert O'Connor of San Francisco was the matron of honor and Carol Magiulo of Santa Rosa was the bridesmaid.

Serving as best man was Steven Dowd of Davis, and the ushers were Michael Brusati of San Mateo, Ronald Stollings of San Mateo and Robert O'Connor of San Francisco.

The couple will live in San Francisco when they return from Lake Tahoe, their wedding trip destination.

Melanie is a San Rafael High School graduate and attended the College of Marin. She is employed with the Bank of America in San Francisco.

She is the twin sister of Michael Brusati of San Mateo and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Miller of San Rafael.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kerkham of Auckland. He is a graduate of the University of Auckland Law School and is employed with a San Francisco law firm. He is the brother of Gregory Waite of Melborne, New Zealand, and Louise Kerkham of Auckland.

Students Continuing Dressing Down Trend

NEW YORK (UPI)—The dressing down movement among high school and college students continues to gain momentum despite fashion industry efforts to reverse it, according to Lester Rand, president of the Rand Youth Poll, an organization which assesses youth trends.

Comfort, a relaxes atmosphere, less spending money and conformity are the chief ingredients in the trend.

MRS. JUNIUS THOMSON
Leads Presbyterian group

Church Unit Elects President

The United Presbyterian Women of the Presbyterian Church of Novato have elected Mrs. Junius Thomson president. She has also served as treasurer, and she and her husband are former officers of the Mariners of the Church.

A member for nine years, Peggy Thomson says the purpose of the organization is mission work, fellowship, study and church improvements "with a feminine touch."

Projects planned for the coming year are completion of the bride's room and getting equipment for the kitchen and furniture in the Christensen Room. A cleaning day in March, a fellowship breakfast in the fall, an attic sale and a Christmas tea also are planned.

Peggy also participates in the church choir, the Junior High School Presbyterian Youth group and Eastern Star. She was born in Galveston, Tex., but grew up in Albuquerque, where she was graduated from business college.

The new president and her husband, an engineer with the U.S. Department of Treasury, are the parents of Joyce, 14, Kim, 10 and Gary, 13 months. Knitting, sewing, gardening, music, bridge, children and art work "when time permits" are the interests of Mrs. Thomson.

Officers installed with Mrs. Thomson were Mmes. Samuel Hecht, program chairman and vice-president; Philip Hicks, secretary; Winston J. Wishon, treasurer; E.C. Leigon, nominating committee chairman; Edward Fischer, service coordinator; Donald Powell, G.E. Halvorson and John Tautges, circle chairmen; Melvin Rupp publicity; and Halvorson, auditor.

Antique Patina

How do some furniture-makers create an antique patina? They physically distress the finish by hitting it with a piece of chain attached to a short broom handle. Color distressing uses six or seven strings of an ordinary household mop, dipped in glaze and wiped almost dry.

MRS. LEW BAYSINGER
New golf captain

Golf Club Elects New Captain

A member of the Indian Valley Women's Golf Club for 10 years, Mrs. Lew A. Baysinger of San Rafael has been elected captain for the coming year.

Elsie Baysinger has also served as secretary of the club. She and her husband, who is employed in the purchasing department of American Forest Products in San Francisco, are the parents of Mrs. Henry Leonardi, Mrs. Tom Fracisco, Mrs. Don Holton and Lori Baysinger.

The new captain was born in South Wales. She was graduated from John Swett High School in Crockett and Miss McAleers Business School in San Francisco.

Other officers to serve with Mrs. Baysinger are Mmes. Roger William, co-captain; C. T. Henderson, secretary; Rowe Waller, Treasurer; Stan Fogler, tournament chairman; William McVickers, assistant tournament chairman; and Lloyd Abrams, handicap chairman.

Young Students Do Artwork

Second and third-grade students at West End School in San Rafael have done the artwork for a calendar which is being sold by members of the West End School Parent-Teacher Association.

Art coordinator for the calendar is Mary Case Dekker, who also designed the cover, which is a composite of three of the children's drawings.

FOOD FADDISM

Self-Discipline Down The Drain

By FREDERICK J. STARE, M.D.,
Chairman,

(Second of five articles)

"Get thin quick."

"Flush out excess fat."

"Lose unsightly inches overnight."

Promises like these are widely advertised by today's "diet doctors" and promoters of the cult of effortless weight loss. Geared to "instant action" — a promise of "something for nothing" — these crash cures relieve a person of the responsibility to think and to make realistic choices. Also, little personal and sustained effort is required to achieve promised success so one may avoid the self discipline and occasional frustration that accompany a sensible weight reduction program.

But are these weight loss schemes safe? Are they really a substitute for exercise and proper diet? Are these schemes effective and for how long? Let's take a look at one of the current "diet quickies" to see just how they operate.

THE HIGH PROTEIN DIET — The aim of this popular diet, also known as the Quick Weight Loss Diet, is to produce a nutritional imbalance by using high protein foods, but with little carbohydrate. The dieter is told to "eat all the protein foods you want" but to eliminate breads and cereals as well as most fruits and vegetables. Popularity of this diet is assured — no calories to count — no portion sizes to gauge — no choices to make.

How then, you may, ask does the dieter lose weight?

The all-protein eating supposedly allows your system to "burn up about 275 more calories each day" than a diet containing a variety of foods. The idea behind this concept came from studies performed some 50 years ago in which scientists demonstrated that when "pure protein" was fed to animals, extra calories were required to metabolize or "burn" it. This is partially true with "pure protein", but protein foods also contain either carbohydrate or fat, and usually very generous quantities of the latter, also mostly saturated fats which are not so good for those concerned with the level of cholesterol in their blood.

Another drawback to the high protein diet is the potential hazard it may present to persons with disturbances in kidney or liver function or with diabetes. Many people may be unaware that they have these conditions in their early phases. As previously mentioned, high-protein diets are rich in saturated fat, usually also in cholesterol and thus they will be hazardous to those with a predisposition to coronary heart disease.

CONTRARY TO popular belief, excess protein is stored as body fat. Proteins in the process of digestion are broken down to amino acids which if not needed to form new body protein are used for energy or to form excess body fat. So unless total calories are reduced (including those from protein foods) or more calories are burned, due to increased physical activity, loss of fat and hence of body weight will not take place.

Diet frauds are nearly as prevalent as diet fads. "Magic pills," "inflatable clothing" and "effortless exercises" — all of them advertised as the quick and easy substitute for sensible weight reduction.

DIET PILLS — Diuretics and amphetamines account for the major types of "diet pills." The former accomplish only a loss in water, not fat, and while the latter may curb the appetite temporarily, the body builds up a resistance and higher doses are soon required for the same effect. Both diuretics and amphetamines may have serious side effects, particularly when combined with other drugs as they are in the so-called "rainbow" diet pills.

INFLATABLE CLOTHING — Inflatable clothing, constricting bands and weighted belts do not cause one to lose fat. Any temporary loss in size is simply due to a shift in fluid from one place to another — remove the constriction and the fluid will soon return. Some water loss may occur from sweating, but again as soon as water or food is consumed, the water goes right back.

Weighted belts operate on the theory that excess calories are required to move around extra weight. True in principle, but the 10 or 15 pounds added by the belt is far from sufficient to produce a loss, particularly if one is not very active physically.

MASSAGES, SAUNAS AND MAGIC MACHINES — More ways to lose your money but not your fat. Simple exercises will help to strengthen muscles but unless sufficiently demanding to burn up extra calories, mild exercises will not eliminate much fat. Nor will massages, saunas or jiggling machines cause you to lose fat — water loss will occur during the sauna from sweating, but this loss is only temporary.

Exercise can be beneficial if you do the work and do enough of it — not all at once but with frequency and in moderation. Machines that move your body for you are not very helpful. Nor will massage burn calories except for the person giving it.

Tomorrow: The message from "nutritional missionaries."

How To Avoid Mickey Finn From A Single King

You don't cry your eyes out because you lose a finesse; after all, you expect to lose almost half of the finesses you attempt. If you lose a finesse to a singleton king, however, you feel that Fate has slipped you a Mickey Finn.

Los Angeles expert Lew Mathe found a way to duck the Mickey last month when he won the National Mixed Pair Championship (wih his wife as his partner).

Opening lead — ♣ K

Few pairs got to game with the North-South cards and their 20 high-card points, but the Mathes like to bid the spots off the cards.

The hand was played by South or North at a hundred-odd tables, and almost invariably declarer lost the diamond finesse to West's singleton king.

HOW IT STARTED

When Mathe played the hand at four hearts, West led the king of clubs and continued with the jack of clubs. Mathe ruffed and immediately led the seven of trumps toward dummy.

West played the nine of hearts, a natural but fatal error, and Mathe went right up with dummy's king of hearts since West surely had the ace for his strong bidding. Declarer then cashed the top spades, discovering that the suit broke evenly.

END PLAY

The stage was now set for the end play. Mathe led a heart from dummy, forcing West to take the lead with the ace. If West now returned a diamond (regardless of what West had in that suit), declarer would get a free finesse; if West led a club (the only other possibility), South would ruff while dummy got rid of a diamond.

Either way, declarer would not have to lose a diamond trick.

West could have saved himself by stepping up with the ace of hearts when that suit was first led. He could then get out safely with a spade or with another trump. Declarer could try running the spades, but East would ruff and lead a diamond, whereupon South would have to guess whether or not to try the finesse.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ - 7 4
♥ - J 8 7 2
♦ - A Q J 9 7 4
♣ - 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three diamonds. If partner bids three hearts, you will raise to four hearts. Otherwise, you plan to bid four diamonds, aiming at game in diamonds rather than game in notrump.

Burglary Guilty Plea By Mill Valley Man

Christopher Kevin Greene, 20, of Mill Valley, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to burglary and concealing stolen property. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Jan. 24 for sentencing.

Greene was arrested Nov. 21 and charged with burglarizing the home of John Kelly on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Fairfax and with concealing property stolen from the home.

MUSIC REVIEW

Pianist Excites College Audience

By ROBERT M. NESS

The highly disciplined College of Marin Community Orchestra, conducted by John Myers, performed a demanding slate of works Sunday night before a capacity audience at the college's Fine Arts Theater.

Pianist Carole Castro Mauia provided the most exciting performance of the evening with the Shostakovich Piano Concerto No. 2. The concerto is not very interesting by itself. Its meandering octave passages, drab orchestral accompaniment, and "Autumn Leaves"-like super-romantic slow movement were actually elevated beyond their worth by virtue of Miss Mauia's vigorous performance.

In the two allegro movements, she played with extreme clarity and sharp rhythmic drive. In the slow movement she liquefied the natural percussiveness of the instrument. She received a well deserved standing ovation for an electrifying performance.

The highlight for the orchestra was Grieg's three selections from "Sigurd Jorsalfar." This unashamedly romantic work was rich in expressive playing. The strings really came through with a deep rich sound and widely varied dynamics. The instrumental solos by cellist Jan Gauder and horn player Kevin Omi were especially exquisite.

Weber's "Oberon Overture" followed by Mozart's "Haffner Symphony" occupied the more serious first part of the program. It was immediately obvious that this orchestra had extended considerable effort in the preparation of this concert.

Both of these works are extremely difficult, especially for the strings. Though intonation problems were minimal and some very nice rhythmic subtleties came through, the performance suffered a lack of spontaneity and vigor.

This was most pronounced in the Mozart. The lack of variation in dynamics coupled with a rather heavy texture resulted in a forced performance.

Conductor Myers chose to depart from tradition by utilizing the whole string section rather than cutting it down to the customary chosen few.

At the expense of a more transparent texture and more precise intonation, he provided every string player with the opportunity to face the demands of Mozart.

Works Of 8 Artists On Display

Works by eight Marin artists are included in the Christmas show now on display at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

Artists represented are Dale Diamond of Mill Valley, Bruce Lauritzen of Larkspur, Ada Garfinkel of Kentfield, Elizabeth Sher of Fairfax, Eleanor Bender of San Anselmo, and Gwen Stone, Tony Williams and Farhad Moezzi of San Rafael.

The show will continue through Sunday. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Sausalito Woman Enters Innocent Plea

Felicia Mary Fouche, 25, of Gate 5, Sausalito, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of selling heroin. Judge E. Warren McGuire set her trial for Feb. 18.

State narcotics agents arrested Miss Fouche Oct. 13 and charged her with selling heroin to an undercover man on Sept. 28.

$375,000 Given In Shooting Case

MARTINEZ (UPI) —A federal agent who was accidentally shot by a policeman during a raid has received $375,000 in settlement, his attorney announced Monday.

George Gudbinson, 31, the agent, suffered a paralyzed arm when he was shot at Concord on Feb. 1, 1969, by patrolman Don McLennan, attorney Bruce Walkup said.

Gudbinson and two other agents were shot when the patrolman mistook them for narcotics smugglers who were the target of the raid.

Suits for the two remaining men will start Feb. 7 in Contra Costa County Superior Court.

Walkup said the settlement had been made with the city's insurance companies.

Gudbinson, formerly of Pleasant Hill, is now assigned to a border station at Blaine, Wash.

Suicide Figures

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Close to a third of all suicides in San Francisco are committed by persons 60 or older.

Policy Reversed On The Use Of Plastic Piping

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Board of Supervisors reversed itself Monday and legalized the use of plastic pipe and plastic sheathed electrical cable in construction work.

The previous ban on such material threatened the city with the loss of millions of dollars in federal renewal and redevelopment money.

The federal government wanted the city to bring its codes into conformance with national standards adopted by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Only a week ago, the board voted 7-4 against amending the plumbing and electrical codes.

HUD Secretary George Romney told Mayor Joseph Alioto last week that either the material be permitted or federal funds would be terminated Dec. 21.

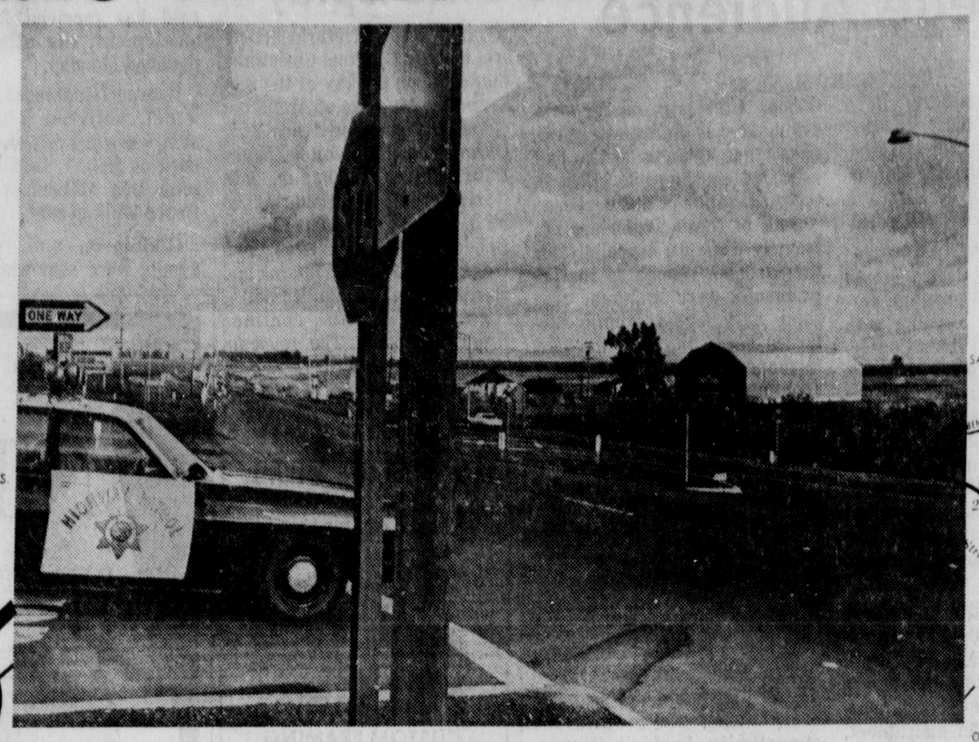
Caution — There's Trouble In The Road Ahead

HIGHWAY 37 — LAKEVILLE HIGHWAY — Scene of many bad wrecks, this intersection nevertheless provides the motorist with a clear view of approaching traffic, no matter in which direction he's traveling. The trouble? "People look but they don't see," said Sgt. Richard A. Nutting of the California Highway Patrol. "We've lost our ability to judge distances."



HIGHWAY 37 — ROUTE 121 — A left turn from Route 121 onto Highway 37 — as California Highway Patrol Sgt. Richard A. Nutting prepares to do — is the hazardous traffic move at this spot. Nutting said many of the motorists involved in accidents at this intersection are elderly persons unfamiliar with the area.

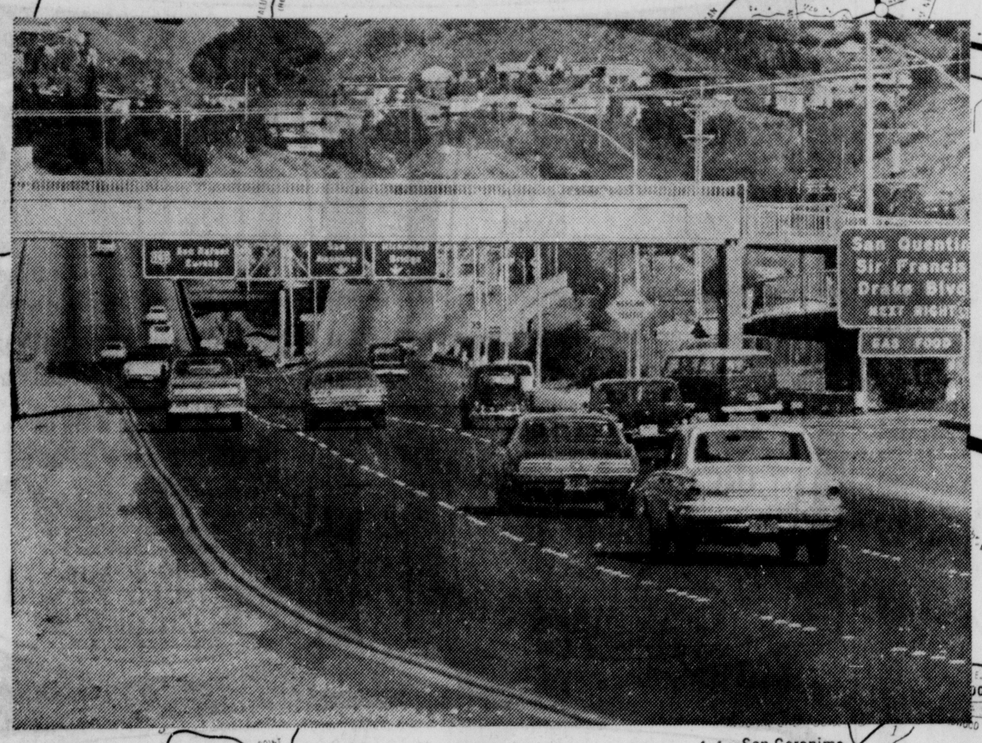
At various points in Marin — from twisting Shoreline Highway to high-speed Highway 101 — there is danger in the road.

The county's streets and highways are dotted with trouble spots — a tricky turn, a blind curve or a hazardous intersection. On the other hand, a straight and open stretch of road can be turned into an instant death trap by driver inattentiveness or faulty vehicles.

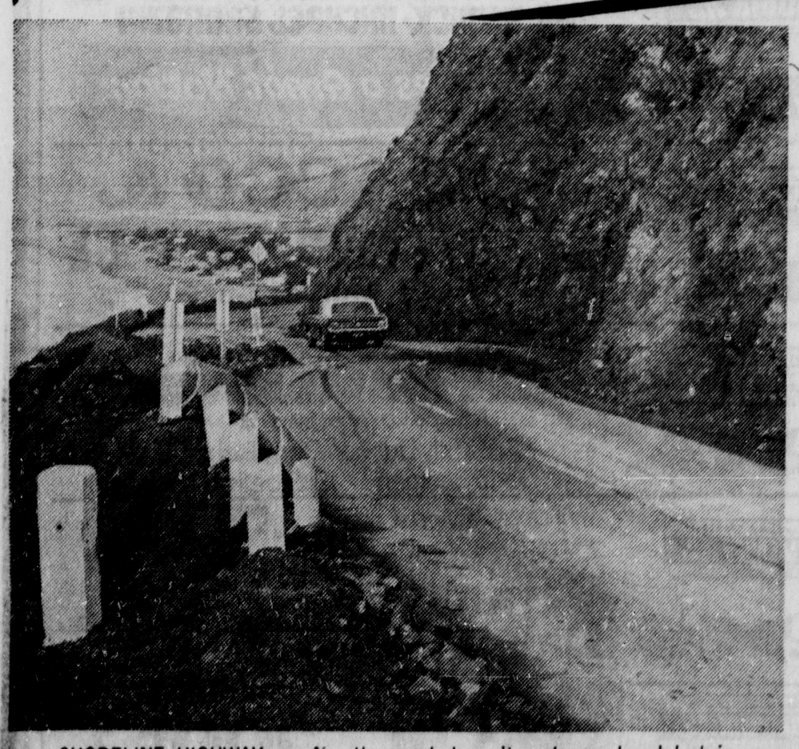
In either case, it all adds up to accidents, injuries — and sometimes death. More than 350 persons have died in Marin traffic accidents in the past decade, with thousands injured.

More have died — 152 — on Highway 101 than on any other Marin road during that period. Two of that freeway's trouble spots are pictured on this page, along with three other county road hazards.

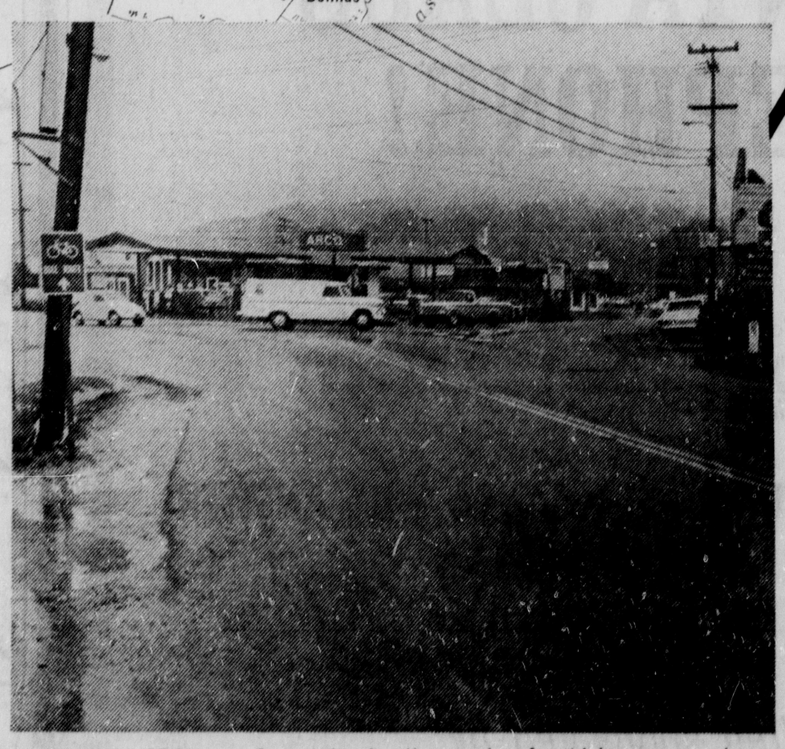
Although statistics aren't available on the number of accidents that occur at various trouble spots, the California Highway Patrol considers these six locations among the most treacherous.



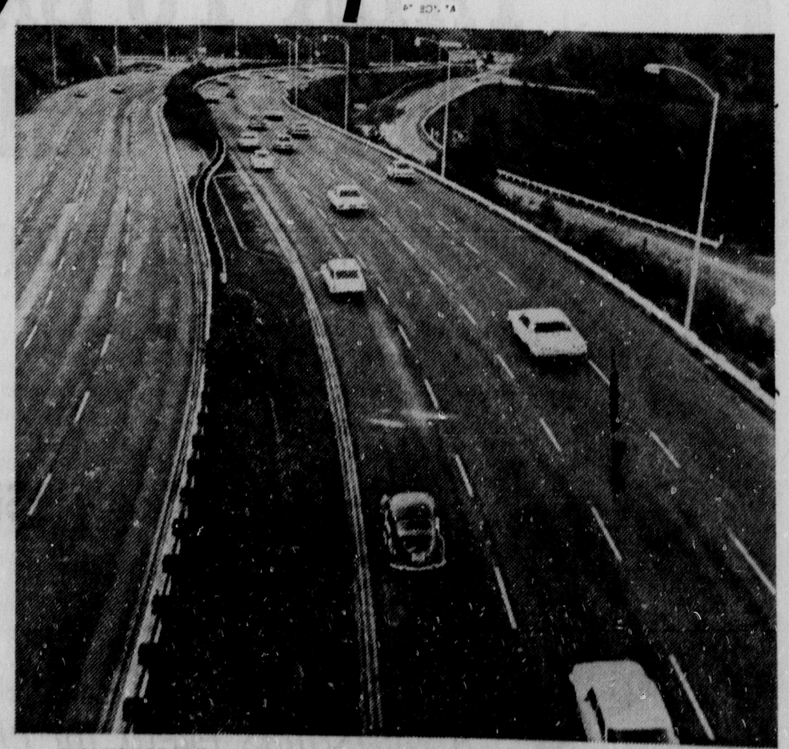
HIGHWAY 101, GREENBRAE — What causes difficulty here, especially in rush hour, according to the CHP, is traffic merging into northbound Highway 101 from Lucky Drive (note van, right), while other motorists leave the highway at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at the same spot. The result: a hazardous jumble of merging, turning vehicles.



SHORELINE HIGHWAY — No, the road doesn't end up ahead but is hidden behind the hill, just as Shoreline winds its way down to Stinson Beach. This is one of the many hazards along the twisting highway. Fail to make a curve — as many motorists have — and you'll find a rock beach hundreds of feet below.



TAM JUNCTION — On weekends, thousands of vehicles merge at this Southern Marin intersection, stalling traffic and triggering rear-end accidents. It's a case of too much traffic without proper control, but the state and county are planning improvements. A traffic light is among them.



WALDO GRADE — Down the hill the autos hurtle — only to find that the four lanes merge quickly into three. This is a particularly troublesome spot on Highway 101 during rush hour, as motorists hurriedly switch lanes to find the fastest-moving one. The carelessness results in accidents.

FOOD FOR EMPTY CHRISTMAS TABLES

Terra Linda High School student Mark Blaze sorts cans of foods collected by the school's Interact club for distribution by the Economic Opportunity Council to Marin's needy families. Still badly needed — says EOC — so that Christmas dinners can be enjoyed by all of Marin's families, are cash contributions to buy turkeys and hams. Money can be given through the EOC at 1006 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, or canned goods and toys at Project Help, 232 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo.

Zakessian Reported Dealing For Rail Land In Sausalito

Sausalito restaurant owner, Sam Zakessian is in the process of purchasing a large portion of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way through Sausalito, land the city is hoping to acquire, the Independent-Journal learned yesterday.

Oscar Osness, land agent for Northwestern Pacific, said yesterday the railroad plans to sell Zakessian, owner of Zack's, the 60-foot right-of-way between Mono and Johnson streets, although he said the title transfer has not yet been recorded.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said Zakessian's purchase of the land will not interfere with the city's plan to file a court action to condemn the entire right-of-way for city use.

The city council, at its meeting at 8 p.m. today, will consider a resolution authorizing City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to file a condemnation action to acquire the right-of-way from Johnson Street to the north city limits.

If the resolution is passed, Jordan said he hopes to take the matter to Marin Superior Court later this week.

St. Cyr. said Sausalito wants the land to meet its "intracity transit needs." He said the city hopes to use the property for bicycle paths and eventually, as part of a method of bringing visitors downtown from a northern parking facility which the city would like to build in the future.

Railroad service on the Sausalito line was abandoned by Northwestern Pacific on Nov. 24, and the city council, at its Dec. 7 meeting asked the city attorney to take steps toward condemnation of the land.

Osness told the I-J the railroad's commitment to Zakessian was made before the city expressed "official interest" in acquiring the right-of-way, part of which runs in front of the city's new waterfront park.

Zakessian, who has been at odds with the city government in several legal battles in past years, could not be reached to comment on his plans for the land or the price he has agreed to pay for it, a figure railroad officials declined to disclose.

The restaurant owner recently purchased a caboose and two box cars from Northwestern Pacific which he plans to turn into an annex to his restaurant.

Pair Selected For Rec Panel

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission last night recommended two persons to fill vacant youth seats.

The commission selected Don Cochran, 22, who will enroll in a state university next year, and Bill Bradley, a junior at Redwood High School, from among seven applicants, according to Harlan Barry, recreation director.

The recommendations will go to the city council for approval Dec. 28. The council had threatened to eliminate the youth seats because of spotty attendance by the young members, but relented at the last minute.

Fairs, Festivals Information Sought

Information about fairs and festivals in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties scheduled for 1972 is being sought by the Redwood Empire Association for inclusion in the association's annual calendar which is distributed to newspapers and magazines.

Dates and data about such affairs may be sent to the association at 476 Post Street, San Francisco 94102, immediately, according to association officials.

Marinwood CSD Accepts Gift Of Land: But Has It Been Offered?

The Marinwood Community Services District last night accepted a gift that may or may not have been offered.

The gift was a one-third-acre parcel at Las Gallinas Avenue and Roundtree Boulevard which the board wants for development as a park site from U.S. Development Corp., developer of Roundtree.

Genevieve T. Bolding, secretary to the Marinwood CSD board, said the parcel was included in original plans for the Roundtree condominium development and reserved for open space.

In October, the board opposed plans by U.S. Development to seek county permission to separate the parcel from the original plan and sell it for development.

At a Nov. 15 meeting of the county planning commission, Mrs. Bolding said, the development corporation said it was dropping its proposal to sell the property and would offer it to the community services district as a park site.

At a Nov. 19 meeting of the Marinwood Homeowners Association, however, the corporation said it would not donate the property, but might sell it for park development, according to Mrs. Bolding.

The CSD board — which hasn't heard from the corporation formally since October — last night acted on the information the site was being offered as a gift and accepted it, Mrs. Bolding said.

In other action last night, Mrs. Bolding reported, the board agreed to request the county planning commission to postpone a hearing from Jan. 10 to Jan. 17 on a proposal for a 109-unit townhouse development by Kaiser Aetna Co. at Las Gallinas Avenue and Mill Creek Road.

The proposal, revised from an original plan for 185 units and again from a revised 145 units, was discussed by the board, Mrs. Bolding said, which decided it wanted the Marinwood Park and Recreation Commission and Marinwood Homeowners Association to review the revised plan before the planning commission acted.

The Marinwood CSD Board Also:

CHAIRMAN — Elected Richard H. O'Brien its 1972 chairman.

EMPLOYEES — Approved a resolution to include the district's four miscellaneous employees in the state retirement system effective Jan. 1, and expressed its intent to include safety employees in the system in July.

FIREMAN — Hired Jeremiah Cannon of 40 Mount Tenaya Drive, Upper Lucas Valley, as a fireman effective Jan . 1 at $714 per month.

COMMISSIONS — Reappointed Kenneth Katz and Kirk Beales to the fire commission, making Beales, who was alternate member from Upper Lucas Valley, a full-voting member, but not as an Upper Lucas Valley representative, and reappointed David Paoli and Leland Spencer to the parks and recreation commission. Applicants for a vacancy on the parks and recreation commission or an alternate position on the fire commission may contact Mrs. Bolding at the district office, 536 Miller Creek Road.

Sentenced To Jail For Auto Theft

Davey Wade Cameron, 20, of San Francisco, must serve 15 days in Marin County Jail for auto theft.

He was sentenced yesterday in Marin Superior Court. Judge E. Warren McGuire also placed him on probation for 18 months. Cameron was arrested Sept. 29 in San Francisco in a car stolen from a Mill Valley auto dealer. He pleaded guilty to auto theft on Nov. 15.

Bay Link Protest To Be Readied

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors were ready today to consider protesting a state ruling that will force the county to remain in the San Francisco Bay Region for planning matters.

The California Council on Intergovernmental Relations ruled Friday that the county cannot join the proposed Alliance of North Coast Counties and must remain affiliated with bay region counties for purposes of receiving state and federal grants.

The supervisors were scheduled to consider filing a protest today claiming that the 6-3 vote by the 18-member council was illegal because a quorum was not present. The council advises the governor's office on regional grouping throughout the state.

The Sonoma Board, led by Robert Theiller, had sought to align itself with Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino and Lake counties. Staff advisers to the council recommended that Sonoma stay in the bay region because it has more in common there than with the predominantly rural counties to the north.

Speaking unsuccessfully in favor of the northern alliance were Theiller, James Groom, a Santa Rosa businessman; State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and Raymond Paschke, representing the County Board of Realtors.

Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam pointed to the strong connections between Petaluma and Marin and other Bay Area counties along with Burdette A. Shannon, manager of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce; Santa Rosa Mayor John Downey, and Frederick Silva, planner for the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Marin Man Muskie Aide

Deputy Marin County Counsel Joseph A. Forest, continuing 17 years of loyalty, has been named Marin coordinator for the Northern California Citizens for Muskie.

Forest, as a first-time voter in 1954 in Maine, cast his ballot for Muskie for governor, according to an announcement by the campaign citizens group.

Transfer Of Student Denied Despite Hub Official's Plea

The Marin County Board of Education last night refused to reconsider an interdistrict transfer despite the plea of W. Kenneth Lowry, superintendent of the San Anselmo School District.

Lowry asked the board to reconsider the transfer of Anthony Pukis, a kindergarten student, from his district to the Sausalito School District, but the board refused by a split vote, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent of the county schools office.

Spain said Marilyn R. Crowell and Arnold T. Dolcini Jr. favored considering San Anselmo's case, but were not supported by four other board members present. James A. Swenson was absent, Spain said.

The action affirmed a board policy of granting inter-district transfers on the basis of need regardless of tuition, Spain said.

The San Anselmo complaint was tuition. "We believe the board's action was in opposition to the basis of the request, that of saving money — not to mention the $1400 to $1500 San Anselmo will be required to pay to Sausalito School District," Lowry said in a letter to the board.

He said the boy's working mother, Mrs. Carol Pukis, could find less expensive day care services in San Rafael and send the child to a San Rafael school at no cost to San Anselmo. Mrs. Pukis based the transfer of her child on the use of a day care center in Sausalito.

The San Anselmo School board voted to fight the transfer after the county board ordered tuition payments to Sausalito Nov. 15.

Marin County Board of Education Also:

EMPLEO — Hired Gerial DeOliveira to teach in Project EMPLEO at San Quentin at $34.92 per half day and Reuben Vega for the same program at $44.97 a day.

AIDES — Hired Pat Browder, Theresa Rosser and Joan Towers as instructional aides each for $2.73 an hour.

CONSULTANTS — Voted to hire eight experts headed by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, at a total cost of $570 for the Marin County Annual Teachers Winter Institute Jan. 28.

GIFTS — Accepted a gift of $2,000 from Mrs. Harry Corvin of San Francisco for use at Marindale School; 25 tickets to the circus of the San Francisco Police Athletic League from Balliet Bros. Construction Corporation of San Francisco; and $51 donated to Marindale by sponsors of Haunted House for Halloween.

TRANSFERS — Approved the transfer of Susan and Sally Blue from the Sausalito to the Mill Valley School District that Sausalito had denied, but turned down a similar request for the transfer of Cindy DeLuke.

INTERCOUNTY — Approved transfer of Joanne and Julie Moreda from Novato to the Petaluma School District; John Slek from San Francisco to Novato; and Gerald Russell and Annie Puckett from San Francisco to the Tamalpais High School District.

PRISON — Contracted with San Quentin State Prison to provide 384 hours of teaching in the prison's industrial education program between Jan. 3 and June 30. The prison will pay $2,990.

REPRESENTATIVE — Appointed Mrs. Crowell the board's representative on the Marin County School Boards Association.

TRANSFERS — Transferred land at Granada School from the Larkspur School District to Reed, correcting a 14-year-old oversight that left part of the Reed school under Larkspur jurisdiction, and transferred jurisdiction over the Nike missile site on Mount Tamalpais from the Kentfield School District to Mill Valley, where the Air Force children have been going to school.

RECLASSIFICATION — Placed about 15 miscellaneous employees including non-credentialed teachers and a program nurse in the category of classified employees.

MATERNITY LEAVE — Granted a maternity leave to Nancy V. Wartena, a teacher of the deaf at Gallinas School, until about March 1.

RAISE Gave a 2.5 per cent raise to 24 administrators effective three weeks ago that will cost the district $9,836 a year.

CLASSIFIED — Took no action pending clarifications by the county counsel on a proposal by classified employees for 8.3 per cent raises this year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Jan. 3 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

Kamai Marriage Is Dissolved

The marriage of Curtis P. Kamai, 46, member of the Larkspur School District board of trustees, has been dissolved on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Last Friday, Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court approved the dissolution for Kamai and his wife, Ingrid E.

The judge ordered him to pay $200 per month alimony and $50 per month support for each of two minor boys, aged 16 and 20.

Mrs. Kamai, who lives at 2 Fairview Avenue, Corte Madera, told the court that they were married in Hawaii in 1947 and separated on July 12, 1969, after 21 years and seven months.

Kamai, an engineer, has been on the Larkspur school board since 1963 and was its president in 1968-69.

Mobile Clinic

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine Society for Crippled Children Inc. will operate early in 1972 a mobile orthopedic and rehabilitation clinic to examine and help in rehabilitation of orthopedically handicapped Filipinos in rural areas.

Expert On Goals Gives Marin Talk

At a dinner meeting attended by about 65 Marin school officials last night, an expert on goals outlined the history of legislation on goals and of the failure to transfer goals into programs.

According to Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins of the Tamalpais High School District, sponsor of the meeting at Dominic's in San Rafael, Dr. J. Richard Harsh said goals should be general, but to make them operational they must be made more specific.

The representative of the Educational Testing Service said that too often districts write goals, then quickly forget them, according to Hawkins.

However, Harsh said the Stull Bill, which goes into effect next September, is forcing districts to write goals, evaluate staff and assess whether goals have been reached, according to Hawkins.

Hawkins said the the audience, which asked questions after the 50-minute talk, included at least one representative from each school district within the borders of the high school district as well as the Tamalpais board and members of task forces working on goals at Redwood, Sir Francis Drake and Tamalpais high schools.

14 REAGAN VETOES

Birth Control Bill Rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the second consecutive year, Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed legislation permitting doctors to prescribe birth control devices for teen-aged girls without parental consent.

Reagan made the announcement Monday when he also reported vetoing 14 other measures including pay raises for state workers, highway patrolmen and forest firefighters.

The governor axed the measure by Sen. George Msocne, D-San Francisco, calling for a $26.8 million—5 per cent—pay hike for civil servants. The measure said the legislature would have to raise taxes to provide the money.

In his veto message, Reagan said the $501 million tax bill enacted by lawmakers this month did not include the funds for the pay raise. He said it would be a "cruel hoax" on the employes to sign a bill when no money is available.

He said there was "no question that state employes warrant a cost-of-living increase," and reported he would include funds in next year's budget for salary increases. He did not say how much.

The governor also vetoed a $5.4 million bill by Moscone, a potential contender for governor in 1974, which proposed a 6 per cent pay raise for highway patrolmen.

"Under the circumstances I cannot single out these employes for a salary increase when our fiscal resources do not permit salary increases for the many equally deserving employes we have in other occupations," Reagan said in his veto message.

He cited similar reasons for vetoing a $1.8 million bill by Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, which proposed a 6 per cent pay raise for firefighters of the state Division of Forestry.

The bill, Reagan noted, contained a provision activating the increase only if tax revenues provided sufficient funds. Reagan said such funds were not forthcoming and that it would be "inequitable" to grant a firefighters' increase and not increase the salaries of other state employes, too.

He vetoed a controversial bill by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, which would have permitted minors under 18 to secure—without their parents' consent — contraceptives and birth control pills. He vetoed a similar bill last year on ground it might lead to sterilization of teen-agers without their parents' knowledge.

Reagan said approval of the Beilenson measure "would remove parental consent for care related to the prevention of pregnancy for all those under age 18—a group that includes thousands of persons who are still children in every sense."

He said removal of a parent's consent and guidance "can only result in further deterioration of the family unit to the detriment of the child and society in general."

A second Beilenson bill, directing the state to establish maximum permissible standards for noise caused by machinery, equipment and appliances, also was rejected.

He said it would force California manufacturers to comply with a "multitude" of standards which would result in eventual increased costs to the consumer and could cause more unemployment in the state.

"Placing special requirements on products sold in California but produced in other states could result in the creation of trade barriers for California-manufactured products," he said.

Reapportionment— Some Highlights

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Here are highlights of the reapportionment plans passed by the legislature.

(Editor's note: Governor Reagan, urged by Republicans, may veto the measures following study during a work-vacation at his Pacific Palisades home. If both Houses' plans are vetoed, reapportionment probably will find its ultimate solution in the courts.)

CONGRESS

California gains five new congressional seats because of its population growth the past decade. The seats will increase the state's congressional delegation from 38 to 43.

The new reapportionment plan, its sponsors say, permits each major party to win two new seats apiece, with the fifth up for grabs.

The toss-up district includes western Kern County, Kings County and small portions of San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties.

The district will have about a 54 per cent Democratic voter registration edge, but the area has voted Republican in past elections.

Maverick GOP Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of San Mateo must choose between his current area, revised to become heavily Democratic, or more into a new, unfamiliar but Republican district including Santa Clara, Santa Cruz counties and a small section of San Mateo County.

The third new district is carved in central Los Angeles with a heavy Democratic voter registration and a 49 per cent black constituency.

Torrance, which had been divided by an earlier proposal, will be included in the district of Democratic Rep. Charles Wilson. Palos Verdes will remain in the district of Republican Rep. Alphonzo Bell.

The fourth new district will be created in San Bernardino, Riverside and Los Angeles counties with a predominately Democratic registration.

The fifth district will include parts of Orange and San Diego Counties—including the Western White House at San Clemente— and have a firmly established 53 per cent Republican registration edge.

SENATE

Designed to maintain, according to sponsors, the current 21-19 Democratic majority at least through 1974, when Democrats could pick up another seat.

A predominately Mexican-American district in East Los Angeles would be created with a 63.1 per cent Democratic registration edge. The district was carved from areas of incumbents and would not come up for election until 1974.

Republican Sens. Milton Marks of San Francisco and Peter Bhhr of San Rafael will be thrown together and must challenge each other for political survival. Northern California had to surrender a seat to the south, where population grew faster.

Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, was given the most expansive and rearranged district under the Senate's reapportionment-plan. Way will represent such diverse areas stretching from Bridgeport in northern Mono County to Pismo Beach ic San Luis Obispo county and Needles in the Mojave to Carmel along the scenic coast.

Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, will have a district extending more than 40 miles up the coast beginning at Palos Verdes and extending north to Simi Valley and Camarillo in Ventura county. Segments are merely a block wide.

THE ASSEMBLY

Designed to increase the Democratic majority from the current 42-37 to 44-36 after next year's election. There currently is one vacancy in what is considered a safe Republican district in San Diego.

One Democrat and two Republicans would be eliminated under the plan.

The district of Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, shifts southward to provide another Democratic seat in faster growing Santa Clara county.

The districts of Assemblymen Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, and Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, are wiped out. Conrad is thrown into the district of Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys. Wakefield is placed in the heavily Democratic district of Assemblyman David Pierson, D-Inglewood.

A new district will be created in West Los Angeles and have a heavy Democratic voter registration.

The district of Assembly Democratic caucus chairman Ken Cory of Garden Grove has been drawn to wind through Orange County and resembles an unsolved jigsaw puzzle.

The district of Assemblyman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, is redesigned to dip through San Luis Obispo county and into portions of Santa Barbara and Kern Counties to the Ventura County area of Simi.

Republican assemblymen Ernest Mobley of Sanger and Ken Maddy of Fresno will be thrown together and must contest each other in a win-or-be-eliminated GOP primary.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most Scalp Hair Seldom Grows For Longer Than Six Years

Hair grows in cycles. Approximately 10 per cent of all hairs are in a resting (telogen) phase that lasts from two to three months. The hair becomes lighter in color and may fall out, but the root remains dormant. In contrast, the growth phase lasts much longer.

Most hairs on the scalp seldom grow for more than six years. An exception is the woman with hair extending down to the waist. Considering that hair grows at a rate of three-hundredths inch per day, this must represent at least 15 years of growth.

IT IS well-known that hair growth is impaired under conditions of ill health and generalized disease. Some individuals also have scalp hair with a short life cycle producing a greater turnover of hair.

There are 100,000 hairs on the average scalp. And — some truth to the statement that when the leaves begin to fall in October, so does the hair. The normal person sheds an average of 100 hairs a day — less in the summer than in the winter.

Telogen hairs are easily identified. When pulled out, the root end is small and club shaped. The shaft is thinner and lighter because pigment does not extend into the root area. In contrast, the bulb of a growing (anagen) hair is surrounded by an extensive translucent sheath (unless broken off when plucked) that is fully pigmented.

THE HAIR is dead from scalp to tip. But as a tulip, it grows from a bulb or root that gets its nourishment from underlying blood vessels. It grows best where the "soil" (scalp) is healthy.

Pulling out a hair usually changes the growth cycle. If a resting hair in the eyebrow is plucked, the root comes to life and another hair begins to grow. But when the brow is shaved, the follicles go into the resting stage for two to three months. On the other hand, shaving the scalp or beard does not affect the growth cycle and regrowth begins shortly thereafter. But plucking the scalp or beard may throw the follicles into a 90 day resting cycle.

BRONCHI AND AIR SACS

W.T. writes: How do bronchitis and emphysema differ?

REPLY

Bronchitis is inflammation of the bronchi, characterized by coughing. Emphysema is a chronic lung disorder in which the walls of the bronchi are thickened, often as a result of long-standing bronchitis. The air sacs also have lost their elasticity. Because of overstretching, they no longer function properly. Shortness of breath and cough result. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on emphysema.

BORN WITH MURMUR

Mrs. J. writes: Our baby was born with heart murmur. Does this mean he is going to be an invalid for life?

REPLY

No. Many babies have heart murmurs but only your physician can determine whether it is an innocent murmur or comes from a congenital heart defect.

NUMB FOOT

M.R. writes: Could a minor stroke leave the sole of the foot on the affected side with a pins-and-needles sensation?

REPLY

Yes. After a stroke, sensations of numbness may occur in the extremities.

There is hereby added to Section 3.24.30 Definitions, subsection (c) which shall read as follows:

3.24.30 "(c) Mobile home space or pad shall mean each space or pad in a mobile home park designed to be used for parking a mobile home on a temporary, semi-permanent or permanent basis."

Section 3.24.50, Fees: Amount, is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.50 "FEES: AMOUNT. Every person constructing any dwelling unit in the City of San Rafael for which a park and recreation fee is required to be paid by Section 3.24.30 of this article shall pay to the City the following fees: (1) for each bedroom within each dwelling unit, $30.00 (2) for the addition of or conversion to a bedroom within an existing structure, $30.00; (3) for each room in a dwelling unit or structure that may be used as or converted to a bedroom, $30.00; (4) for each mobile home space or pad, $60.00.",

Section 3.24.60, Fees: When Payable, is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.60 "FEES: WHEN PAYABLE. Subsection (a) The fees imposed by Section 3.24.50 of this article with the exception of mobile homes shall be collected by the building inspector and shall be due and payable upon issuance of a building permit for the construction of any such dwelling unit provided, however, that there shall be a refund of such fees in the event that the building permit is not used for such construction with sixty (60) days from the date of issuance."

"Subsection (b). The fees imposed by Section 3.24.50 of this article on mobile homes shall be collected by the Building Inspector as follows:

(1) One-half of the total fee upon issuance of a building permit, provided however, that there shall be a refund of such fee in the event that the building permit is not used for such construction within sixty (60) days from the date of issuance.
(2) One-half of the total fee one (1) year after the issuance of said building permit.

Section 3.24.70. Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.70 "PARKS AND RECREATION FACILITIES FUND. There is hereby established a Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund. All of the sums collected pursuant to this article shall be deposited in said Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund and shall be used solely for the acquisition, improvement and expansion of public parks, playgrounds and/or recreation facilities only. Said sums shall be separate and distinct from all other park funds collected pursuant to any other ordinance of the City of San Rafael."

Section 3.24.80 is hereby added to Chapter 3.24 and shall read as follows:

3.24.80 "CREDIT FOR DEDICATION OF LAND. At the option of the Parks and Recreation Commission and the City Council, land may be dedicated to the City of San Rafael for park purposes in lieu of the above-mentioned fees. The amount of land to be dedicated and the amount of credit to be given, if any, shall be at the discretion of the Parks and Recreation Commission and the City Council of the City of San Rafael."

DIVISION 2. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion of this ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid or unconstitutional by the decision of any Court of competent jurisdiction, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The City Council of this City hereby declares that it would have adopted this ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more of the phrases or portions be declared invalid or unconstitutional.

DIVISION 3. This ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage in the INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael.

DIVISION 4. This ordinance shall go into effect and be in full force and operation thirty (30) days after its final passage.

Berkeley Man Treated After Fall At Park

A 23-year-old Berkeley man was treated for a bruised back at Marin General Hospital yesterday after he fell from a cliff while rock climbing Sunday near Stinson Beach State park.

Hank Keeton was injured about 4 p.m., according to Col. George H. White, Stinson Beach volunteer fire chief, when a rock hanger gave way as he climbed on the cliffs south of the beach.

Church Sets Pageant Of Season

Reviving a tradition several years old, the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley will stage a live nativity pageant three nights this week.

Presented by the youth of the church, the pageant will include shepherds, Christ's family, a cow and a pony in scenes from the Bible. The animals are being provided by the George Giannecchini family of Tennessee Valley, according to Rev. John A. MacDonald.

The pageants will be staged at 7 p.m. tonight through Thursday in front of the church, 285 Miller Avenue. Coffee and hot chocolate will be served after each performance.

The pageant was a church tradition for many years, MacDonald said, but was not held last year.

Cyclist Injured

Karen Traub, 30, of 206 Bonita Street, Sausalito, was treated at Marin General Hospital at 1:15 p.m. Sunday for bruises and cuts of the left foot suffered in a motorcycle accident in Mill Valley. Police had no report on the accident.

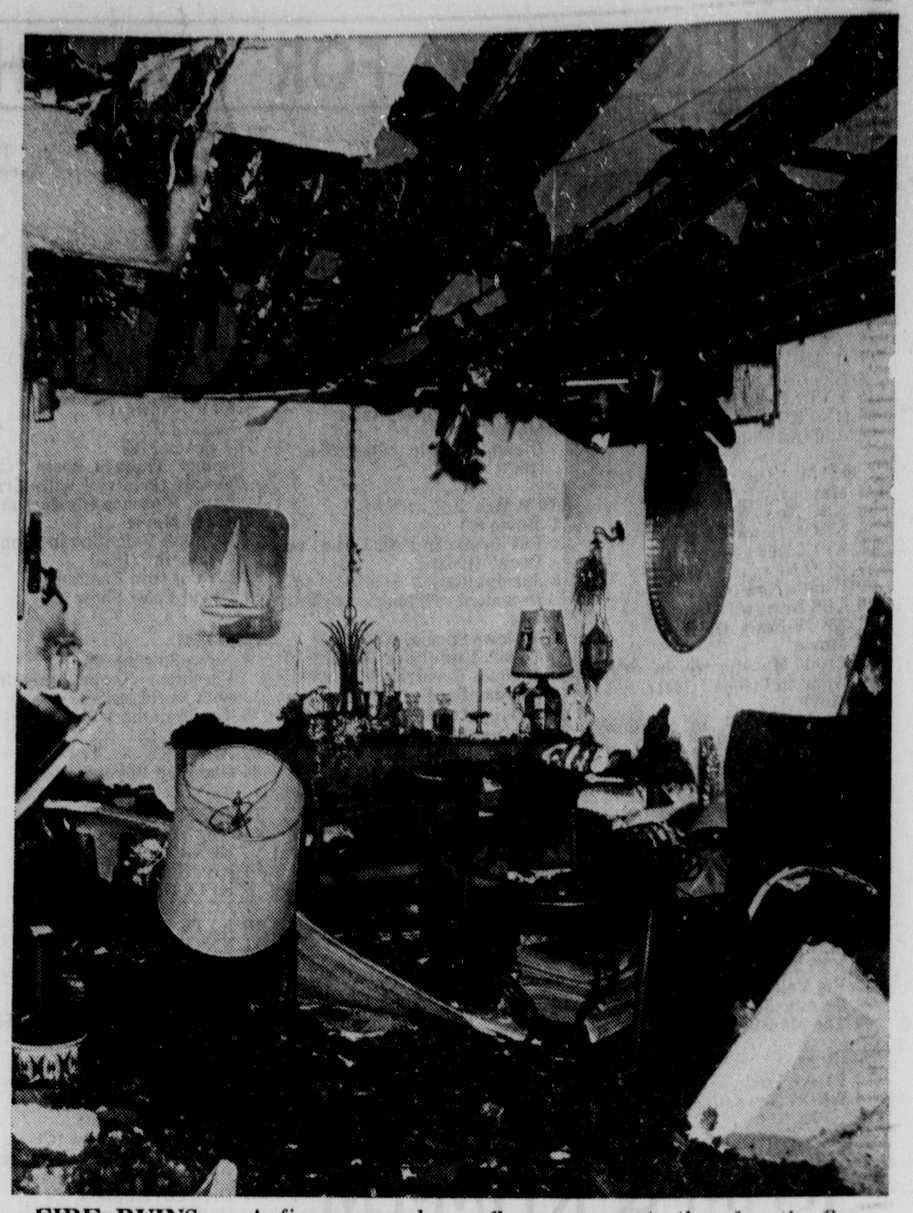
FLAMES THROUGH ROOK — A lone fireman is silhouetted against dense smoke and flame as he directs water on the roof of a blazing apartment house at 108 Professional Center Parkway, San Rafael. Firemen battled two hours to control the blaze, which broke out before dawn today, routing 75 occupants. Total damage was estimated at about $50,000.



FIRE RUINS — A fire-ravaged roof and jumbled furnishings made a shambles of the apartment of Fanya Wegner after flames swept the fourth floor and attic of the 40-unit dwelling. Seventy-five persons were routed, but no one was injured.

Fire Victims Put It Back Together

By JEFF GREER

Still numb from the shock of a raging predawn fire that routed them from their beds today, nearly 40 families living in the Park Towers apartments began trying to piece their lives back together today. (See story, page 1)

Red Cross officials reported they were trying to reach the burned-out tenants at midmorning, but many of them had gone to work or to stay with friends.

William L. Braden, social service director for the Marin Chapter of Red Cross, explained that residents who were made homeless by the blaze should report to his office in San Rafael to make arrangements for housing, clothing and food. "The help will be grants, not loans," he said.

Braden said at least the two lower floors of the four-story structure on Professional Center Parkway probably would be livable, after utilities were restored, "but I don't know how long that will take."

Most tenants agreed with Mrs. Christopher Cupples, who lived with her husband and two cats in Apartment 312, one floor below the blaze. "I can't believe how lucky we were," to survive, she said as she clutched a wide-eyed cat in her arms.

Joyce Coniglio, in whose apartment the blaze started, sobbed as firemen led her back into the rooms more than three hours after she fled for her life.

"Oh, my God," she said, looking in bewilderment at the apartment. Its roof was gaping open to the gray sky, everything within was ashes.

Firemen had to lead her by the hand to show her where the various rooms had been, then helped her search the wet ashes below the bathroom cabinet where her jewelry had been.

She found and slipped onto her finger a blackened, distorted ring, then picked her way out through the hall strewn with fire hoses, inches deep in water and muck. Friends took her away in a car.

One second floor resident, anxiously waiting outside, first asked the time, and then in a worried voice explained "I've got to drive to work, but I can't because my contact lenses are still inside. I wonder when they'll let me back in. Don't put my name in the paper; I just got divorced and I don't want her to know where I live."

Mrs. Hannah Hughes of Apt. 211 and her two daughters sat in the Northgate Convalescent Home next door, where the fire refugees were given warmth and coffee while firemen fought the blaze.

"Did you ever hear an alarm like that one?" Mrs. Hughes asked. "It was horrible; I almost had a heart attack" when the building's fire warning system was triggered.

She said she was waiting for friends to arrive to take her family to a nearby home.

"It's the third fire we've been through," Mrs. Hughes said. The family had escaped safely from a fire in an apartment building on Nova Albion Way last year, then another small blaze in the Park Towers in Mid-October. Her daughters sat nervously in the rest home's lobby, petting a neighbor's dog that had been rescued from the fire. They were in nightclothes and stocking feet.

"Are they letting anyone back in?" one asked. "We need our shoes."

"I'm worried about my library books. I had a whole pile of them to take back," the other girl said.

After firemen let the residents reenter the building, it became a dark, steaming eerie hive. People were shuffling in the dark — the only light was through smoke-darkened outside windows, and the hallways were ink-black.

Below the fourth floor, water was dripping through ceilings and running down hallways. Occupants fumbled in the dark to dress in street clothes and save Christmas presents and other belongings.

The Plummer family concentrated first on finding their cats. A fireman helped coax one from beneath a bed; the other was safe in a closet.

Harriett Woll of Apt. 209 said she was relieved to hear that the actual fire was confined to the top floor. "I had no insurance," she said. It was a common plaint among most of the apartment dwellers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patrick, the apartment building's managers, said they were in the same predicament. "I was going to go right down and get insurance after the other fire — but then I decided it couldn't happen again," Mrs. Patrick reported.

"Isn't this a helluva way to spend Christmas?" commented the man who needed his contact lenses.

"Yeah, if they don't let me stay there, I haven't got any place else to go," agreed another young man.

None of the apartment dwellers who lingered at the fire scene had any firm plans for the immediate future. Most said they were simply waiting to see how much damage their apartments suffered before deciding what to do.

San Rafael Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci said he did not know how long it would be before tenants could reoccupy their apartments. Relief fire crews were busy mopping up water on the lower floors. The top floor was uninhabitable, the chief said.

Early in the battle against the fire, all electricity and gas were turned off; firemen hunted to find valves to shut off streams of hot water pouring from broken pipes in the Coniglio apartment.

Shortly before 8:30 a.m., Pacific Gas and Electric Co. crews restored electricity to the building's ground floor.

A Christmas tree in the lobby suddenly lighted up.

"Merry Christmas," murmured a fireman standing outside.

TELLS OF HAVOC — Joyce Coniglio, in whose apartment the blaze started, tells Fire Marshall Kenneth Mazza of her efforts to alert other residents. "I just rang on doors," she said.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

18 Die In Apartment Explosion

PARIS (UPI) — An explosion so violent it blew residents and decorated Christmas trees through the windows, blasted a 13-story apartment building in the northwestern suburb of Argenteuil today.

Two hours after the blast officials said the provisional toll was 18 persons killed and 106 injured, many of them seriously.

Police said pending an official investigation it appeared the explosion originated from a fire in the gas-fired central heating installation of the building in the midst of a densely-populated low-cost housing project.

The blast shattered windows in surrounding apartment buildings for several hundred yards. The frame of the building held, however, while the blast roared upward apparently demolishing interior walls and floors.

Firemen said they took at least 100 injured victims to the Argenteuil Hospital while others were taken to other civil and military hospitals in the region.

Biggest Use Of Gas Is Recorded

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Because of low temperatures, Northern Californians used more gas to keep warm last Friday than on any other day in history, Pacific Gas & Electric Co. reports.

During that day, the firm's 2.3 million gas customers used 3.766 billion cubic feet of gas.

Temperatures reached the 30s and 40s.

DOG IN ARMS — A fireman carries a dog down a ladder from a fourth floor balcony shortly after flames erupted in the modern apartment building. Three persons also were rescued by early-arriving firemen.

Niner Expects Good Show From Ex-Mates

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Big, rugged Earl Edwards is expecting the best from Billy Kilmer and Clifton McNeil next Sunday in Candlestick Park in the playoff game between the 49ers and Washington Redskins.

Edwards, 49ers' 6-foot-6, 262-pound defensive right tackle, knows that former 49er players such as quarterback Kilmer and flanker McNeil reach for "that little something extra" when they go against their ex-teammates.

"George Allen (Washington head coach) has a way of winning ball games, he's got a winning attitude," Edwards told members of the Marin Chapter, 49er Goal Rushers Club yesterday at Terra Linda's Holiday Inn. "There is a 100 per cent improvement in that team now," he said referring to the spark inserted by Allen since going from the Los Angeles Rams to the Redskins." Edwards said it should be quite a battle Sunday at Candlestick.

EDWARDS IS in his third year with the 49ers after playing two years of college ball at University of Wichita and then two years in the Canadian League with the Edmonton Eskimos in Alberta. He explained that the rule differences in Canadian football (such as wider field and a yard of space between the offensive and defensive lines) make the game better for the smaller, quick linemen.

When asked his views about 49ers' reserve fullback Larry Schreiber who has come on strong the last two games, Edwards said he and the other blacks on the team kid Kentucky born Schreiber quite a bit.

"Somebody told him he must have been struck with a sickle cell when he was very young because he runs like a brother," joked Edwards.

The big linemen, nattily dressed in tan suede jacket and beige slacks, said that guard Elmer Collett is probably the team's biggest personal cheer leader. "During a game Elmer is always yelling and screaming," he laughed about the Mill Valley lineman who plays on the special team.

FRANK NUNLEY is another one of those hyperactive players. Edwards said that when the Niners' middle linebacker runs out to the field before a game he usually bangs the pads of the first teammate he reaches on the sidelines.

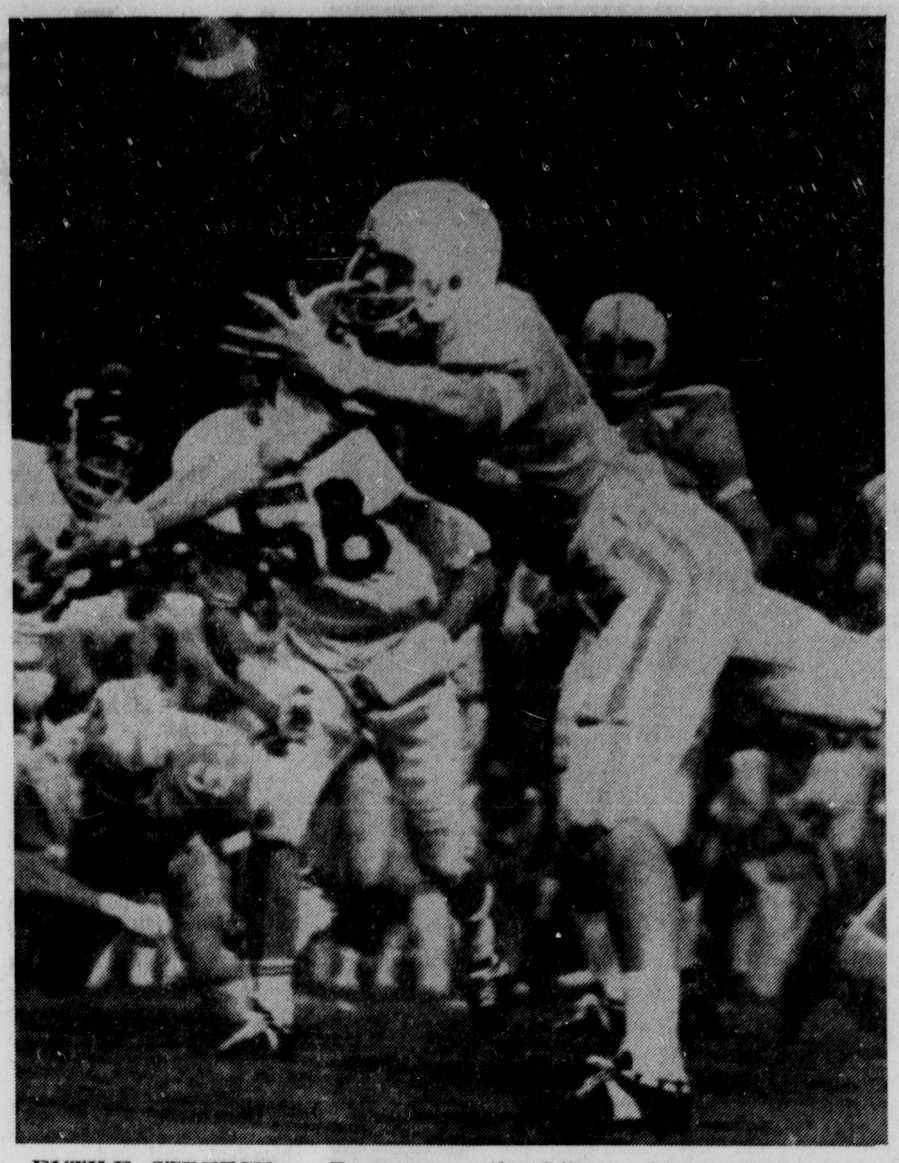
"He really gets fired up," said Edwards. "One time he hit Bruce Taylor so hard on the shoulders he knocked him on the bench. Bruce came over to me and asked, 'What's the matter with Frank?' He thought Nunley was really mad at him."

About the 49er quarterback picture, Edwards said, "There were moments early this year when I thought this might be John Brodie's last year. But now I think he's more like a bottle of fine wine." When Brodie does hang them up, Earl said he felt there would be quite a battle for the job between Steve Spurrier and taxi squad member Joe Reed. "That Reed is a born leader," said No. 74.

PLAYING ONE of his best games of the season last Sunday in the title-clinching 31-27 victory over the Detroit Lions, Edwards made three unassisted tackles and helped out in eight other stops. He was the first to hit quarterback Greg Landry on a fourth down and inches to go play in the fourth quarter, which gave the ball to the 49ers on the Detroit 40-yard line. Nine plays later Brodie ran 10 yards for a winning touchdown.

In explaining that defensive play, Edwards said, "Charlie Krueger (defensive left tackle) and I were pinching in, expecting Landry to carry. We just got lucky."

When asked which 49er players he expected to make all-league this season, Edwards named center Forrest Blue, guard Woody Peoples and running back Ken Willard.



FUTILE STRETCH — Tennessee end Gary Theiler made an all-out effort to reach a pass against Arkansas last night in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, while Razorback defender Ron Revard (58) watched the pass fall incomplete.

IN LIBERTY BOWL

Late Tennessee Vol Kick Defeats Arkansas, 14-13

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—It all boiled down to a battle of talented toes and a disputed fumble in the heart-stopping Liberty Bowl Monday night.

Tennessee's George Hunt tied on the mantle of hero when his extra point kick defeated Arkansas, 14-13, with only 1:56 to play following a 17-yard run by fullback Curt Watson.

Arkansas' Billy McClard, the top kick-scorer in the history of college football (Hunt is number two) packed up his disappointment and went duck hunting with razorback quarterback Joe Ferguson. Ferguson, who completed 18 out of 28 passes for 200 yards, found little consolation in being named the game's most valuable player.

TWO BOOTS

McClard had kicked field goals of 19 and 30 yards in the final period to give Arkansas a 13-7 lead and an apparent upset with time running out. In fact, Arkansas' defense had so stifled ninth-ranked Tennessee that it didn't seem to matter when McClard had a 48-yard field goal nullified by a penalty with less than five minutes to play.

Suddenly, Tennessee had the ball in Arkansas territory for the first time in the second half with less than three minutes to play when Volunteer tackle Carl Witherspoon recovered a fumble by Jon Richardson on the Arkansas 37. Three plays later Watson scored and Hunt kicked his second extra point.

SURPRISE

"Tom Reed (of Arkansas) jumped on that fumble and had it under his chest," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles of the recovery credited to Witherspoon. "He even handed the ball to the official. I couldn't believe it when they said Tennessee's ball.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of," he added, "We played well enough to win."

"I handed the ball to the official," said Reed. "I couldn't believe it when he said 'Orange'."

RECORD CROWD

A record crowd of 51,410 watched the two teams— playing for the first time since Tennessee won 14-2 back in 1907 —battle to a 7-7 deadlock.

Tennessee scored first on a two-yard plunge by Bill Rudder in the first quarter to cap a 55yard drive in eight plays. A key pass intereference penalty against Arkansas' Clark Irwin at the Arkansas 22 kept the drive alive.

COMPLETES SIX

Then Ferguson, a 6-2 junior from Shreveport, La., took over in the second quarter. He completed six consecutive passes in a drive that covered 66 yards and threw 36 yards to flanker Jim Hodge for the score.

Not only was Ferguson named the most valuable offensive player, but Arkansas safety Louis Campbell was named the most valuable defensive player with three interceptions to his credit. Two of them led to McClard's field goals in the second half.

"It was a nice honor," said Campbell. "We won everything but the game."

Young Tennessee Coach Bill Battle said his Volunteers made too many costly offensive mistakes.

"But we still played well enough to win when we had a real opportunity."

DUNN SAYS

And Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn said in the steamy Volunteer dressing room that he was ready for his ham. He bet a ham with Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers on the game but Bumpers said that if Tennessee won Dunn would have to go into the Arkansas woods and catch his own Razorback hog.

"I'm ready to go hog hunting," said Dunn.

49ers Like Kilmer, But Won't Show It In Sunday's Playoff

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One of the favorite guys of almost every member of the San Francisco 49ers is Billy Kilmer, the gutty player who was once told after an auto crash he might never walk again but came back to star in pro ball.

The only trouble is that Kilmer is no longer with the 49ers. He'll be quarterbacking the Washington Redskins in Sunday's big playoff battle at Candlestick Park.

JIM JOHNSON

Jimmy Johnson, former teammate at both UCLA and San Francisco, commented Monday that "Bill's a helluva great guy. We were together at UCLA and with the 49ers. But the 49ers have a job to do and he plays for the Redskins now. We'll talk to him in a very friendly way—after the game."

Johnson was awarded defensive player of the year honors by the 49er boosters Monday. Other awards went to Vic Washington as offensive star and John Isenbarger as number one on special teams.

Johnson has been playing with a cast on his right wrist since about midseason.

'BETTER NOW'

"The doctor told me he could fit me with a cast so that I would risk no further injury," said Johnson, "and that I could keep playing if I could stand the pain. I wasn't able to use the arm much the first couple of weeks, but it's better now."

Asked about the zone defense, the all-league performer said he preferred the man-to-man and had to curb his instinct to "follow my man," but that he was getting used to the zone.

Coach Dick Nolan commented that he thought the 49ers had a better team than last year's 10-31 champs that beat Minnesota and lost to Dallas in the playoffs.

'IMPROVED'

"Our running game has improved tremendously," he said, "(and) our defensive team is improved because of added experience and so have our special teams. Our problem this year was turnovers and mistakes, but we have reduced them in recent games."

The 49ers were made 5½ point favorites over the Redskins Monday.

In other playoff games, Dallas is favored by one over Minnesota; Kansas City three over Miami; and Baltimore by four over Cleveland.

The Redskins deep pass threat will be Clifton McNeil — like Billy Kilmer, an ex-49er.

Meanwhile Washington Redskin star receiver Charlie Taylor was firmly ruled out today for active duty even though he had shed the cast from a broken ankle and joined the team's first workouts for the Sunday showdown.

'NO CHANCE'

"There's no chance for Taylor to be activated," Redskin Coach George Allen told newsmen. "The cast was removed but he's not ready. He's still walking on a cane and even though he'll do some running with us this week, I wouldn't take a chance on reinjury."

Taylor, a wide receiver of All-Pro status, broke a bone in his ankle against Kansas City Oct. 24. At that point, the Redskins were leading the Eastern Division of the NFL with five victories against no losses.

FAILED OFF

Since Taylor's injury, Washington tailed off to a record of four wins, four losses and a tie and wound up second to the Dallas Cowboys in their division but still qualified for the playoffs because of the best second place record in the National Football Conference.

Allen said he planned no personnel changes in the lineup for the clash with the Forty Niners and reported no major injuries from the 20-13 loss to the Cleveland Browns in the regular season finale.

'PREFER NINERS'

He also said he shared the opinion of a number of Redskin players that they felt better about facing the Forty Niners rather than the Los Angeles Rams whom they dealt a 38-24 defeat eight days ago.

Allen told newsmen he agreed "it is hard to beat any team twice in one season, let alone twice in less than three weeks."

As head coach of the Rams before coming to Washington this season, Allen chalked up a record of six wins, three losses and a tie against the Forty Niners plus five preseason victories as well.

Asked what type of game he envisioned against San Francisco, Allen replied in timehonored coaching phraseology: "I wish I knew. I know we're going to have to play a great game and not make mistakes."

Novato Tops San Mateo Quintet

Novato High School's man-on-man defense choked off San Mateo in the second half and the Hornets rallied for a 63-51 non-league basketball victory yesterday at San Mateo.

"We played much better defense in the second half," said coach Jim Caranica. "Dan Del Rose did an exceptional job on offense for us as well."

Del Rose scored 14 points, his best production of the year. Marty Moroski led Novato's scorers with 21. Tom Conklin added nine and Willie Barnes eight.

Novato (5-6) trailed at halftime, 35-28, but outscored the Peninsula team 35-16 after intermission, grabbing the lead at the tail end of the third quarter. The second-half surge featured balanced scoring by Moroski (eight points), Del Rose (seven), Barnes (six), and Conklin (five).

The game originally was scheduled to be played tomorrow, but later was switched.

San Mateo	15	20	8	8	— 51

Novato — Conklin 4-1-9, Conte 1-0-2, Barnes 4-0-8, Moroski 7-7-21, Gilliam 1-1-3, Powell 2-0-4, Del Rose 6-2-14, High 0-2-2. Totals: 25-13-63.

San Mateo — Viehweig 7-4-18, Lindsey 2-2-6, Giffin 5-1-11, Paton 4-4-12, Eitel 1-0-2, Yamaguma 1-0-2. Totals: 20-11-51.

Marinaro, Allen Lead Shrine Cast

If you're going to the Shrine East-West football game Dec. 31 at Candlestick Park in San Francisco, it might be a good idea to take along a slide rule and an adding machine.

Some of the college players involved in that game turned in astonishing statistics during the regular season, including nine who set national single-game highs for 1971.

Eric Allen of Michigan State, for example, ran for 350 yards in a game against Purdue. Not only is that a season high, but it's a National Collegiate Athletic Association record.

Durable Ed Marinaro of Cornell, the Maxwell Award winner, once scored 32 points in a game. Marinaro carried 47 times in a game, as did Dave Schilling of Oregon.

John Reaves of Florida, the NCAA's total-yardage champion for a career, completed 33 passes in a tilt against Miami. Brian Sipe of San Diego State threw for 439 yards against Utah State, with his flanker, Tom Reynolds, grabbing 290 yards worth. Mike Siani of Villanova caught five touchdown passes in one clash.

Even the special teams have a statistical wonder. Marv Bateman, Utah, once boomed a 90-yard punt.

Tickets are still available at Macy's in San Rafael. All seats are $6.50. Game time is 1 p.m.

Golden State Warriors Host New York Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors get a chance tonight to break a deadlocked series this season with the New York Knicks, champions of the National Basketball Association two years ago.

The Warriors are 1-1 with the Knicks in the two games played in New York. Golden State won the last meeting, 112-103.

The Knicks are in the Eastern Conference Atlantic Division, trailing Boston by only 2 ½ games, but aren't dominating the league as they were two years ago.

Their primary problem has been the loss of center Willie Reed, who has been out for more than a month with a bad knee. Jerry Lucas, who was traded to the Knicks from the Warriors for Cazzie Russell, has been filling in for Reed and averaging 15 points per game.

The Warriors, in third place in the Pacific division, have had their own problems this month.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Injuries Cited In Fall Of Raiders From Top

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders are trying to forget the 1971 football season, but they still may be asking themselves why they failed to make it a fifth straight playoff game.

The answer may be the loss of wide receiver Warren Wells and injuries to two key backs, Hewritt Dixon and Charlie Smith.

"What would happen to Kansas City if you took away Otis Taylor, Ed Pocolak and Wendell Hayes?" Raiders managing general partner Al Davis asked rhetorically. "What would happen to the 49ers if you took away Gen Washington, Ken Willard and Vic Washington?"

Oakland lost Wells, a deep pass threat, before the season started when his probation was revoked and he was sent to a state prison.

Wells had caught 36 passes in three years. His replacements, Rod Sherman, Eldridge Dickey and Drew Buie, caught four combined this season.

Smith and Dixon were out most of the season. Smith is a pass threat too, and may have caused the Raiders to change to a power running game with Marv Hubbard and Pete Banazak.

Seals Receive Day Off; Face Hawks Tomorrow

OAKLAND (UPI) —Logic dictates that the California Golden Seals, an expansion team in the National Hockey League, should be winning against similar latecomers and trying to break even against the establishment clubs.

But the Seals, who are resting comfortably in third place in the NHL Western Division, have been giving the top clubs plenty of trouble.

Of the Seals' 10 wins this season, six have come against the tougher teams. They have beaten Boston twice and Toronto and Chicago once, while beating Detroit twice and tying the Red Wings.

In their last outing Sunday night, the Seals got off to a bad start against Montreal, but managed a 3-3 tie with the Stanley Cup champions.

The Seals, who hold down the third spot with 27 points, two over Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, are off today. They get another chance against the top club Wednesday night when they host the Chicago Black Hawks, the West division leaders, in the Oakland Coliseum arena.

Mill Valley Youth Group Obtains Boat

The Mill Valley Youth Commission has gained its first sailboat for use in a sailing course for Edna Maguire School students in Mill Valley.

Robert S. Griswold, of 506 Fawn Drive, San Anselmo, read about the commission's drive to raise money for boats and donated a 17-foot Catamaran to the panel Friday, according to Commissioner Jack B. Benjamin.

The boat, with three sails and a trailer, is valued at $3,000, Benjamin said.

The sailing program, under which Edna MaGuire students earn physical education credits, already has use of seven other boats owned by the Mill Valley Sea and Ski Club.

Virginia Wade Joins San Francisco Field

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Virginia Wade, Britain's top-seeded women's tennis star, will make her first San Francisco appearance Jan. 12-15 as a touring pro in the British Motors Pro Tennis Championships.

The 26-year-old from Sittingbourne, England, joins two other top-rated players, Billie Jean King of Long Beach and Francoise Durr of France, in the $17,000 event.

ROSE BOWL

Michigan Coach Changes Plans

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Coach Glenn "Bo" Schembechler says he isn't going to make the same mistake this time that he made two years ago in preparing the Michigan Wolverines for the Rose Bowl game.

Michigan lost the 1970 game 10-3 to the University of Southern California and Schembechler blames himself for getting the team to its peak a week before the game.

"We were not as sharp in our second week of practice," he told a news conference Monday after the Wolverines arrived here. "We/lost our edge and I don't intend to make that mistake this time."

Schembechler was a pregame casualty on New Year's Day, 1970, suffering a mild heart attack before the encounter and missing the contest.

The Wolverines meet Stanford University on New Year's Day and Schembechler showed his respect for the Indians by declaring the odds of 12 1-2 points favoring Michigan were entirely out of line.

Schembechler candidly admitted he stressed defense more than offense and would not hesitate to move a good offensive player to the defensive squad if he thought it would better the defense.

But Schembechler said Michigan's running attack was the reason why the team compiled an 11-0 record and that was the reason why he switched to the Wishbone formation this season.

It took the Stanford Indians only one practice session to suffer a key injury that may keep split end Eric Cross out of the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day.

The Indians assembled at this beach city Monday and held a single workout late in the afternoon during which Cross suffered a pulled hamstring muscle. It was a reinjury of the hamstring that had sidelined him during much of the season.

Cross, a junior, had been a key member of the victorious 1970 Stanford team which went to the Rose Bowl last New Year's Day and upset Ohio State.

Ralston indicated he expected to put his team through several hard days of practice, announcing he had scheduled double workouts Wednesday and Thursday.

Novato Hunter Wins The Prize

By AL GIDDINGS

I guess the hottest news I received this past week was from Rob Raab of Novato. He and three other Novatans — Fritz Mulendorf, Dick Zant and Bob Frye — had recently returned from Nevada where they had all got their bucks, all nice four-pointers. The big deal was that Raab had also won the grand prize given away each year by the Commerical Hotel at Elko, Nev., in their annual buck derby. The grand prize was a four wheel drive International Scout! How about that?

SPEAKING ABOUT derbies — Eddie Richardson of Inverness still retains his lead in the Tomales Bay bass derby with a 19-pound striper. The contest ends Dec. 31. I'm going to try it some night this week, but I wish it would warm up a little out there.

Kay Schneider caught another salmon Saturday in Tomales Bay off Millerton Point. That's about his 19th. I checked the anglers along White House Pool Sunday in Inverness. I was discussing this year's runs of salmon with Ciero Giamona and Glenn Davis, both of Point Reyes. They really surprised me. Ciero has caught 19 fish and Glenn 14. Both have fished the White House Pool area since the season opened. Ciero has two steelheads, both in the 12-pound class, taken this past week. I have to believe him! He gave me the roe. Both anglers have been using a Meps No. 3 silver spinner and both fish everyday, even if it's just during their lunch hour.

I HAD AN invite to go fishing last week to the "R" Ranch located on the fish-hook bend of the Klamath River. Alvin Guthertz of San Rafael, one of the public relations men for the project, took Robert Schwartz of Sausalito and Irwin Herlihy of Novato up for a show of the ranch property and some fishing. I coauldn't make the trip, but hear that the boys did catch some steelhead. Under construction and bonded for completion and use before Dec. 31, 1972 on the 5,000 acres are 857 campsites, a swimming pool complex with two teen centers, tennis courts, a lodge on the river, stables, corrals and about 50 horses for riding. It sounds good and even has lots of hunting possibilities. If you are interested, call Alvin Guthertz at 988 Market St. in San Francisco.

I DID TAKE a ride with George Goertz and Gerald Pierce of Novato, and what a ride! George wanted me to give it a go hunting ducks from his 3-man skullboat. I met them at 7 a.m. at the Black Point launching ramp. A skullboat is a low-riding, camouflaged boat in which the front two men either sit up or lie flat on their back, while the third man towards the rear of the boat, propels it forward by an over and under movement of an oar that sticks straight out the stern of the craft. George used a small motor to get us out on the bay off the Sonoma shoreline. We were able to sit up while this went on, but after that, while George skulled, both Gerald and I were flat on our backs.

We made a number of "sneaks" finally getting within range, and George would whisper "Take 'em!" By three o'clock we had eight northern bluies (Greater Scaup) and two canvasbacks, but George kept skulling. By 4:45, I couldn't move to even get up, I was so stiff. Lying on a flat hard board for 10 hours was too much for me. We finally started in to shore, arriving about 7:15 p.m. Cold! My legs were frozen tooth picks! One time I looked back and there was George whistling a happy tune. He was in his glory and I couldn't help think of the Glenn Ford movie in which Ford played the last cowboy. George, who is almost 60, could have been the last skuller!

As we hit the dock, I asked Gerald what he thought of skulling. He whispered, "It's like someone pounding your finger with a hammer — you are sure glad when it's over!" Of course Enos Foster, my neighbor, was waiting for me when I got home. He thinks he's pretty smart just getting pond ducks lately on his skulling trips, so he says, "Pretty nice birds, Al, and they don't smell too bad either!" Of course he was kidding, but I did smell those bay birds a couple of times just to make sure. That rat!

FRANK SUE of Corte Madera spent 25 minutes landing a 61-pound sturgeon on his little ol' fly rod to take the lead in the Nesei Club derby in San Francisco. He was a happy boy!

I saw Rich Bloom formerly of Point Reyes, with a nice pheasant over at St. Vincent's last week. I told him I would put his name in the news with his one bird so his Pt. Reyes friends would know he was still around. He said, "Don't say one bird — tell'em I had ten!" And so it goes.

Jim Fregosi Trade Gets Mixed Views

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) —The phone rang and Jim Fregosi picked it up.

Tommy Helms, happy and full of the devil as always, was on the other end calling long distance.

"Hey, Jim," Houston's new second baseman greeted the Mets' new third baseman, "what was it with you? I got traded because of a 'personality conflict,' why did they let you go?"

Jim Fregosi laughed at the way Tommy Helms put it.

"With me," he said into the mouthpiece, "I think they think I'm an old man."

FIVE TRADED

That's the part of the four-forone deal, in which the Mets got Fregosi from the California Angels for pitcher Nolan Ryan, outfielder Leroy Stanton, catcher Francisco "Paquin" Estrada and rookie righthander Don Rose, which rankled Fregosi.

"Being traded didn't upset me that much," he says. "What teed me off was that they said I was old. I'm not old. I'm only 29, and I think I can play for quite a long time yet."

The Mets are counting on it or else they made themselves a bum deal.

RESERVATIONS

Among those who have some reservations about the swap is Jim Fregosi's 7-year-old son, James, Jr.

"He's happy to go to New York and meet new friends," his father smiles, "but he was talking with some people in school and was told 'they talk funny in New York.'"

Much of the New York press was critical of the deal. Critical from the Mets' point of view. They felt the Mets gave up too much for an infielder who has been around awhile and hit only .233 for the Angels this year.

The Mets throw out this year. They insist it wasn't any kind of barometer on the real Fregosi.

HIT .186

He hit .186 playing with a small growth on his right foot until the All-Star break. He then underwent surgery at Mayo Brothers Clinic after which he looked far more like his old All-Star self, winding up the second half of the season at a better than .330 clip. That's the Jim Fregosi the Mets dealt for, says Bob Scheffing, the general manager.

Nonetheless, the general sentiment among the New York press has gotten back to Fregosi. One or two writers who called him told him "you know, of course, the Mets were after a big hitter like Santo."

Jim Fregosi knows all about that.

"I wasn't in that league so I can't say much about it," he says regarding the Mets' unsuccessful attempts to land the Cubs third baseman. "All I can say is I think I can play and help the ball club."

MIXED MAIL

In the Angels' front office, the mail has been running about 50-50 over the deal. Some people don't like it; about as many do.

Harry Dalton, the Angels' new general manager, phoned Fregosi before he dealt him but was unable to reach him. The two haven't had a chance to talk personally since but Dalton has written Fregosi outlining his reasons for making the deal.

"It certainly wasn't because we considered Jim old," says Dalton. "I never mentioned that word at all, he did. The reasons we made the deal, as I explained to Jim in the letter, is that we were able to strengthen and deepen the pitching staff; add a young power hitting prospect in the outfield, and deepen our catching staff. In addition, it means we now have enough pitching to put some of it together for another trade."

Reasoning like that is difficult to fault.

But I like Archie Fregosi's reasoning better.

FATHER SAYS

Archie Fregosi is Jim's 58-year-old papa. He tosses some fine Italian in with his English and nobody ever sticks him because he knows his baseball along with everything else.

Shortly after the deal was announced, Jim called his father, who runs a thriving little delicatessen shop in San Francisco, and the conversation went something like this:

"Dad, I just got traded to the New York Mets."

"Fine. Now I can go to Candlestick Park when they come here and watch you play."

"That's right."

"By the way, Jimmy, how many players did they get for you?"

"Four."

"That's good. As long as they got more than one . . ."

Trevino Gets Top Pro Golf Honor

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI)—Lee Trevino was honored as the 1971 Pro Golfer of the Year by West Coast golf writers and sportscasters at a dinner Monday.

Trevino received 63 votes from the Golf writers and broadcasters while Arnold Palmer was runner-up with nine votes.

The honor was accorded Trevino for his feat in becoming the first man to win the American, Canadian and British opens in one year. Despite an appendectomy in August which sidelined him for several tournaments, Trevino earned $231,201 in 1971, second to Jack Nicklaus, who won $244,290.

Nicklaus had been honored by the group as their choice for Golfer of the Year in 1970. Orville Moody was the 1969 winner and Billy Casper received the award in 1968.

Trevino's charitable work was cited by the writers and broadcasters who pointed out he had donated large portions of his winnings to orphanages, caddy funds and scholarships throughout the world.

Although Trevino was unable to attend the dinner, he addressed the group by telephone and said his objectives for next year were to attend fewer banquets and use a six wood instead of a two or three iron.

Trevino said he would miss five tournaments in 1972 prior to the U.S. Open. He listed them as the Phoenix, Jacksonville, Houston, New Orleans and possibly the Atlanta opens. He said the reason was he would be helping build a radium therapy center in his home town of El Paso, Tex. His mother died this year of cancer.

But Trevino said he would play the Doral Open and the Masters tournament whose course he had said was not suited to his game.

Troy Tips Iowa State; USF Falls

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The championship-caliber basketball teams prove themselves by winning against tough competition on the road, which is why Southern California is back among the nation's elite cage powers today.

After winning the Jayhawk Classic last weekend, the Trojans became the only one of seven travelling Coast quintents to win Monday when they sweated out an 89-86 win at Iowa State.

USC BREEZES

USC breezed to a 55-38 lead and then hung on behind the shooting of star guard Paul Westphal, who wound up with 30 points.

Arizona State, the team that beat USC, hosted Fresno State and took the 95-75 win although Jerry Pender of the losers hit 21. The Bulldogs went without starting guards Clarence Metcalf and Charles Bailey, left home for disciplinary reasons.

REAL GO

USF gave it a real go at New Mexico State but lost in overtime 91-84. Six-foot-9 Kevin Restani of the Dons outplayed 7-foot Roland Grant in the pivot to keep the Bay Area team in the game until the extra stanza.

San Jose State, which hasn't even been winning them at home too often played surprisingly well at powerhouse Creighton before losing 70-59.

CAL POLY

Cal Poly SLO took a 105-75 drubbing at Northern Illinois and San Francisco State was nudged at Cleveland State 72-71 although Gary Bradford had 21 for the losers.

Other scores: UC San Diego 81 Sonoma State 65, Redlands 75 Dominguez State 75, South Alabama 76 Arizona 66, Eastern Oregon 93 College of Idaho 70, Lewis and Clark 90 Victoria 53, Hayward State 88 Southern Oregon 85 (overtime), Azusa 81 George Fox 75, Great Falls 84, Southern Utah 82.

Stanford finds itself at Princeton in a game tonight.

Gabriel In Surgery

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Roman Gabriel, veteran quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams, was to have surgery today at St. John's Hospital to repair ligament damage in his right knee.

The surgery was scheduled by Dr. Dan Levinthal, the team's orthopedic specialist, who said it would correct an injury Gabriel suffered early in the season.

Gabriel, a 10-year veteran from North Carolina State, had the same knee operated on after the 1970 season for removal of torn cartilage.

Despite the injury, Gabriel appeared in every game the Rams played this season. Los Angeles finished with an 8-5-1 record, closing out the the schedule Sunday with a 23-14 win over Pittsburgh.

SEATTLE — Hugh McElhenny, former University of Washington and San Francisco 49er star, says a domed stadium is the top priority for getting a National Football League Franchise for Seattle.

It's my understanding that the NFL wouldn't give a city a franchise without a public stadium," said McElhenny. "I'm sure we'd have to use the University of Washington Stadium as an interim facility if we get a franchise for 1973."

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — The frustrations of trying to shake off the effects of corrective arm surgery caused quarterback Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers to lose his cool and take a swing at an exuberant fan after Sunday's loss to Miami.

It was an unexpected reaction from Starr, noted as one of the gentlemen of professional football.

"He wanted my chin strap," Starr said. "I told him no, but then he reached for it. So I hit him."

The incident occurred as Starr and the Packers went to the locker room after a 27-6 loss to Miami.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — More than 50 college football players from throughout the nation began practice today for the 34th annual Blue-Gray football game Dec. 28.

The South squad for the annual charity game was beefed up Monday with the addition of Solomon Freelon, a 256-pound guard from Grambling.

The North offense got a boost with the addition of John Henley, who finished the year as Missouri's all-time leading pass receiver.

FOXBORO, Mass. — There is a good likelihood of a 10 to 20 per cent turnover in the personnel of the New England Patriots in the off-season, according to General Manager Upton Bell.

At least three of the players on the trading block are common knowledge-Ron Sellers, Mike Taliaferro and Ed Philpott.

Auto Racing

NEW YORK — Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., was one of five repeaters named yesterday to the 1971 All-American Racing team.

Joining Donohue, a 34-year-old engineer who won eight of his 11 Sports Car Club of America Trans-Am races this year, were Don "Big Daddy" Garlits, a drag racing veteran from Seffner, Fla.; Nascar Grand National Champion Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C.; Ronnie Sox, a drag racing champion from Burlington, S.C.; and Parnelli Jones, former Indianapolis 500 winner from Palos Verdes.

Named for the first time were George Follmer, a road racer from Arcadia; Peter Revson, the Can-Am Challenge Cup winner from Redondo Beach; Joe Leonard, USAC National Driving champion and California 500 winner from San Jose; Bobby Allison, the NASCAR superspeedway king from Hueytown, Ala.; and Ray Elder, veteran NASCAR driver from Garuthers.

Donohue, as top vote-getter, will receive the Jerry Titus Memorial Award. Al Unser, lastyear's award winner, failed to make the 1971 team.

Golf

ATLANTA — Only members of the immediate family gathered Monday around the Carnation-covered casket under a faded green canopy for the burial of golfing immortal Bobby Jones.

The short ceremony was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John D. Stapleton, who had baptized the 69-year-old Jones into the Romand Catholic faith only three days before his death Saturday.

U.S. Olympic Team Wins Praise Of Top Skaters

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Olympic veteran Neil Blatchford and schoolgirl Anne Henning, a pair of brilliant skaters from Northbrook, Ill., head the United States Winter Olympic team picked Monday and called the "strongest team ever."

"I think it's definitely our strongest team ever as far as depth is concerned," said Lamar Ottsen, Chairman of the Olympic Committee for skating. "We're weakest in the long events but strong in the 500 and 1,500."

The 10 men and six women named to the team will compete Feb. 3-13 in the Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan.

Miss Henning, just 16, swept nearly every race at all distances in the four days of trials that concluded Monday at the U.S. Olympic Rink at Wisconsin State Fair Park.

Blatchford, only 20 but an Olympic veteran, was particularly sharp in the sprints and Sunday equalled the U.S. rink record of 39.1 second for the 500-meters.

Ed Rudolph of Northbrook, one of the team's coaches, said he felt the team was good now and could be "fantastic" by the time the Olympics are held. He said he thought the team could win five to seven gold medals.

Joining Blatchford on the men's team is Dan Carroll, St. Louis, who dominated the distance events during the four days of trials. Others named are Greg Lyman, Northbrook; Peter Eberling, Paramount, Calif.; Charles Gilmore, Anaheim, Calif.; Gary Jonland, Park Ridge, Ill.; Clark King of Studio City, Calif.; Bill Lanigan, New York City, Jack Walters, Boston; and John Wurster, Ballston Spa, N.Y.

Carroll, Lonland and Lanigan are all in the U.S. Army.

Diane Holum, also of Northbrook, a medal winner in the 1968 Olympics, was also named to the women's team. Others named are Leah Poulos, Northbrook; Kay Lunda, Madison, Wis.; Jeanne Omelencnuck and Sheila Young, both of Detroit.

"Oh, my dry cleaning chain is doing fine. How about your snack shops?"

Greenman Leads Wallbanger Past Teachers, 78-72

Bob Greenman and John Silvers combined for 47 points to lead Harvey Wallbanger past the San Rafael Teachers, 78-72, in the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult basketball league yesterday.

Greenman scored 26 and John Silvers 21. For the Teachers, Bill Pandiandi sank 28 and Bret Tovani 21.

Kettle forfeited its game to the Sharks. KSJO-radio and First American Title were involved in a double forfeit.

Barry Battle Continues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI — Still another chapter was recorded yesterday in the continuing legal battle between basketball great Rick Barry and his former employer, the Golden State, nee San Francisco, Warriors.

The Golden State Warriors were granted permission Monday by U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli to file a cross-complaint against Barry asking that he not be allowed to renew his contract with the New York Nets when it expires next fall.

The court actions have been piling up since Barry signed with the National Basketball Association Warriors, then based in San Francisco, jumped to the old Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association in 1967, and then tried to jump back to the NBA in 1969.

"It's better that this court hear it than that it be in several courts," Zirpoli said. There was no indication when he would hand down a decision.

An attorney for the Nets expressed the hope that the Warriors would live up to what he called "their verbal promise" not to try to force Barry back to San Francisco before the end of the 1972 season "because the Nets are going to have a championship team."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depts are always additive to the chart depts unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Will These Issues Fit His Objectives?

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My chief investment objective is good quality stocks for long-term appreciation, but with a measure of risk not quite bordering on speculation. Accordingly I hold City Investing, Teledyne and United Brands warrants. Since last April, when I invested, I have a 30 per cent paper loss. Do you think these issues fit my objectives? — W.H.

A. In my opinion, your portfolio is more speculative than you appear to realize. Nonetheless, I see no reason at this time to make any changes.

Spearheaded by broad gains at Guerdon and General Development, City Investing (NYSE) showed a strong increase in earnings for the nine months. While its insurance subsidiary has also turned in a strong performance, lower ordnance and aerospace orders were restraining influences. Full year net should easily surpass the $1.44 fully diluted per share results of 1970.

Similarly, Teledyne has been hurt by reduced government spending and aided by improved insurance operations. Thus, for the fiscal year ended October, sales were off 9 per cent while earnings dropped 11.5 per cent. Recovery in the current fiscal year is anticipated.

United Brands, which was hard hit by the dock strikes and weak prices for bananas incurred a loss in the third quarter. Cost reductions, stabilization in the banana market and greater contributions from its restaurant business should boost net in 1972. If this is the case the warrants (ASE) would undoubtedly outpace any improvements in share price.

Q. Could you please tell me if Windsor Fund went ex-dividend between the first and the fifth of November? — M.M.

A. On Oct. 29, Windsor Fund sold ex or without a 50 cents per share capital gains distribution. Reinvestment was optional at $8.55 a share. On the same date shares sold ex a 16 cent a share income dividend. The share price quotation was adjusted to reflect these distributions on Nov. 1. The day-to-day price change on that day was a minus 82 cents to $8.55 a share. Of this, only 16 cents resulted from normal daily fluctuation in portfolio value.

Market Setback 'Normal'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Profit taking shot down the high flying glamor group on the New York Stock Exchange today, and on balance the market was slightly lower in active trading.

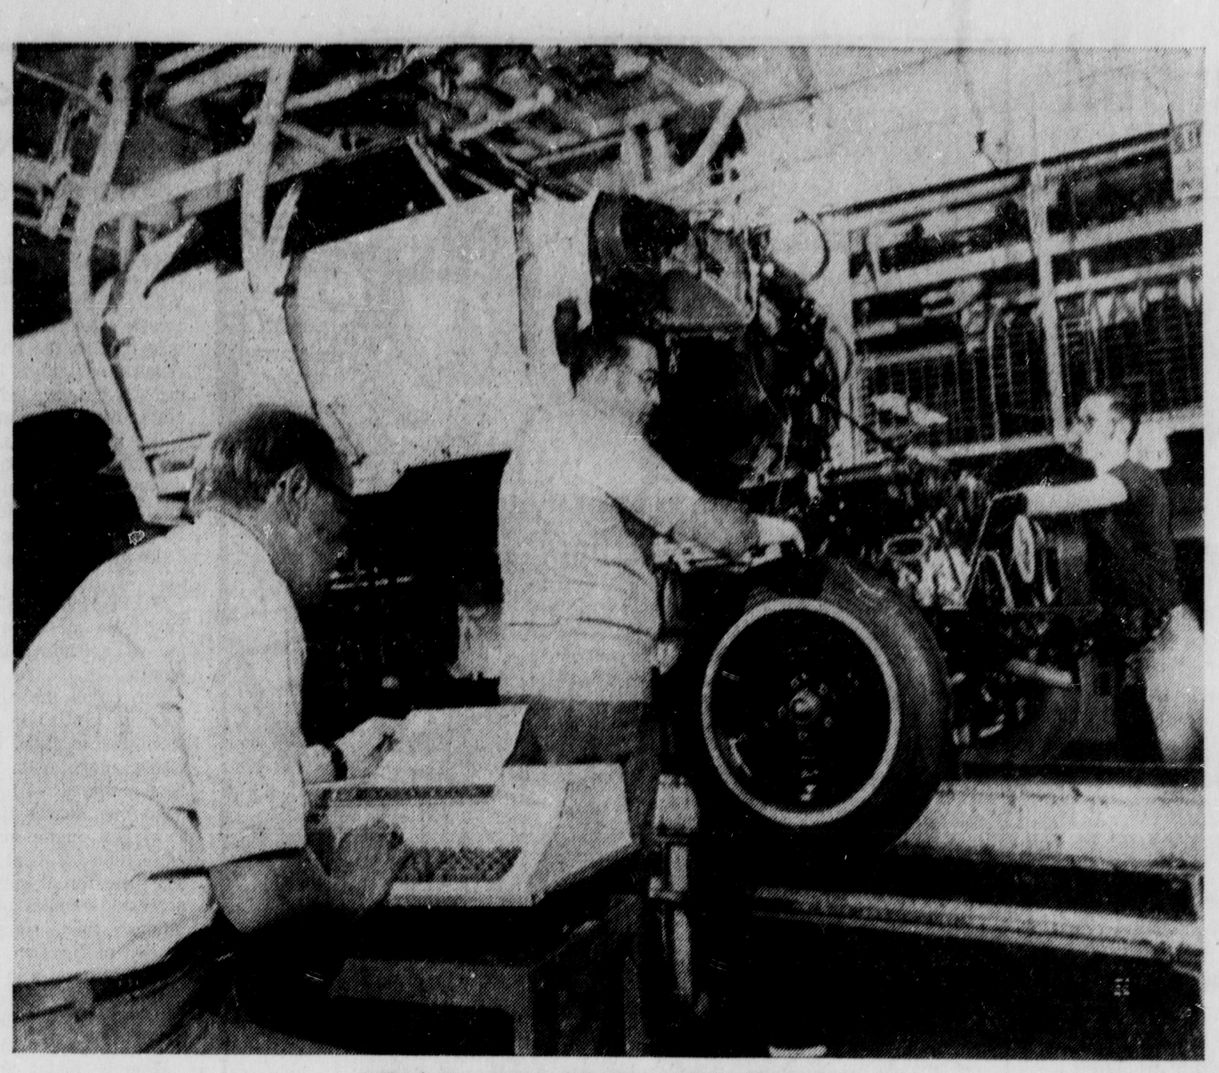
Much of the setback was viewed as a normal development in the wake of Monday's spectacular market advance which followed a break in the international monetary crisis over the weekend.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 3 points at 882.00 after about two hours of trading. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.16 at 101.39, and declines topped advances by 125 issues.

Prices also eased in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Topper, by far the most active Amex issue, was slightly lower on more than 110,000 shares.

Among the Big Board's softest spots were Honeywell down 3 3-8, Super Oil 3 1-2, and Walt Disney 2 1-2. Off a point or more were KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, IBM, Burroughs, and Eastman Kodak.

Fractionally lower stocks included U.S. Steel, General Motors, Ford, Jersey Standard, Penn Central, General Dynamics, Levitz Furniture, UAL Inc., Trans-World Airlines, General Electric, Westinghouse, Sperry Rand, and Texas Instruments.



'CAR BY COMPUTER'

A new computer-controlled delivery system for all new Pontiac car orders, recently inaugurated nationwide, is the result of linking Pontiac motor division with General Electric's international information services network. With on-the-hour accuracy, dealers are able to keep track of the status of each customer's car throughout production and delivery. On the assembly line, a teletypewriter is used to report a car's status into the "interprocessing" network.

Marin's 11-Year Hiring Outlined

Business service organizations showed highest percentage gains in the number of employees hired during the 11-year period from 1959 to 1970, according to figures recently released by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

In a facts report showing the standings of various types of businesses, chamber manager Carroll A. Snyker said he considered only the first quarter of each year for comparison purposes, due to a lack of complete information available between 1959 and 1962, which handicapped comparisons with the population census.

Business service organizations increased the total number of employees in 1959 from 217 to 982 in 1970, a gain of 352.5 per cent. The category includes a variety of operations, which Snyker said usually follow a growth in other businesses.

Second on the list of percentage increases was shown by medical health services, increasing total employees of 705 in 1959 to 2,417 in 1971. Other high gainers were motels and tourist courts, increasing employees by 207.6 per cent; retail drugs, increasing 190.3 per cent: and general merchandise, up 151.3 per cent. The number of employees in mining dropped 36.3 per cent and in food manufacturing 29.4 per cent. Those employed in contract construction were down 7.6 per cent.

Average employees' compensation was highest with drugs and chemicals workers in 1970 at $2,242 for the quarter. Construction materials workers averaged $2,228 for the quarter, in second place. Communications workers averaged $2,215, trucking and warehousing employees $2,199 and grocery employees $2,196.

Motels and tourist court employees, a category third highest in percentage increase in number of employees, averaged only $945; and employees in eating and drinking establishments only $961 per quarter.

Speedier Delivery

HELSINKI (UPI)—The movement of goods from Europe to Japan will be speeded up by one half in the near future following the signing of an agreement between Finnish and Soviet officials on the opening of a container rail link between Finland and Japan through the Soviet Union.

World Cereals Surplus Seen

PALO ALTO (BW) — During the next decade, worldwide production of cereals will rise somewhat faster than demand, creating more imbalances in international trade, a high ranking United Nations official told an international conference at Stanford University.

Eric Ojala, assistant director general of the economic and social department of the U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), said a newly completed study projects a worldwide increase in demand for all cereals at a rate of 2.3 per cent annually through this decade.

Based on current trends, output of wheat, rice, and other cereal grains will rise about 2.8 per cent annually.

A Look At New State Tax Program

The brand on California's new state tax system, enacted by the Legislature at its special session, is the brand of Marin-Sonoma Assemblyman William T. Bagley. And the system deserves a thorough look.

Most of it was contained in revenue bills that Bagley introduced last year and again this year. Partisan politicking was largely to blame for the long inaction. When the Legislature adjourned its 1971 session without acting on taxes, Gov. Ronald Reagan called it back. The first bill before it was Bagley's measure. This time it passed, quickly.

It is labeled "tax reform," and it is — to an extent. It also was heralded as offering "tax relief," and it does — to a smaller extent.

THE "REFORMS" are these:

Withholding — Starting Jan. 1, Californians' state income tax will be withheld, after the manner of the federal tax. State withholding won't bite too deeply, at first. Whether it does later will depend largely on how closely we watch our legislators, and what kind we elect to office.

Minimum income tax — Citizens whose earnings otherwise are exempt from state income tax will have to pay a 2½ per cent levy as a minimum tax. (This will make sure that Governor Reagan himself does not escape again.)

"Soak the rich" — An 11 per cent tax bracket is added for those making $31,000 per year or more.

Bank and corporation tax will be increased by .6 of one per cent. Oil and gas depletion allowance will be decreased from 27.5 to 22 per cent, matching the federal allowance. There also are changes in capital gains and inheritance tax structures, the latter also to match the federal system.

THE "RELIEF" is included in these:

The 20 per cent "forgiveness" — Because we will already by paying out 1972 state income tax (through withholding), we will deduct 20 per cent from the total of our 1971 tax when filing our return in April.

Senior citizens' property tax assistance will be expanded to allow greater deductions, and may apply at age 62 instead of age 65.

The package will bring faster flow of money into state coffers and make possible a balanced state budget.

IT SHOULD be borne in mind, however, that this latter applies only to the current fiscal year. Unless the state takes a more realistic look at its spending in 1972, the budget for the following year will require another tax increase.

Unfortunately for us, such an increase will be easier for the legislators to assess by reason of the withholding feature: a lot of little bites don't hurt as much at first as one big bite.

Mister Robin

Robins are a very special bird to most of us. One lady we know always refers to them singularly, as Mister Robin. "There's Mr. Robin eating the hawthorn berries," she will say.

We are so fond of robins, it is difficult for us to imagine that they were considered game birds a century ago, and were shot and eaten. In fact, as late as 1913 some butcher shops sold robins for 60 cents a dozen.

Most Marinites would about as soon eat the family dog or cat as harm a robin these days.

By RUS WALTON:

Taxpayer Gets Plucked To Feather These Nests

SACRAMENTO — Today a quick lesson in political science — the science of "How To Feather a Nest."

If you're a taxpayer, you should be interested. You supply about 80 per cent of the feathers.

California's legislative retirement system is the most generous in the nation. Your friendly corner legislator has seen to that.

Under the system, a legislator may retire at 60, or after 20 years in office, and receive two-thirds of his legislative salary — about $12,800 a year, or more. When he dies, his widow receives one-half of his pension as long as she lives.

There are also periodic cost-of-living adjustments. That way he won't have to worry about inflation.

Each legislator contributes $768 a year as his share of the retirement fund. That is 4 per cent of his $19,200 annual salary. Taxpayers chunk in $5 for every $1 the legislators put into the fund. By contrast, state civil service employes match the taxpayer dollar-for-dollar on their retirement fund.

If a legislator was a late-bloomer in politics, he may retire at 60 after only four years in office. His annual retirement benefits in that case would run about $3,100 a year for the rest of his life.

Or, a legislator may retire after 15 years in office and take a slight penalty. If he is not yet 60, he loses 2 per cent for each year he is under.

BUT WAIT. There's more!

It all goes back to 1965 and the State Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decree. That brought on a hasty mid-decade reapportionment and sudden political death for 30 incumbents. In a generous farewell, the legislature handed out early retirement benefits to the victims who otherwise would have been left with their pensions dangling until they reached 60.

The good-bye gift: any incumbent with four years in office, regardless of age, became immediately eligible for retirement benefits if his days at the capitol were ended, or even threatened, by reapportionment. If he were defeated in his new district, or if his old district were abolished, or if he just quit, he could retire, and receive an early retirement bonus.

The bonus works like this. Suppose a 42-year-old assemblyman with 10 years in office quits the legislature because of reapportionment. His pension starts immediately at $7,700 a year. During the next 18 years, until he reaches 60, his early retirement bonus will total $138,700. From age 60 on, his retirement benefits continue. If he lives to reach 70, those will total another $77,000 — plus cost of living adjustments.

THERE WAS AN ATTEMPT — to reform all that in 1969 but incumbents were protected by a grandfather clause. Which means that any legislator affected by the 1972 reapportionment can still get in on the act and enjoy those early retirement benefits.

There's a snag, though. A legislator must exercise his retirement option in 1972, or forfeit his early retirement bonus.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, a veteran of 22 years in office, wants to remove the snag. His AB 2329 would give legislators a permanent vested interest in the early retirement option.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was chief huckster for the bill. He argued that many legislators might retire in 1972 if they had to choose between staying in office or taking the immediate retirement bonus option. Bagley predicted a huge brain drain.

That line doesn't do much for me.

Mr. Lanterman's bill is on the governor's desk. It should be vetoed.

'Pass No New Law' Response Awaited

A friend has forwarded me your editorial of Dec. 3, which I thoroughly enjoyed.

I sincerely appreciate the kind remarks you made about me in that editorial and firmly stand behind what I said.

I suppose we'll have to await the beginning of the 1972 session to see if my remarks had any impact on my fellow colleagues.

Commuters Worried About New Schedules

Can you find out, and publish at their expense, some (any) information concerning the bus schedules of this new Golden Gate bus service as it pertains to us riders here in Fairfax? We don't know where to call to find out anything. We don't know where the pickup stop will be in Fairfax. We don't know where they will be for a return trip from San Francisco, and Jan. 1 is close upon us.

We're sorry to see the Greyhound, with its well organized system, going out of business and this ragtime outfit taking over. Where will the office in Fairfax be located?

Can you, or will you, in the interests of us Fairfax riders get to the company and get them to publish their schedule and stopping points?

THOMAS J. STOLTY

Fairfax

(Not only Fairfax commuters, but also those in all other cities of Marin and southern Sonoma counties, have been wondering about schedules and pickup points for the Golden Gate Bridge District's commute service which will start Jan. 3. The bridge district promises to have complete schedules available Thursday. They are to be passed out on Greyhound commute buses, and will be published in the Independent-Journal. — Editor.)

Jail Too Crowded? Too Many Lawbreakers

I noted in the Dec. 14th edition of the Independent-Journal the story concerning the overcrowding of our county jail. I feel that the main point in all this is being overlooked. I once had the opportunity to spend a little time in the old jail one night. I had broken the law. I was where I belonged. I did not cry about the conditions. I faced up to the fact that I belonged there. The bailiff told me, "Next time think before you act".

The people who are complaining about this should think about that sound piece of advice. Think before you act. We are all held responsible by some higher authority for all of our actions. Our jails are there to help us to remember not to repeat the act. They were never built like a Holiday Inn — nor should they be put in that category.

If everyone of us in Marin County tried to help our fellow man and lived exemplary lives we would have very few occupants of our jail. This is our primary duty to society. If our jail is a little bit overcrowded, the inmates have no one to blame but themselves. If they (the inmates) had been more prudent in their daily living, they would be spending evenings in their homes not at the Civic Center. I speak from experience. I hope that I am never again a guest of the county; if so, I will not complain.

Bon Air Proposal Conforms To Standards

I am a member of the Larkspur Planning Commission. I feel compelled to comment on a letter published in your "What Our Readers Say" column on Dec. 13, supporting the commission's rejection of the Larwin Co. submission to construct 224 units in Bon Air.

I voted for the submission on the recommendation of the Larkspur planning staff and the city's architectural review board. I was also under the impression that our new planning consultant was not opposed to the proposal. In my opinion, the Larwin plan was legal in all respects and was rejected by three of my colleagues on what I feel were their personal views rather than the laws under which we operate.

I consider it most inequitable for the commission... to accept city laws as a guideline and then to deny approval to an applicant who has abided by these laws and, moreover, has modified his plans to follow the recommendations and restrictions of our advisers.

In the letter supporting the rejection, comment was made about schools, sewers, city services and cars. These comments presented the matter in an unfair light.

Average daily attendance in the Kentfield School District, and particularly in the Greenbrae School, has dropped below that anticipated when the schools were built and is substantially below capacity. The impact of the proposed development on schools and other services will be less than our present zoning allows, as the projected number of dwelling units is 20 per cent under the maximum density permitted. Sewer facilities, according to Larkspur's staff, are adequate to take care of the project...

The impact of the additional cars on the surrounding streets has been, in my opinion, exaggerated. This development is very suitably situated for traffic circulation, as it has two avenues of easy access to Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and one to South Eliseo Drive. This should tend to distribute the traffic load and ease the burden on any individual street.

In summary, I voted in favor of the Larwin proposal because I felt that the environmental impact would be minimal. Aesthetically, the project is far superior to the exisiting developments in Bon Air. The developer voluntarily reduced the population density of his project below that existing anywhere else in Bon Air...

Newspaper Exemption Unjustified

(By JOHN S. KNIGHT in Detroit Free Press)

The United States Senate has voted 50-36 to exempt newspapers, radio, magazines and other information media from wage and price controls.

The ascribed reason given by Sen. Alan Cranston of California, sponsor of the bill, is that present controls would hand the government "economic life-or-death power over every publishing and broadcasting operation in the country." He cites as a precedent that no such controls were applied to the media during World War II and the Korean War.

Sen. Sam. J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina, in favoring the exemption, views controls as presenting a threat to freedom of the press under the Constitution.

For my part, I see no such threat in the present system of controls, nor do I think it is in the national interest to grant special exemptions to a press which has been calling for sacrifices from every other segment of our society.

Senator Cranston's bill is bad legislation. If a similar measure is approved by the House, it should be vetoed by the President.

(The Independent-Journal agrees with Mr. Knight. — Editor.)

Risk Of New Middle East War Increases As Year Ends

JERUSALEM — As the days pass toward the end of this turbulent year, the risk of war in the Middle East increases. With the Egyptian forces on a full alert, Israeli intelligence, which is very good indeed, puts the chances at 60-40 for a renewal of fighting that might not be all-out war but the kind of sporadic fire that marked the war of attrition.

The loud, angry noises from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sound as though a fourth conflict between Arab and Israeli is inevitable, He had promised that 1971 would be the year of decision. Out of Cairo via the grapevine comes the following:

WHAT ALTERNATIVE does Sadat now have? He must see to it that a law is passed extending 1971 for at least six months.

For Israel the alternative is what it was in 1948, 1956 and 1967. That is, readiness to fight to defend the lands where more than 2,500,000 Jews have been gathered in from all over the world.

No one doubts that Israel would be victorious again, even though, if it became all-out war, at a much greater cost. The new threat comes at a time when domestic troubles pile up. Rising costs, inflation, the housing shortage, the heavy burden of taxation, the agitation of the Oriental Jews who in the farthest extreme call themselves Black Panthers — all these create tensions in what is theoretically peacetime in Israel.

Whether Sadat and his generals are adding all this up to a conviction that Israel is weak and, therefore, it is time to strike weighs heavily in the balance between war and peace. That would be a grave mistake, for the history of the past 25 years show that the Israelis have a remarkable capacity for uniting in the face of an external threat.

That is as true today as in the past, and the question is one of credibility in the mind of President Sadat. He must weigh the accounts of internal difficulties, probably exaggerated in the telling, and at the same time equate this with the consequences of the India-Pakistan war.

ISRAELI NEWSPAPERS report the Pakistani charge that the Soviet Union supplied India with SAM-3 ground-to-air missiles more advanced than the SAM-2s already emplaced. There is even the hint that Russian pilots flying advanced-type planes might do the same thing for Egypt in a new war with Israel.

But the belief widely held here is that Moscow wants to avoid another Middle East conflict and is urging restraint on Sadat. The cost to the Russians of sustaining Egypt with its ever-increasing burden of population and poverty is great even though Sadat claims to be paying hard currency for military material. Moreover, President Nixon's visit set for early May is a deadline of sorts. To get involved in a conflict of indeterminate length with still another bloody nose of Egypt would put an end to the detente — a SALT agreement on nuclear weapons, increased trade, a European security conference —that Moscow is promoting.

The heroine in the Israeli drama is the tireless former Milwaukee schoolteacher, Prime Minister Golda Meir. While she may not have brought the additional Phantom fighter-bombers back in her shopping bag as she jokingly said when she took off for Washington, no one doubts that in her long talk with President Nixon she got the assurance that the military balance in the Middle East would be maintained with American weapons sold to Israel and with economic aid to ease the pains of an economy in which 25 per cent of the gross national product goes for defense.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER Yigal Allon says that the balance must not only be maintained but must be seen. Golda, as high and low all call her, is living proof that it is sustained — a fact of first importance to this Jewish state living in a sea of Arabs.

Surrounded as she is by brilliant, hard-driving military men such as Allon and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, she is the undisputed leader holding together powerful rival factions. As she knows full well, peace is the deep desire of her people, and she may be more successful than the other woman prime minister, Indira Gandhi, in averting still another war.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Soviet Union Appears Principal Winner In India-Pakistan War

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—The real victor in the Indo-Pakistan conflict is the Soviet Union in the opinion of diplomatic sources here.

Russia stands deeply entrenched in the Indian subcontinent with newly won political influence, a claim on India and the possibility of an even firmer hold on the newly emerging Bangla Desh, already proclaimed a "Peoples Republic" and awaiting imminent Soviet recognition.

The soviets also have the prospect of firmer bases or "facilties" (as Moscow prefers to call them) in the Indian Ocean area.

WHAT IS EVEN MORE telling, diplomatic sources here believe, is the triumph of Russian influence over Chinese in the sensitive sphere of the Far East where Peking has been seeking a dominant place.

In a first assessment of the consequences of the Indian war against Pakistan and the latter's partial dismemberment, diplomatic sources here pointed out that the full impact will become known only after some time has elapsed.

The Kremlin has not moved into the area overnight, but to all appearances has laid the foundations for its political victory.

Five years ago Moscow acted as the peacemaker in the Indo-Pakistan conflict and emerged with enhanced prestige.

Moscow has deepened its influence by backing India politically and above all by mounting arms supplies recently complemented with Soviet advisers. A 20-year friendship treaty last August sealed the alignment with Delhi and committed Russia on the side of India.

PAKISTAN RELIED on Chinese support.

The Indian victory with Russian support is a political and a moral defeat for Peking, for the present at any rate, because China failed to come to the rescue of its Pakistan ally. Peking offered moral and political support.

However, diplomatic sources believe that it is not all gain for the Soviet Union.

Soviet credibility as a peace loving power which rejects war as a means of solving international conflicts may well suffer in the eyes of the Third World.

Political Pot In Petaluma Is One That Brews The Coffee

Politicians are usually thought of as gathering in darkly lit and intriguing places to brew devious schemes, but in Petaluma it's the coffee shops that take the honor.

It's impossible to gauge how many civic decisions, appointments and political plans have been hatched over coffee and eggs. The politicos and businessmen can often be seen huddling in the mornings and late afternoons to compare notes.

Many a candidate has made the decision to seek elective office based on reactions at the coffee pot sessions, and others attend hoping to start political careers by gaining favor for commission appointments.

COUNTY SUPERVISOR Philip L. Joerger is one of the coffee shop regulars and uses the early morning hours to meet with his confidantes to sound out ideas. This is probably a holdover from his days on the Petaluma City Council and from planning sessions during his successful campaign.

Perhaps because of a lack of available coffee shops for hobnobbing, the Rohnert Park City Council conducts its business differently. When faced with the task of reconstituting its planning commission and coming up with five appointees at one time, the council threw the jobs open to everyone and invited applications from the general community.

Most were pleased to get the 17 applicants from whom to choose. The names were announced to permit public reaction and a portion of the interviews were opened to the public before the council made its selection. It's certain that not everyone was thrilled about all the appointments, but at least residents had a chance to voice opposition or support and to witness some of the interviews to gauge qualifications on their own.

PETALUMANS RARELY get that chance. When an appointment it to be made to the council or a commission, random applications are always invited, but the public is never told who has applied or is getting serious consideration. Interviews, if held at all, always exclude the public.

It seems if Petalumans want a bigger say in city affairs and appointments, they'll have to join the coffee brigade.

Blame That Dollar Devaluation On Kilmer And The Redskins

WASHINGTON — The devaluation of the American dollar as agreed to by President Nixon in his meeting with French President Georges Pompidou in the Azores came as a surprise to many people. The Nixon strategy up until the meeting was to make the Europeans devalue the dollar rather than the United States.

People in Washington are still wondering what happened. The clue to it was a short news item from the Azores which reported that President Nixon had stayed up to 4:30 a.m. in the Azores on Tuesday morning listening to the Washington Redskins-Los Angeles Rams game on the radio.

This clue, plus a version of what happened given to me in absolute confidence by a French newspaperman, is what took place.

ON TUESDAY MORNING at 8 o'clock, President Pompidou was eating his breakfast of croissants with cafe au lait when his chief intelligence officer burst into the room and said, "Monsieur le President, I can report to you that the President of the United States had no sleep last night."

"Alors!" President Pompidou said. "How do you know this?"

"He listened to the Washington Redskins-Los Angeles Rams game until 4:30 in the morning."

"What is this Washington Redskins, Los Angeles Rams game?"

"It is a football game, Monsieur le President, between the teams of two cities. The President never misses a football game. He is a devoted Redskin supporter."

"He likes Indians?"

"NO, THE TEAM is not made up of Indians. They call themselves Redskins just so people won't confuse them with the Rams or the Colts or the Lions or the Falcons."

"I do not understand how this information can be of use to me," President Pompidou said.

"Monsieur le President, all during the game President Nixon kept waking up his staff to tell them what the score was. Secretary Rogers and Secretary Connally received no sleep either. They are all groggy."

"Zut! This is formidable. Tell me something about these Washington Indians."

"Redskins, not Indians, Monsieur le President!"

AN HOUR LATER the French president and the American President met with each other, along with their staffs.

The Americans were yawning and rubbing their eyes.

President Pompidou said, "President Nixon, my congratulations on the football game last night."

"Do you follow American football?" President Nixon asked in surprise.

"My wife and I are both avid George Allen fans."

"Well, Mr. President, it was really a fantastic game."

"Then," said President Pompidou, "that means we will be in the National League playoffs."

"We?" Mr. Nixon said.

"OF COURSE WE. The French support the team the President of the United States supports."

"De Gaulle was never like that," Mr. Nixon said. "Mr. President, Billy Kilmer had his greatest day, and I can't say enough about Jefferson and Speedy Duncan."

"Did you contain Roman Gabriel?" Monsieur Pompidou asked.

"The entire game."

"Bon! Now about the dollar. I imagine it makes no difference if you devalue it now."

"I hadn't really been giving it much thought."

"Please just sign here, and then we can talk more about the football game."

President Nixon looked around to see if he could get some advice from Secretary Rogers or Connally. They were both fast asleep with their heads on the conference table. Rather than disturb them he signed the agreement.

And that's how Washington won a chance at the Super Bowl, and the United States lost 10 per cent of the American dollar.

Eaton, Russian Aide Confer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Soviet Union's minister of agriculture, Vladimir Matskevich, spent part of the weekend visiting with multimillionaire industrialist Cyrus Eaton and other business leaders.

Eaton held a luncheon for Matskevich Saturday and then the Soviet official spent the night at Eaton's nearby retreat.

Matskevich has been touring the U.S. since Dec. 9 under the sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He talked with Eaton about Russia's announced intentions to purchase U.S.-made agricultural and industrial equipment.

Campus Police Chief Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The chief of the campus police force at San Francisco State College was found shot to death Sunday night in what a campus spokesman called an apparent suicide.

The spokesman said Wayne M. Berry, 58, was found dead in his home near the campus. No notes were found.

Berry, a retired Navy chief petty officer, had been with the 21-man force for about 12 years.

Deck, Stereo Tapes Stolen From Van

A tape deck and stereo tapes, valued at a total of $230, were stolen from a van parked at the Bermuda Palms Motel, 737 Francisco Boulevard between 9 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 a.m. Sunday, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Police said the theft was reported by Sandra Lee Nelson of 1428 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, who said she had borrowed the van from David A. Alden of 376 Sunset Avenue, Mill Valley, and the stolen tapes and deck belonged to Alden.

Motel Reports Room Damage

Two men staying at the Casa Buena Motel in Corte Madera left their room so damaged that police were called Sunday.

Corte Madera police, arriving at 12:24 p.m., found a table lamp torn off, broken light bulbs ground into the carpet, a heater fixture ripped from the wall, cigarette burns in the furnishings and beer cans and bottles strewn about a room at the motel, 1595 Casa Buena Drive.

Firemen waged a battle from the roof as flames swept the fourth floor and attic of a San Rafael apartment house today.

Predawn Fire Routs 75; Trio Rescued

4-Story Park Towers Blazes; No Injuries

By DAVID DIETZ

About 75 persons were forced into the predawn chill and fog in San Rafael today when fire broke out in a four-story apartment house. (See photos, other story, page 30.)

No one was injured in the blaze at 108 Professional Center Parkway, although firemen rescued three persons and a dog trapped on fourth floor balconies.

Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci said crews battled for two hours to bring the fire under control. Flames were confined to the top floor and attic of the stucco and wood dwelling, known as Park Towers, but Marcucci said the rest of the U-shaped building suffered heavy water damage.

Total damage was estimated at $50,000. Cause of the fire was unknown.

The blaze broke out shortly before 5 a.m. in the apartment of Joyce Coniglio, 26. She aroused other tenants on the fourth floor, pulled an alarm and ran to the third floor to notify the managers, Robert and Madge Patrick.

"I just woke up," said Miss Coniglio. "It was all burning around the heater. I just rang on doors."

Miss Coniglio arrived at the Patrick apartment clad in a bathrobe and "yelling 'fire,' " said the Patrick's son, Michael. "She said something blew up in her living room. It was probably an exploding window."

Firemen, who arrived to find flames bursting from fourth floor windows, brought the trapped people down ladders.

"I guess the fire got out in the corridor and they couldn't make it," said Fire Marshall Kenneth Mazza, one of the rescurers. "They were very calm. In fact, one of the women said only, 'It's getting a little smoky up here.' "

Many of the routed tenants huddled next door in the Northgate Convalescent Hospital, where nurses fed them coffee.

Marcucci, who led a complement of 25 firemen and five pieces of equipment in the fire-fighting effort, said the blaze "had a real good start on us. Flames were just billowing out the windows."

Marcucci said the battle was made difficult by the fire's entry into the attic, which the chief described as little more than a crawl space.

"It was inaccessible to us. From the roof, we had to pick a point where we thought the fire had reached. But every time we tried to find an opening, the fire had gone past us."

A pumper unit had to climb a dirt road leading behind the building to relay water through the rear of the structure.

Marcucci said firemen conducted an inspection of the building in October following a minor blaze in a first-floor apartment.

"We said at that time that if there was a fire here," said Marcucci, pointing to the rear of the apartment house, "we'd have nothing but trouble because of the inaccessibility of fire lines.

"And sure enough, we had a fire right here where we wouldn't have wanted it."

The five-year-old structure, with a total of 40 units, is owned by Bellinger Realty of Castro Valley.

'Little Summit' Talks Near End

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) —President Nixon and British Prime Minister Edward Heath neared the end of their "little summit" talks today after apparently reaching an early accord on mutual economic and monetary issues.

The two allied leaders conferred for two hours and 50 minutes before breaking for lunch. There was no definite word whether they would have another private meeting before Nixon's afternoon departure for Washington.

The full U.S. and British delegations, however, arranged for a final meeting together before ending the two-day conference.

The signal that economic matters were disposed of came when Treasury Secretary John B. Connally flew back to Washington while the Nixon-Heath morning meeting was still in progress.

A British spokesman said the two leaders "continued their review of the world situation and dealt among other areas with Europe and the Middle East."

The President and the Prime Minister reached general agreement in their discussions that the historic Anglo-American "special relationship" that has existed since World War II is a thing of the past. But both agreed a new partnership must continue in the future.

The two, after spending eight hours together Monday, acknowledged that the post-war ties must loosen when Britain enters the Common Market next year with a new set of European partners.

Their two-day meeting, with no "structured agenda," was the fourth in a series of sessions Nixon has scheduled with major allied leaders in preparation for his trips to China and the Soviet Union early in 1972.

At a black tie dinner hosted by Heath on the Royal Navy guided missile destroyer, HMS Glamorgan, Nixon noted in his formal toast that the relationship "which meant so much in 1953, in 1957, and in 1971 (at previous U.S.-British summits in Bermuda) —" is not the same.

"The fact that it is not the

New Storm Is Expected By Tonight

The cold gray stuff that has been blanketing the Bay Area since the weekend was due to drift away today in the face of a storm expected to bring rain by tonight.

Weather bureau officials described the weather of the past few days as a "typical tule fog," dense and cold and originating in California's interior valleys. The fog occures each winter during dry spells between rains, a spokesman said.

The "winter drought," as he termed it, was due to end today with the chances of rain predicted as 80 per cent tonight and tomorrow.

The cold weather was due to continue, however. Although temperatures were above freezing in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, the penetrating fog made the weather seem colder than it actually was.

Although the fog has resembled smog, the Bay Area Pollution Control District said the pollution level was below standards established by the Air Resources Board and the federal government.

Five Nabbed For Giant Bank Haul

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI)—Five persons have been arrested and most of the money recovered in the $1,129,000 robbery of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, police said today.

Police said two men and one woman were arrested in a motel room in Toronto and two women were picked up in a raid on a private home in Mississauga, a suburb of Toronto, shortly before the motel raid. More arrests would be made, police said.

Windsor police chief Gordon Preston said about $1 million was recovered in a trunk, a little smaller than an army footlocker.

The money, about half in U.S. currency and half in Canadian currency, was taken from the Windsor bank Saturday morning, just a few minutes after a Ryan armored truck delivered it from the Windsor Raceway.

Preston said the suspects were arrested "as a result of information given to Toronto intelligence and relayed to us yesterday morning."

He said $11,000 was confiscated by Toronto police at the private home in Mississauga, which is near the Toronto airport.

Two other men, believed to be in Windsor, were being sought. Preston said he expects their arrrests later today. Other persons may have been involved, he said.

The two women arrested in Mississauga were identified as Edna Helen Lefebre, 45, and Jessie Delorme. The others were arrested at the Holiday Inn.

Insp. Bernard Simmonds identified the three as George Ivan Davidson, 43, William Ferguson, 48, and Edna Simpson, 56. All were Canadian citizens. They were to appear later today in court to face as yet undetermined charges.

The robbery occurred as 12 bank employes were working in a counting room, totaling Friday night's receipts from the Windsor Raceway. Of the $1,129,000 stolen, $297,000 was from the race track.

The robbers were in the bank

Subsidized Housing Rules Eased

The San Rafael City Council last night dropped a residency requirement for the Marin County Housing Authority's subsidized housing program in the city but adopted a priority system recommending preference to residents and senior citizens. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 3.)

San Rafael was the last remaining city in the county to scuttle the residency requirement, which has been declared unconstitutional.

Under the resolution adopted last night, preference is to be given first to persons who have lived in San Rafael two years or more, then one year and then persons who currently live in the city. Senior citizens also are to receive priority for the city's 50 subsidized housing units, for which there is a long waiting list.

At the suggestion of Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, the council removed a phrase from the last category of persons eligible for the housing. This group was changed from persons residing elsewhere in Marin to, simply, elsewhere.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, who said he did not want the old favored over the young and poor said "we have substituted something worse" for the original residency requirement, voted against the resolution.

Plans To Clean up The Air Under Fire

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans by Bay Area and state smog officials that are supposed to clean up air pollution were described yesterday as so vague as to be meaningless and so "pitifully inadequate" as to warrant immediate federal intervention.

Speaker after speaker tore into the "implementation plan" — required by the federal government from all states next month — in a hearing on it by the state Air Resources Board.

Strong criticism also came from a spokesman for the federal Environmental Protection Agency, which can accept the plan, reject it and demand it be rewritten, or intervene and write a statewide plan itself.

The last hearing on the proposed plan will be held on Jan. 7 in San Diego, only three days before a final 400-page version is due for completion so the public can view it before adoption at the state board's Jan. 19 meeting in Sacramento.

Because of the tight deadlines, little rewriting of the plan is expected, despite criticism. Several of the critics, however, said they will take their complaints to the federal agency.

Much of the strongest criticism was aimed at the segment of the plan drafted by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Critics, many of them calling for a halt to urban growth, included the Sierra Club, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, Hastings Environmental Law Society, Clean Air

BURBANK (UPI) — Roy O. Disney, whose behind-the-scenes business acumen built an entertainment empire on his brother Walt's talent, died yesterday at 78.

Disney

Roy Disney inherited the Disney entertainment empire, and was its chief moving spirit, following the death of Walt Disney in 1966. His title was chairman of the board and chief executive officer, but his real function, as he saw it, was keeper of the wholesome spirit that Disney created.

He pushed through creation of the $300 million Disney World Development in Orlando, Fla., and devoted himself to keeping the business financially successful.

He did not try to fill his creative brother's shoes.

In the early years Walt drew the pictures and Roy worked the cameras and kept the books. They parlayed an original $790 stake into a multi-million-dollar business.

Whale As Pet Food

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has reversed itself and given the green light for use in pet food of 2 million pounds of sperm whale meat previously embargoed because of hazardous mercury content.

Kalcan Foods, a California firm, imported the whale meat a year and a half ago from Japan and put it on ice.

The FDA tested it, found mercury content above the level deemed hazardous and seized it.

Last week a special assistant to the FDA said the whale meat could be used after all, but said the finished pet food could contain no more than 5 per cent whale meat.

Chevalier Health

PARIS (UPI) — The health of ailing French entertainer Maurice Chevalier, 83, is "worrisome," Necker Hospital said today.

A medical bulletin issued by doctors treating Chevalier for a kidney ailment was couched in more pessimistic tones than previous communiques issued twice daily since his hospitalization eight days ago.

The bulletin said "the use of an artificial kidney took place as scheduled and was carried out without incident. The condition of the patient is stationary and worrisome."

Berrigan Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Imprisoned antiwar priest Daniel Berrigan, suffering from an ulcer, a kidney ailment and a hernia, has been granted a parole hearing Jan. 26 because of his failing health.

But the U.S. Parole Board Monday rejected a parole bid by Capitol Hill influence peddler Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, who is serving a one-to-three year sentence for tax evasion, larceny and fraud.

Berrigan, 51, is serving a three-year sentence for destruction of government property in connection with a raid on the Catonsville, Md., Selective Service offices.

Baker, 43, former Lyndon B. Johnson protege, was making his first bid for parole.

The board also denied parole to Anthony D. Angelis, 56, the "salad oil king" from New Jersey who figured in a multi-million dollar fraud and Guy B. Gillette, 26, serving two years for violating Selective Service laws.

Doctors Wasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government auditors said today many doctors, dentists and nurses in the military are being wasted on administrative duties despite a critical national shortage of medical professionals.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) said there would be more time for patient care if administrative, command and other duties were assigned to qualified nonprofessional personnel.

In a report to Congress, the GAO said a defense department study found that revised work practices and use of dental assistants could increase productivity of dentists by more than 40 per cent.

Stalin's Birthday

MOSCOW (UPI) — Half a dozen frozen red roses and a bunch of cellophane-wrapped chrysanthemums lay on the snow-covered Red Square grave of one-time Soviet leader Josef V. Stalin today — his 92nd birthday.

Pravda made no mention of it.

Crowds who passed the grave at the foot of the Kremlin wall showed no sign they were aware of the occasion.

The early settlers of America made pumpkin soup, stew, pudding, bread, and griddle cakes as well as pie.

Surcharge Lifted, But No Refunds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Treasury Department says the 10 per cent surcharge on imports, which increased the cost of foreign cars and many other products used by Americans, would be lifted immediately but there would be no refunds.

A Treasury spokesman said the surcharge would not have to be paid on any goods in transit to the United States, clearing customs or being removed from bonded warehouses for delivery. If the surcharge had already been paid on those products, however, it will not be refunded, he said.

That meant it might be several days or weeks, even months, before prices of any foreign goods are lowered to reflect removal of the surcharge.

Under President Nixon's new economic program, importers were allowed to pass on the cost of the surcharge to customers in the form of price increases.

Nixon announced removal of the surcharge shortly after a meeting with British Prime Minister Edward Heath in Bermuda Monday.

Pub Owner Is Latest Victim Of Downtown Belfast Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Bombs ripped through downtown Belfast today for the second straight day, underscoring extremist vows to reduce the capital to "a pile of rubble by Christmas," the army said.

An army spokesman said publican Jack Lavery was killed when a blast demolished his pub, Lavery's Bar, on the Lisburn Road in the city center. The three-story building suffered structural damage.

Another explosion tore the front out of a bicycle shop on King Street, several blocks away, the spokesman said. No injuries were reported.

Lavery's death brought to 205 the number of persons killed in two years of fighting in Northern Ireland involving the province's Roman Catholic minority, Protestant majority, the British Army and the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

The IRA has vowed to reduce Belfast to "a pile of rubble" by Christmas in revenge for alleged brutality by British troops questioning persons detained as suspected IRA members.

Monday 13 explosions, seven in the downtown shopping area, scattered Christmas shoppers and damaged buildings. Seven persons were injured, none seriously, the army said.

The spokesman said army demolition experts removed another bomb today from a gas station in Durham Street, just outside the downtown area.

Earlier, British soldiers wounded a civilian who refused to halt when soldiers challenged him on Stanfield Street, in the capital's market area.

Late Monday a machine gunner firing on British troops in Belfast shot and killed a young Roman Catholic woman.

In Dublin the city's Roman Catholic archbishop, John C. McQuaid, appealed for a fiveday Christmas truce in Northern Ireland. But Lt. Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, commander of British forces in the province, rejected the suggestion.

The army said Margaret McCorry, 20, was killed when a sniper opened fire on British troops from a house in the Catholic Crumlin Road area of Belfast as dusk fell. An army spokesman said Miss McCorry was standing at a bus stop when she was shot in the head by the sniper's bullet. The troops did not return the fire, the army said.

Miss McCorry was the 204th person killed in violence-related incidents in Northern Ireland in the past three years.

A bomb attack on a hardware store was foiled by a woman shopkeeper who grabbed the explosive device shortly after gunmen planted it at their getaway car. The bomb did not explode.

"They blew up the back of the shop previously and I was determined they would not get the front," said the woman, who asked not to be identified. "I did it all in a fit of bad temper. I did not think of the consequences at the time."

The bomb attacks followed a vow by the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) earlier this month that its men would reduce downtown Belfast to a "pile of rubble" by Christmas in their campaign to cripple the province's economy.

Red Commandos Raid Secret Laotian Base

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese commandos early today raided the secret Laotian base of CIA-supported guerrilla leader Gen. Vang Pao despite massive American air strikes carried out against increased resistance by North Vietnamese Migs and missiles.

Gen. Thongphan Knocksy, the official Laotian military spokesman, said in Vientiane that the military situation in Laos was deteriorating rapidly since the strategic Plain of Jars fell to the North Vietnamese on Monday.

The situation also was serious in Cambodia where a string of Communist successes have theateed the capitol of Phnom Penh and brought a grave political crisis that threatens the government of Premier Lon Nol.

U.S. military sources said stepped up Communist MIG and missile warfare had downed five U.S. planes over the weekend and two Laotian Air Force T28s, most of them over the Plain of Jars or near the border of North Vietnam and Laos.

U.S. sources said the American planes had hit antiaircraft and missile sites in Laos and in North Vietnam near the Quang Long Mig base, believed to be the base of Russian-built MIGS that downed one and possibly three of the American planes.

The Plain of Jars about 120 miles north of the Laotian capital of Vientiane controls almost every important highway in Laos and has been fought over for the past two decades with each side winning it from time to time.

Long Veng, the secret base of Gen. Vang Pao, is in the mountains about 20 miles below the Plain. Knocksy said 20 North Vietnamese commandos slipped into the base today, damaged a parked aircraft and burned three military barracks and a truck. Knocksy said three attackers and three defenders were killed and nine guards wounded.

Communists also fired two 122 millimeter rockets into Long Cheng Monday and although they misfired, they spoiled the New Year celebrations of the Meo hill tribesmen who are led by Vang Pao and financed by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Humboldt Atom Plant Now 'Safe'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. says it has taken corrective measures at its nuclear power plant on Humboldt Bay because of safety regulation violations pointed out by the Atomic Energy Commission.

A PG&E spokesman also said Monday that the two violations pointed out by the AEC did not endanger anyone and that procedures have been corrected to put the plant in compliance with regulations.

The violations came to public attention in a Wall Street Journal article concerning safety complaints made by Robert J. Rowen Jr., a plant technician who was fired by PG&E.

Rowen was discharged after writing the AEC saying that there were 49 violations at the Humboldt County plant.

One violation that PG&E said was corrected involved permitting an employe into an area in which the monitoring was inadequate for determining the possibility of radioactive dust.

The other was the failure to give two departing employes a report on their exposure to radiation.

135-Unit Apartment Plan Hit

The Marin County Planning Commission rejected a developer's proposal yesterday to place 135 new apartment and townhouse units on a Tamalpais Valley site previously designated for 45 units.

In tossing the Villa Marin Development proposal out, the commission voted 5-to-1 to limit development on the site to a maximum of 90 units. Commissioner John F. West, voting against the motion, maintained that figure was still too high.

As outlined by architect Norman T. Gilroy of Mill Valley, the Villa Marin proposal would have placed a combination of townhouse and apartment units on about two acres of the 7.5-acre site located on Tennessee Valley Road near Shoreline Highway.

The remaining area — made up mostly of a forested hillside — would be left as open space, he said.

Gilroy argued that the site — adjacent to another apartment development — has been designated for high density residential use since 1958 and that a great need exists for such housing in Marin.

However, his arguments failed to sway the commission which advised him to revise his plans to show no more than 90 units.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

CIRCLE V RANCH — Set Jan. 24 for a public hearing on rezoning the 400-acre Circle V Ranch west of Fairfax. The property is currently zoned for a planned development of about 70 homes but the landowner wants the density reduced so he can sell in 20-acre chunks.

LAND DIVISION — Upheld the appeal of William M. Nelson to split his property at the intersection of Shoreline Highway and Dolan Avenue in Tamalpais Valley. The division was denied by the zoning administrator last month since the new lots would be substandard in size. In overruling that decision, the commission noted the two new lots would be consistent in size with neighboring parcels.

VENETIA COVE — Approved rezoning 10.6 acres in Santa Venetia from suburban agricultural zoning to planned development zoning at seven units per acre. The site, proposed for the Venetia Cove townhouse development, is located on North San Pedro Road near Lowell Avenue. Venetia Cove developers had requested rezoning to nine and a half units per acre.

FLEA MARKET — Rejected a staff recommendation that the People's Community Market in Marin City be forced to build a fence around the market as a means of controlling access and parking.

Hauling Firm Operations Near End

Drastically reduced hauling operations by Toby's Trucking, Inc., said to have been the largest employer at Point Reyes Station, may find the trucking company obliged to close or move out of West Marin, its owner has announced.

The cutback, affecting most of the firm's 26 employees, has been caused by the loss of its bulk milk trucking for the Point Reyes Co-op Milk Producers, whose dairy products are sold under the Challenge label.

Last month a majority of co-op members voted to merge with the North Bay Milk Producers in Petaluma, which also supplies products to Challenge Foods, and have formed their own trucking system.

Toby Giacomini, who has operated Toby's Trucking for the past 30 years, said he plans to remain at Point Reyes Station through next summer and keep his hay business, but has to let about 22 drivers go. Most of these now have other jobs, some hauling for the North Bay Milk Producers group, Giacomini said. He now has much of his trucking equipment for sale.

Fifteen of the 45-member Point Reyes Co-op who did not join the North Bay Milk Producers are reported to have signed up with other milk processing organizations.

Giacomini said that if his hay operations and other trucking business do not pay off he probably will move out of point Reyes Station. He said he has not yet decided on a location.

Average Cost Of Toys Put At $32

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The average American child gets $32 worth of Christmas toys, according to a study by Crocker Bank.

The study released Monday noted that the California child fared a little better from Santa, getting $38 worth of toys.

Swift Nod On Bolinas Lagoon Plan

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday endorsed the controversial Bolinas Lagoon plan which designates the picturesque West Marin inlet as an ecological preserve with allowance for recreational viewpoints and visitor use.

Approval of the plan came swiftly and almost without comment before an audience of one woman who was attending the meeting on another matter.

During earlier hearings before the parks and recreation commission, West Marin residents complained bitterly that provision in the plan for recreational facilities around the lagoon would be ill-advised.

Their objections were rejected by the park and recreation commission as a selfish move to keep people away from their communities.

As proposed, the plan calls for observation points, nature interpretation centers, hiking trails and picnic and parking areas. It is required by the state which turned over trusteeship of the lagoon to the county a few years ago.

The plan must be adopted by the board of supervisors and turned over to the state within a year.

In endorsing the plan, the planning commission commended the park and recreation department as being "sensitive" to both the environmental and recreational aspects of the lagoon.

Vacant San Rafael Library Slot Filled

The San Rafael City Council last night appointed Richard H. Bradshaw III, 32, of 412 Jewell Street, to fill a vacancy on the city's library board. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said the council made the appointment from among five applicants because councilmen thought it would be desirable to add a professionally trained person to the board.

Bradshaw is a librarian at Tamalpais High School and holds a master's degree in library science from San Jose State College.

Other applicants were Robert E. Howard, Robert M. Mertz, Neil D. Schwed and Jeanne M. Wasp.

The San Rafael City Council also:

PROPERTY — Approved a resolution stating intention to accept a 70-foot strip of land between Dominic's restaurant and property owned by automobile dealer Hercules Viglienzone on Francisco Boulevard for a 40-foot strip on the other side of Viglienzone's property over the objections of the owners of the restaurant. Councilmen John A. Miskimen and Harry A. Barbier voted no.

CLAIMS — Postponed to the Jan. 3 meeting adoption of a procedure for processing claims presented to the city.

DRAINAGE — Agreed to call for bids Jan. 20 for drainage projects and improvements to Jacoby Street in East San Rafael Drainage Assessment District No. 1 estimated at $2,516,236 and set a public hearing on the matter for Feb. 14.

SEWAGE — Called for bids on phase two of the sanitary sewer reconstruction project for Jan. 14. The cost of the work in the Montecito and Dominican areas is $610,000 to $625,000.

SIGNS — Approved stop signs for the intersections of Docie and Simms streets, Mission Avenue and Embarcadero Way and Embarcadero Way and Marina Court.

PLAN — Agreed to send a letter from the planning commission which was critical of portions of the countywide preliminary plan to the City-County Planning Council of Marin. Councilmen Miskimen and Lawrence Mulryan voted no.

Longest Ride On BART Train Set At $1.25

OAKLAND (UPI)—The longest ride on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system will cost $1.25 under a fare structure approved by the BART Board of Directors.

The fares, approved Monday, are based on a scheme of three cents a mile up to 25 miles and one cent a mile after that.

It will cost $1.25 to ride from Fremont to Daly City.

Some typical fares include: anywhere within San Francisco, 30 cents; across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco, 55 cents.

The board eliminated a five-cent surcharge on trips to Daly City. The surcharge was recommended by the transportation committee because Daly City was outside the three-county system.

It also cut five cents off the fare from Concord and Union City to San Francisco, making the ride $1.20.

The directors elected George R. Silliman prefident. Silliman had been a director for 15 years.

Bandit Never Finished Count

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — "I'm gonna give you three to open that door," the bandit said Monday as he waived his gun at Stanley Sawicki, a teller at the Coraopolis branch of the Pittsburgh National Bank.

"One."

Sawicki said it was impossible for him to open the bank vault.

"Two."

Sawicki, trembling, insisted he couldn't get the vault open.

And then came the voice of the second of the three bandits: "We gotta go."

Unable to get the vault open, the bandits settled for cash behind the tellers' counter and fled with an undetermined amount of money, according to PNB spokesman C. W. Abel.

Coordinating Committee, Santa Clara County Medical Society, and Brisbane Citizens for Civic Progress.

Speaking for the Sierra Club's bay chapter, Peter H. Zars said the Bay Area segment of the plan was "nothing more than a warmed-up, leftover rehash of past history with future hopes."

He scored a host of details, including the placement of equipment to measure pollution. The measurements should be "down where people see, breathe and live pollution, not on the well-ventilated room of the Department of Public Health (in Berkeley), or 98 feet above Ellis Street (atop the district's headquarters in San Francisco)," he said.

It was Zars who suggested federal intervention because of the district's prediction that federal air quality standards will not be entirely met until 1985 — 10 years after the federal deadline.

He and other speakers urged that the plan be redrafted to include a permit system to govern all new air polluting facilities, including airport runways, freeways, bridges and industries.

Pollution, Zars declared, "will not cure itself; it will require specific economic surgery. Rampant technological growth is poisoning our cities, our countryside, to the detriment of us all."

Dr. Donald E. Watson of the Clean Air Coordinating Committee of Livermore, said the state board's plan should have provided for tough controls on industrial growth to control pollution, but instead chose "to pussyfoot around." He said the board "looks ridiculous by presuming to lecture EPA on various predictions of economic chaos which might accompany growth limitation.

"These threats are vague, ominous and frightening — but entirely unsubstantiated. In fact, I believe we are feeling the clumsy hand of the Chamber of Commerce here," he told the board.

Kathleen Becker of San Rafael, speaking for the League of Women Voters ofthe Bay Area, also scored the plan for being too vague."

Dr. Rodney Beard, a member of the state board's technical advisory committee, urged that the state train 10,000 citizens as a "pollution guard" to police enforcement controls by anti-pollution agencies. Speaking for the Santa Clara County Medical Society, he objected that the plan ignored this need for public education.

William Crowell of the Hastings Environmental Law Society, said that the plan had ignored the EPA's requirement that it include mandatory controls to curtail pollution when contamination reached dangerous levels.

He also criticized emission controls on 1972 cars, predicting most citizens will fail to follow the necessary 29 maintenance steps every 6,000 miles.

The statewide portion of the plan was targeted for special criticism by Richard S. Gaines of the Sierra Club's Loma Prieta chapter. The plan conceded that federal carbon monoxide standards will be met by the 1975 deadline in all but four of the state's air basins, he noted, but he added that more than 90 per cent of the state's population lives in these four basins.

The spokesman for the federal agency, Terry Stumph, testified that the Bay Area segment of the plan failed to make sense as part of an effective state plan. He said a "significant omission" in the Bay Area segment was its failure to consider controls to meet the 1975 deadline on oxidants.

Two spokesmen for industry assured the board of their support for the plan, but warned that tougher air pollution controls could hurt them and, in turn, the economy. Robert G. Trevorrow, vice chairman of Lone Star Industries, operator of 26 cement, concrete and aggregate plants in the state, urged "the maximum forbearance in the severity of the regulations, as well as the time allotted to industry for compliance."

Clifford Trammel, environmental director of the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association, claimed that congestion and pollution were reduced by construction of shopping and industrial centers by spreading out the work force and traffic. He also said that freeway construction reduces air pollution by allowing traffic to flow freely.

Trammel urged that contractors be given several years to comply with smog controls on off-highway equipment, and that it be required only on new equipment.

The state board, with only two of its 14 members present, commented rarely on testimony.

Bhutto Names Aide, Lays Down The Law

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Zulfiquar Ali Bhutto today appointed Nurul Amin as Vice President of West Pakistan and then, as chief martial law administrator, Bhutto issued a series of directives including one freeing students, laborers and peasants jailed by the military government.

In a speech to the nation Monday night Bhutto asked the Pakistani people to give him time to restore the country to democracy. He also pledged to regain East Pakistan, lost in the 14-day-war with India, but Indian sources in New Delhi said this was for Pakistani consumption.

Bhutto's directives as broadcast by Radio Pakistan included:

Sentences against students, laborers and peasants passed byythe military courts will stand remitted.

All pending death sentences handed down by ordinary criminal courts will be commuted to transportation (exile) for life.

Whipping sentences will not be administered.

Government officials will tighten measures against smuggling, hoarding and profiteering.

Forbade travel abroad by Pakistanis except students going abroad for education and government officials.

Ordered government ministers and other officials to fly tourist class when they travel abroad.

UPI correspondent Frederick H. Marks, reporting from Islamabad, said the government was virtually at a standstill waiting for the result of Bhutto's deliberations and consultations with political and military leaders.

Monday Bhutto fired seven generals including former President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan. Yahya Khan was ousted shortly after he had turned over the government to Bhutto.

He named Gen: Gul Hassan commander in chief of the armed forces and said the general would act as defense minister and foreign minister. Today he appointed former Foreign Minister Azia Ahmad as Secretary General of the Foreign Ministry.

Bhutto announced he would shortly visit the war-affected areas to meet the Jawans (soldiers) and civilian population. Today he met the governors of the Punjab, Sind and Northwest frontier province and addressed a meeting of police, security and intelligence leaders.

Former President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan had announced early in December that Amin would become president and Bhutto Vice President and Foreign Minister, but the loss of East Pakistan— now called the Peoples Republic of Bangla Desh—changed that.

Warsaw Radio indicated meanwhile that Warsaw might join India in recognizing the Soviet-supported Bangla Desh government. A broadcast heard in London said Bashir-ul-Alam had raised the flag of Bangla Desh in Warsaw, said he would serve as ambassador and that he would work for formal recognition. Warsaw Radio played the Bangla Desh anthem.

Political observers said there was little chance that Bhutto's selection of Amin would aid his East Pakistani cause. Amin is a political enemy of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader held on treason charges in West Pakistan, and has little political following in the East Wing.

Radio Pakistan also announced that Aziz Ahmad, former secretary of foreign affairs in the Pakistan government, has been appointed secretary general of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Pakistan Radio said the central government had forbidden all Pakistani except students and government officials to leave the country as of today. And on instructions of Bhutto, all government ministers, governors and officials were ordered to travel tourist class when on official duty.

Bhutto, in a speech Monday night, promised to reunite Pakistan and warned India not to become too complacent about same does not mean that it is still not very necessary, and perhaps even more important than it was.

"We live in a world where there are dangers on the scene today that no one could foresee 25 years ago, at the end of World War II, or even 10 years ago in 1961," Nixon said.

He said that while Heath seeks to explore new opportunities in Europe, "we in our own policies, seek to explore those opportunities for building a structure of peace, by these significant journeys to nations with which we have now and will continue to have very profound differences of philosophy."

In his toast, Heath also referred to the new relationship.

"A healthy relationship can withstand change," Heath said. "And as the date of Britain's entry into the European community approaches there will indeed be some changes in our relations.

"I see no cause for alarm or dismay in this. "In many fields our traditional ties will remain unchanged. We have always made it clear that we believe that a united Europe should maintain the closest possible links with the United States based on the vast area of common interests which we shall continue to share."

President Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler described Nixon as "very pleased" with his long hours of talks with Heath.

Sanity Hearing Ordered In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A sanity hearing was ordered yesterday in Central Sonoma Municipal Court for Carolyn Parsigian, 56, accused of assailing Msgr. Clyde Tillman of Petaluma.

Mrs. Parsigian was shceduled to appear today in Sonoma County Superior Court to begin the hearing. She was arrested Thursday at her Santa Rosa apartment after allegedly stabbing the priest in the back with a knife in front of St. Rose's Church, Santa Rosa.

Rev. Tillman, pastor of St. Vincent De Paul Church, was reported in fair condition and responding well to treatment at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital. He is not permitted visitors or telephone calls.

Santa Rosa police said Mrs. Parsigian had written letters complaining of harassment by the Catholic Church.

Jail Term For Burglary

Victor Royal Van Wagner, 28, of San Francisco yesterday drew a suspended state prison term in Marin Superior Court for burglary.

Judge E. Warren McGuire placed Van Wagner on supervised probation for 18 months and ordered him to serve nine months in Marin County Jail.

Van Wagner admitted the Nov. 5 burglary of a home on Sonora Avenue in Corte Madera.

about 20 minutes and had been gone about 90 minutes before the first police arrived at the scene.

Holiday Inn manager Erwin Rieck said police arrived at the motel less than 45 minutes after one of the two men registered at 7:34 p.m. Monday in a single-occupance $19-a-day room. Rieck was unaware the man was later joined by a second man and woman.

Rieck said the raid by "eight or 10" policemen was carried out so quietly that none of the motel's other guests was aware of what was happening.

Police have described the robbery Saturday as "beautifully planned" and thoroughly "professional." Staged in 10 minutes, the gang then gave themselves a 90-minute headstart on police by locking bank employes in a washroom.

Yule-Decorated Home Wins $25

The Leo R. Harning residence at 128 Peacock Drive has won first place in the Peacock Gap Homeowners' Association Christmas lighting contest, Mary Carpou, association secretary, announced today.

The home's decorations were done in red and white, including red packages and a white snow-like cover, Mrs. Carpou said.

Harning will receive $25 for the first prize.

Second prize of $15 was won by the residence of Mack B. Johnson at 11 Riviera Place, and $10 third prize was awarded to the Herman A. Pieczentkowski residence at 118 Fernwood Drive, Mrs. Carpou said.

First Under 21 Jurists Selected

RENO (UPI) —Two 18-year-old Reno students are the first under-21 voters in Nevada selected for a jury list.

Robert Soma, data processing systems analyst, said 3,013 names were run through the Washoe County computer Monday and named jurists were Cynthia Warwick and John Alexander Erwin.

"I'm sure these are the first voters under 21 to be selected for jury duty in Nevada," said Soma. "They could be the first ones in the United States, but we have no idea if anybody else uses the same selection techniques."

Sanitary Panel Picks President

Eugene Ostaggi last night was named president and treasurer of the Ross Valley Sanitary District as the district's board reorganized.

Peter A. Ribar, who had been president and secretary, was named treasurer, a post that had been held by Ostaggi.

The board last night also approved an agreement to lease storage space at the district's plant site to San Rafael Equipment Co. of San Rafael in exchange for the district's use of the company's hydroflusher, according to district manager Ralph C. Noah.

OBITUARIES

W. Marin Ex-Rancher D. McClure

Funeral for David H. McClure, former West Marin rancher who died in Placerville Sunday, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Chapel of the Pines in Placerville.

McClure, 63, died in an El Dorado County hospital following a short illness.

He was born on a ranch on property now occupied by Radio Corporation of America in Point Reyes and lived in West Marin until five years ago. McClure's mother, the late Margaret McClure, donated McClure's Beach to the county about 25 years ago.

McClure and his brother, the late John McClure, operated the Pierce Ranch, a 1,200-acre ranch where they had a herd of 1,000 cattle. That ranch was sold to Land Investors Research, a holding company, in 1966, and is now the subject of a condemnation suit by the government which seeks it for the Point Reyes National Seashore.

After the sale of the ranch, McClure moved to Diamond Springs, a suburb of Placerville in El Dorado County. He worked as a bailiff in the El Dorado County courthouse.

McClure was a member of the Mother Lode Lions Club and American Legion Post 119. He was a veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Grace E. McClure of Diamond Springs; two sons, David and Dennis McClure of Diamond Springs; two stepsons, James Oswalt of Novato and Kenneth Eckstein of Placerville; a stepdaughter, Shirley Falconer of Mill Valley; two brothers, William McClure of Corte Madera and James McClure of Point Reyes, and three sisters, Elizabeth Small and Helen Driscoll of San Francisco and Annie Kilpatrick of Livermore.

Burial will be in Westwood Hills Memorial Park in Placerville.

The family prefers contributions to a favorite charity.

ESTHER McDANIEL

Esther McDaniel, 42, a substitute teacher in Marin and Sonoma counties, died yesterday at a local hospital after becoming ill at her home at 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma.

The Sonoma County Coroner's office said death was apparently due to natural causes. Her husband, Frederick McDaniel, a Western Union employee in San Rafael, said his wife went to bed early and that he could not awaken her at 11 p.m.

Mrs. McDaniel was born in Los Angeles and reared in Stockton where she graduated from University of the Pacific. She had been a teacher for 19 years and had lived in Petaluma for two years.

Mrs. McDaniel was a member of the American Association of University Women.

She is also survived by two brothers, Albert Molina of Lagunitas and Hubert Mokina of Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

VIRGINIA KENT

Private Mass of the Resurrection for Virginia Kent, retired administrator of the San Francisco Unified School District, was offered yesterday at St. Raphael's Catholic Church, San Rafael.

She died, after a long illness, Friday at her home at 146 Ridgewood Drive, San Rafael.

She was born and reared in San Francisco, living there until moving to San Rafael seven years ago. For 43 years she had been a teacher and administrator with the San Francisco schools, retiring a year and a half ago. She was 64.

She is survived by her mother, Camille A. Kent; a sister, Tennessee Kent and a brother, Walter C. Kent, all of San Rafael.

Entombment was at Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

A Big Jump In Riders Of Buses

The Golden Gate Bridge District's new local bus system in Marin carried 3,099 passengers yesterday — a jump of nearly 2,100 from last week's opening day 1,000.

The district's transportation developer, Jerome Kuykendall, said the Dec. 13 passenger count of 1,000 was about double the average daily patronage reported by Marin Transit Systems Inc. after a year of operation.

A. W. SCHMITZ

Anthony W. Schmitz of Tiburon died yesterday in a local hospital after collapsing at work, according to the Marin County coroner's office, which said death was apparently from natural causes. He was 46.

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, he came to California and Marin County 10 years ago and resided at 45K Redhill Circle. He was a sail maker for the Peter M. Sutter Co., of Sausalito and a veteran of World War II.

Schmitz is survived by his wife, Helen A. Schmitz of Tiburon, three sisters and six brothers, all of Ohio.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley. Burial will be in Willamette National Cemetery, Portland, Ore.

NELL YOUENS

Funeral for Nell B. Youens, of Corte Madera, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary in San Rafael.

Mrs. Youens, 87, died Sunday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in San Francisco. For 30 years before her retirement, she was a secretary for the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. She lived in Marin County for 20 years, making her home at 711 Meadowsweet Drive before moving into a rest home two years ago.

She is survived by a son, Arthur B. Youens of Belfair, Wash.; a brother, Winfield E. Brace of Oakland and two grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

R. S. BAUM

Private funeral for Robert S. Baum of Sausalito, who was killed Saturday in a hunting accident in Merced County, has been held in Los Altos.

Baum, 49, died after being accidentally shot by a fellow duck hunter in a Los Banos duck blind.

He was an executive with Crown Zellerbach Co. in San Francisco, where he had worked for 25 years.

Baum was born in San Jose. His home in Sausalito was at 84 Crescent Avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Sally, of the family address; two sons, Roberts E. and Bradley S. Baum, both of Los Altos, and his mother, Mrs. Burt Baum of San Carlos.

The family prefers donations to the Cancer Society.

C. L. GALLATIN

Requiem Mass for Charles L. Gallatin of Corte Madera will be celebrated at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Joseph's Catholic Church at 1415 Howard Street, San Francisco.

Gallatin died Sunday in San Francisco.

He was born and reared in San Francisco. He moved to Marin County 24 years ago and lived at 127 Palm Avenue. He had worked as a fireman for the Treasure Island Fire Department for 25 years before retiring.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara Gallatin; his mother, Sarah Gallatin; a stepson, William McCarthy; four sisters, Lorraine Powers, Grace Gallatin, Rhoda Perry and Ramona Gallatin, and two brothers, Edward Gallatin and Willis Gallatin.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Gantner-Felder-Kenny Chapel at 1965 Market Street, San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

SURPRISE VISITOR TO FAIRFAX

Santa Claus — who has appeared just about everywhere in Marin thus far, arriving in just about every kind of conveyance except a sleigh — makes it to Fairfax in a 1929 fire engine. Frank Stocking as Santa, driven by Pat Stocking of the Fairfax Fire Department, brightened street corners throughout the city yesterday, passing out candy to youngsters and giving townsfolk the old ho-ho-ho en route.

Council Pay Is Eyed Once Again

The Mill Valley City Council revived the old issue of salaries for councilmen last night as it held first reading on an ordinance to pay councilmen $150 per month.

Second reading and possible adoption of the ordinance will be held at 8 p.m. Jan. 3 at city hall.

Councilman Robert H. Andresen said he favors salaries but couldn't support them because voters rejected them in 1968.

The other four councilmen, however, approved the stipend, which could not take effect until after next April's municipal elections.

Jean S. Barnard presented a list showing five of Marin's 11 cities pay no council salaries, but that three of the five — Ross, Belvedere and Larkspur — meet only once a month.

Of the councils meeting twice per month, only Mill Valley and Tiburon pay no salaries and Tiburon is on the verge of considering them, she said.

Jerome C. Hauke said he opposed salaries when he was elected in 1968 but had changed his mind since.

The Mill Valley City Council Also:

PARKING — Referred to staff a proposal that parking be banned on downtown streets in the early morning hours to allow for street sweeping.

DRAIN — Awarded a $3,741 contract to W. K. McLellan Co. for storm drain work on Willow Lane.

APPOINTMENTS — Heard Mayor George E. Wickham appoint Ivan S. Poutiatine and John DeBecker to the planning commission for confirmation by the council at the next meeting. The council confirmed the appointment of William D. Devlin to the commission.

MILLER AVENUE — Agreed to send a letter to the Marin County Board of supervisors reiterating the city's opposition to widening of Shoreline Highway instead of extending Miller Avenue near Dolan's corners.

STEPS — Voted up to $400 to repair 12 steps on Madrona Lane.

CITY HALL — Put off until Jan. 3 discussion of expanding city hall or leasing new office space for the building and planning department.

PARKING — Established a no-parking zone in front of the Miller Avenue landslide and eliminated a no-parking zone in front of the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant nearby.

APPEAL — Endorsed Normand B. Black's appeal of the Marin County Planning Commission's approval of a Howard Johnson's office building at Shoreline Highway and Highwav 101.

HOUSE — Accepted a planning commission recommendation that a title search be initiated to determine the ownership of a street right-of-way on Janes Street. The existence of a house built partly on the right-of-way at 55 Janes Street was discovered recently by the city, and the planning commission has recommended either selling or giving the land to homeowner L.E. Robinson.

DELAY — Extended to April 30, 1972, deadline for payment of $10,000 by developer Peter C. Haywood for improvements to Sycamore Avenue adjacent to Haywood's condominium development at Sycamore and LaGoma Street. The original deadline was Dec. 31.

ANNEX — Asked the Marin County Local Agency Formation commission not to allow Tiburon to proceed with annexation of a portion of the Strawberry Peninsula until Mill Valley has had a chance to try annexation in the area.

Mill Valley Opposes Sewer District Plan

Consolidation of Southern Marin sanitary districts under an independent sanitation district, approved last week by representatives of eight sanitary agencies, was opposed last night by the Mill Valley City Council.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke, Mill Valley's representative to the Advisory Board for Improvement District A, asked the council to reaffirm its support of consolidation under direction of the Marin Municipal Water District.

Hauke was one of three representatives to vote Wednesday against consolidation under a sanitation district, which would be governed by city councilmen and sanitary district board members in Southern Marin.

However, Hauke and representatives of the Alto and Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary districts were outvoted, 5-3.

Hauke said he thought Mill Valley "stands a reasonable chance of defeating it (the sanitation district'" before the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission, which must approve the consolidation.

Other agencies involved in the proposed consolidation are the Alto, Almonte, Richardson Bay and Tiburon sanitary districts and the Tamalpais Community Services District.

Money-Giving 'Should Increase'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The economic situation will be brighter in 1972 than this year, a leading money raiser said Monday.

David S. Ketchum, president of Ketchum, Inc., one of the nation's largest fund raising firms, said in a statement:

"Considering philanthropy as a significant economic indicator, there is evidence that the American economy is really on the move. Total giving in 1972 should break the $20 billion mark for the first time in history."

He said that in 1971, there was "considerably more strength" for gift-supported institutions than many had anticipated."

Reed School Surplus Sold

Bargain hunters paid a total of $524 Saturday for surplus desks, chairs and tables sold as obsolete by the Reed School District.

Business manager Charles L. Condrotte said the furniture, priced at $1 per item, was bought mainly by parents who wanted to give their children a place to study at home. A few private schools also purchased some of the furniture, he said.

Approximately two-thirds of the items were sold, and Condrotte said he is looking for buyers for the remainder of the furniture.

The district also gave away several hundred obsolete textbooks, most of them to private schools, Condrotte said.

Building Fee Claim Is Booted

The Mill Valley City Council last night quickly denied a claim for $100,000 by the Marin Builders Exchange over allegedly excessive building fees.

The claim maintans the city collected approximately $150,000 in building inspection fees between December 1968 and December 1971 but spent only about $50,000 to run the building department.

The builders allege that state law prohibits use of building inspection fees for general fund purposes but this is in fact being done by Mill Valley.

Last night's denial of the claim was mostly a formality, since the council in July failed to act on a similar request for a refund.

A suit on behalf of the Kendall Construction Co. of Mill Valley has been filed in Marin Superior Court. That suit, which seeks to recover the alleged excess fees, still is under consideration by the court.

12,000 Accidents

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)— There were 12,704 road accidents in Malaysia during 1970 in which 579 people died and 7,034 were injured. Registered vehicles on the road totaled 699,294 by December, 1970.

Plan Launched To Change Dog Controls

A Mill Valley resident last night served notice on the city council that he is working to bring the city's dog control ordinances to a vote of the people.

David Marcus, of 500 Throckmorton Avenue, said he will attempt to collect the signatures of 975 voters, 15 per cent of the city's registered voters in order to put the measure on the ballot.

The council, in effect, told Marcus he could take any action he wants but the laws will not be repealed.

If Marcus succeeds in obtaining the signatures of 15 per cent of the city's voters, said City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, the city would have to call a special election. If 10 per cent of the voters sign the petition, the election would be held at the next regular city election.

Councilman Robert H. Andresen said he was of the opinion that the city's residents want stricter enforcement of the ordinances governing dogs, including the one requiring dogs to be on leases in downtown and park areas.

Oil Spill Cases Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Superior Court Judge Ira A. Brown Jr. Monday dismissed two lawsuits seeking $20 million from Standard Oil of California for the big Jan. 18 oil spill caused by the collision of two tankers.

The suits said that Standard Oil should pay persons who aided in cleaning up the beaches and rescuing wildlife after the collision which caused an 840,000-gallon spill in San Francisco Bay.

Brown said the class actions were impractical and each person who had a claim should sue Standard Oil individually.

Attorney Gary Near said he would appeal the decision. He filed a $12 million action. The other lawyer, Helen Culiner, said it was not known whether she would appeal. Her suit amounted to $6 million.

FINALLY — A CHRISTMAS DINNER

Reg Smith, 42, will have his first Christmas dinner in 39 years. Smith, of Brisbane, Australia, swallowed caustic soda when he was 3 and until recently had lived on liquids. Three months ago an operation was performed which enables him to eat and drink normally. But the unaccustomed exercise make his jaws ache, he says.

2-Member Panel Picked For Merger Discussions

The Ross School District board last night set up a two-member committee to plan a joint meeting of Ross and Kentfield trustees to discuss merger of the districts.

According to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson, the board named trustees Dr. Gwynn Thomson and Sally Ann Rakow to arrange the date along with a like committee of Kentfield trustees.

Anderson said merger talks have been held intermittently for four years, but nothing has come of them.

The Ross School District Board Also:

NEW TEACHER — Hired Jewell K. Dodge as a temporary teacher for the rest of the school year for $5,601 to teach a third second grade class formed to handle a larger than normal number of second graders.

REPRESENTATIVE — Appointed trustee Thomson to represent the trustees at meetings of the Marin County School Boards Association.

EMERGENCY SERVICES — Approved the countywide disaster agency and its plans to meet emergencies.

SOCCER — Heard a report that the Ross Soccer League will be expanded in the spring to include a girls' league.

MATH — Commended seventh and eighth grade students David Ballard, Jake Eschen, Don Seitz, Seth Miller and John Norby for placing first in a mathematics competition against peers from throughout the Tamalpais High School District.

AUDIT — Accepted the 1970-71 audit prepared by Sleezer and Eckhoff.

SUPERINTENDENT — Renewed Anderson's contract for two years at the same salary, $20,000 a year.

PRINCIPAL — Gave the Ross School principal, William M. Cooper, a two-year contract at the same pay, $18,000 a year.

BOWLING — Heard a report that a first period girls' physical education class will be allowed to take bowling for physical education.

MUSIC REVIEW

Overdue Debut By Young Vocalists

In its long overdue Marin County debut, Madi Bacon's San Francisco Boys Chorus presented an extraordinary program yesterday afternoon to an audience of about 200 people in the Fine Arts Building Theater at College of Marin.

This chorus of 40 boys between the ages of 8 and 13 is one of the Bay Area's most competent vocal groups.

Yesterday's performance was a beautiful demonstration of the breadth of their abilities. The two-hour program ranged from a 13th Century motet to contemporary folk songs — all sung without a sheet of music.

From the outset communication between director Bacon and the choir was phenomenal. Clarity of tone, trueness of pitch, and balance of ensemble were the tools of expression. Miss Bacon rarely conducted in the formal sense, but would make occasional spontaneous motions to bring out expressive passages. A subtle hand motion turned into a delicate lilt in a phrase, while a clenched fist turned into a powerful vocal forte.

Along with the choral work, several of the boys performed solos of an amazing professional quality.

Soprano Gary Levy has an exceptionally beautiful, clear and strong voice with an interpretative maturity that defies his years. With eloquent sotto voce passages, extended crescendos, and careful rhythmic phrasing, his performance of Mozart's "Laudate Dominum" was truly magnificent.

Pianist David Sigal, who also accompanied the chorus, performed two solo works by Chopin and Dohnanyi. Chopin's Scherzo in B Flat Minor is an acrobatic work that requires considerable ability just to get through. Sigal went far beyond. He plays cleanly and makes a lot out of dynamic contrasts. His rubatos were always subtle and consistent. On the large scale, it was a remarkably mature performance.

Brad Brennan and Lenny Kelm, with their guitars, assisted the eleven Ensemble Singers as they created individual holiday moods — "Doing their own thing" as Miss Bacon put it.

Folk songs like "Go tell it on the mountain", and "When the spirits sing", nearly had the audience involved in a very exciting sing-in.

In its 24 years of existence, the San Francisco Boys Chorus has graduated over 1,000 boys, who besides their voice training have had extensive instruction in theory, sight singing, harmony, and composition along with conducting, languages, diction, and acting.

It is a remarkable group. I hope we will be honored by more return engagements. R.N.

Marriage Dissolved

Mary Jo Murray, former chairman of the North Marin Chapter of the Junior Social Service Auxiliary, and her husband William W. Murray have dissolved their marriage of 17 years.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court approved the dissolution last Friday on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Mrs. Murray, who lives at 419 Calle De La Mesa, Ignacio, said they were married in Reno in 1954, and separated on May 15 this year. They have two minor children, aged 16 and 10.

He must pay $150 per month support for each child.

Revolvers Stolen From Hall Of Justice Office

Two revolvers were stolen from desks in the Marin County District Attorney's office during the weekend, but one was found discarded near the Civic Center Lagoon, still fully loaded.

Lt. Ronald Retana, who heads the Civic Center Security Division, said there was no evidence of a break-in, and he has no idea who took the weapons or how. The only ones who have access to the hall of Justice offices after hours are the maintenance crew and security patrols.

Joshua W. Thomas and J. Michael Anthony, deputies in the district attorney's office, came to work yesterday morning and found their .38 - caliber snub-nosed revolvers missing from their desks. They were not sure whether they locked the desks before leaving Friday night.

In the meantime, one of the revolvers, Anthony's, had been picked up at the south end of the lagoon near the water fountains by a security patrolman, Larry Woodall, Sunday afternoon.

Congress repeals automobile excise tax.

Tax savings up to $278 on a new Chevrolet.

We can't take credit for the savings listed here. Thank Uncle Sam for that. But we're elated that a new Chevrolet is now priced lower. It makes our better way to see the U.S.A. even better.

All extra cost equipment is priced lower, too. For example, if you equip a new Impala with Four-Season Air Conditioning, a popular vinyl roof cover and power windows, the price will be reduced an additional $33.80. What it all adds up to is an even better value when you buy a new Chevrolet, making it easier for you to get what we both want: your new Chevrolet to be the best car you ever owned.

The tax savings listed below are for the models shown with all standard equipment based on Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices in effect December 1, 1971.

Many dealers still have a good selection of 1972 cars at the lower 1971 prices on which the Excise Tax savings are slightly less.

Seven Hurt In Series Of Accidents

A 25-year-old Napa woman was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital after a one-car accident on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

Six other persons were injured on Marin highways yesterday and today, according to the California Highway patrol.

Trudy L. Simning, of Napa, suffered a back injury and a cut forehead at 4:40 p.m. when the car in which she was riding skidded off Shoreline one-half mile south of Panoramic Highway and into an embankment, according to the patrol.

BUMP ON HEAD

Officers said the driver, Thomas W. Suellau, 29, also of Napa, told them he would seek treatment for a bump on the head.

Lisa C. Duggan, 17, of Upland, San Bernardino County, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital for observation of a head injury.

The patrol said she was a passenger in a car which struck a utility pole at the Bridgeway entrance to northbound Highway 101, north of Sausalito at 9:50 p.m. yesterday.

The driver of the car, Robert C. Bynog, 22, of Chino, San Bernardino County, also was taken to the hospital, the patrol said, but officials there had no record of him.

In a third accident, William D. Kelly Jr., 54, of 54 San Marino Drive, San Rafael, suffered cuts and bruises in a three-car pileup on Highway 101 in San Rafael.

The highway patrol said Kelly was northbound in heavy traffic at 5:40 p.m. when his car struck the rear of a vehicle driven by Norman S. Halsey III, 52, of San Francisco, pushing it into the rear of a car operated by Viola M. Swanson, 46, of 4 Laurelwood Court, San Rafael.

IS TREATED

Kelly was treated at Marin General Hospital.

William T. Brannigan, 24, of 1311 Kaehler Street, Novato, was injured at 11 p.m. yesterday in a one-car accident on Bolinas Road south of Fairfax, the patrol said.

Officers said his car left the road, plunged down an embankment and hit a tree. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Philip J. Perry, 23, of San Bruno, was treated at the hospital for a bruised chest following a one-car crash on Highway 101 at 1:35 a.m. today.

Officers said his northbound car hit the center divider one-half mile south of the Highway 37 interchange in Novato.

LBJ's Family To Gather For Tree Ceremony

STONEWALL, Tex. (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, his wife Lady Bird, and their children and grandchildren will gather tonight for a tree-lighting ceremony and a session of Christmas carol singing.

Officials said one of Johnson's four grandchildren will turn on the lights of the official Christmas tree at the LBJ State Park, near the LBJ ranchhouse —probably with an assist from grandfather.

The children and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Nugent of Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robb of Charlottesville, Va., will stay for a caroling program and a social hour afterward at the park's visitor center.

PAUL S. TAYBI
Ceremony next Monday

Paul Taybi To Receive Eagle Award

Paul S. Taybi, 14-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Hooshang Taybi of 120 Gelder Drive, Tiburon, will receive the Eagle Award at a court of honor at 8 p.m. next Monday at the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon.

Paul, a freshman at Redwood High School, has been a Boy Scout for three years, serving as patrol leader, quartermaster and now as assistant senior patrol leader.

For his Eagle Scout service project he prepared a display showing techniques used in the X-ray examination of children. The exhibit is now on display in the waiting room of the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Oakland.

Paul's interests include camping, hiking, coin collecting, skiing and tropical fish. He is a member of Community Congregational Church, which sponsors his Boy Scout troop, Troop 148.

Rollin M. Warner Jr., former Scoutmaster for the troop, will present the award to Paul.

Black School Faces Cutback

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—Shaw University, one of the leading black schools in the nation, is expected to announce soon a 50 per cent cutback in faculty and staff.

The disclosure came Sunday in a Raleigh News and Observer interview with Shaw president, Dr. Archie Hargraves, who said the school is facing a financial crisis.

Hargraves said Shaw was operating $1 million in the red and was in the worst financial shape in its 106-year-old history.

To regain sound footing, the school will dismiss about 100 of its 200 faculty and staff members before July 1. Last summer 20 per cent were cut.

Drug Charges Draw Guilty Pleas By Pair

Clayton Stephen Anderson, 22, and Kenneth Wilkes Bright, 22, both of San Rafael, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to drug charges. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Jan. 24 for sentencing.

Anderson admitted selling amphetamines and marijuana, and Bright admitted selling narcotics and pot. They were arrested last June 4 by narcotics agents who said an undercover man had bought marijuana, amphetamine and other drugs from the pair in April and May.

New Sewer Plan To Be Studied

A recommendation by eight Southern Marin sanitary districts that a new agency be created to take over waste treatment in Southeast Marin will be considered by the Marin Municipal Water District board at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district office in Corte Madera.

At their meeting last Wednesday, the sanitary district representatives, members of an advisory committee to Improvement District A, agreed an agency other than the water district should be formed to build and maintain treatment facilities in Southern Marin.

For the past several months a controversy has raged over whether future treatment should be provided by a sanitary district (governed by elected directors), a sanitation district (governed by represenatatives of the present sanitary districts and cities in Southern Marin) or by the water district itself.

Improvement district A was established by the water district a year ago to study consolidation of the eight sewage agencies and is empowered by work only up to the point of a bond issue to finance consolidation.

The advisory committee has also asked the district to dissolve Improvement District A and form Improvement District B, which would hold the bond election and build and maintain collection and treatment facilities until a consolidated sanitary agency comes into being.

In other business the water district board will act on an application from the Ross Grammar School for a land use permit to allow the school to use a portion of an old district pumphouse for an ecology study center.

Grand Theft Pleas Are Guilty

Roy Chester Johnson, 27, and Anthony Paul Bell, 18, of San Francisco, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of grand theft. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Jan. 17 for sentencing the pair.

They were arrested Sept. 16 and charged with burglarizing the home of Herman A. Vanderkamp on Ridgecrest Road in Kent Woodlands. After negotiations with the district attorney, the burglary charge was amended to grand theft.

Club Given Time To Solve Parking

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night gave the Lion's Share, a rock nightclub, 60 days to present solutions to inadequate parking.

The commission also said it would use that period to look at the effectiveness of the club's new approach to late night vandalism on neighboring side streets.

The club at 60 Red Hill Avenue, has drawn neighbors' complaints that its music is too loud, its patrons sometimes loud and partying on nearby doorsteps and that parking spaces for residents' guests are preempted.

After a lengthy discussion last night, the commission settled on a requirement of "about 50 parking spaces" to be provided on and off-street by the Lion's Share.

The club's maximum capacity is 150 and often on weekends it is filled, according to the club's owner Michael Considine.

Attorney Hadden Roth, representing Considine, said he would negotiate with Atlantic-Richfield for use of the nearby ARCO service station's 25 extra parking spaces.

Roth questioned the "50 or spaces" that the commission had come up with at a previous meeting, because Roth said the ordinance only requires about 29 — one per 100 feet of the club's 2,900 feet.

Commissioner Phillip Heinecke said because of the number of people attending, an exception should be made.

Roth also told the commission and two Forbes Street residents that a security guard, hired by the Lion's Share, would patrol the area on weekends perhaps alleviating vandalism in the area.

Ellen Abernathy of 22 Forbes — around the corner from the club — said youths would wake her in the middle of the night, after the club had closed, with screams and partying. In the morning, Mrs. Forbes said, she would find beer cans and wine bottles discarded on her lawn.

Roth said there was no complaint the last two weekends when the security guard was on duty. Roth also said that the loud music was only bothersome when the club's doors were open.

San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

AMENDMENTS — Put over until the next meeting hearing amendments to zoning ordinance.

REZONING — Put over application by owner John Komo to rezone 154-158 Tunstead Avenue and 39 City Hall Avenue.

TWO-FAMILY — Denied application by George and Vicka Surovtsov to rezone from single — family residential to two-family at 122 Sycamore Avenue.

SCHOOL — Granted application to conduct a nursery school at 1509 Sir Franics Drake in the Church of the Nazarene to James A. and Angela Gonsman.

NIGHTCLUB — Granted application to Peter Montalbano, to operate a place of business serving alcoholic beverages and providing entertainment at the Tale of the Tiger, 726 San Anselmo Avenue.

SHED — Granted application for variance in sideyard setback for shed and awning at 500 Center Boulevard to Donald W. Welty.

Security To Be Tight For Angela

SAN JOSE (UPI) — The courtroom security for the trial of Angela Davis has been tightened to include closed circuit television, an alarm system and metal detectors.

Miss Davis, 27, a self-avowed Communist and former UCLA philosophy instructor, will go on trial Jan. 31 in Santa Clara County Superior Court in San Jose. She is accused of murder, kidnap and conspiracy resulting from a bloody gunbattle at the Marin County Civic Center in San Rafael.

SECURITY ORDER

The courtroom security order was signed yesterday by Santa Clara County Superior Court Judges John T. Racanelli and Marshall Hall, who said the action was requested by the sheriff's department.

The judges also issued work orders for security lighting, erection of a portable building for spectator searches, and the conversion of an existing juvenile section on the second floor of the main county jail for a cell for Miss Davis.

Additional sheriff's deputies also were ordered to follow Miss Davis when moved from her cell to the courtroom, to search spectators and to conduct a roving patrol.

The judges also called for the purchase of 16 additional walkie-talkies and other electronic gear.

CHANGE OF VENUE

The trial, which has been delayed for months in pre-trial proceedings, was transferred to San Jose on a change of venue motion.

In the San Rafael shooting, a judge, two convicts and an outside accomplice died on Aug. 7, 1970. The accomplice, Jonathan Jackson, 17, had smuggled weapons into a courtroom in an attempt to help the convicts make an escape.

Jackson was the brother of George Jackson, who died in August in an attempt to break out of San Quentin prison.

Firm Called Free Enterprise Promoter

Alexander Taylor Inc., a San Rafael clothing firm headed by cosmetics king William Penn Patrick, is not an endless chain type of operation but a legitimate enterprise that encourages free competition, two marketing experts testified yesterday.

Dr. Charles Lapp, professor of marketing at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., and Dr. Steven Baumgarten, associate professor of marketing at University of Wisconsin, testified for the clothing firm before Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

The state attorney general filed suit last August, charging that the company is an endless chain operation and violates the State Franchise Investment Law.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., attorney for Alexander Taylor, drew from the marketing experts testimony that the company requires no franchise fee because distributors purchase inventory that is resaleable.

Dr. Lapp and Dr. Baumgarten said that the marketing plan used by Alexander Taylor is not only legal but actually promotes free enterprise and competition.

The judge set Jan. 18 as time for final arguments by both the company and the state, represented by Diana Woodward Cohan and Michael J. Kelly, deputies in the attorney general's office in San Francisco.

Stolen Property Case Trial Set

Donald H.L. DeSurville, 35, of Kentfield, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of receiving stolen property. Judge E. Warren McGuire set his trial for Feb. 22.

DeSurville, owner of Town and Country billiards, in Kentfield, was arrested Nov. 12 on a charge that he received a valuable coin collection stolen from a Larkspur home on Oct. 26.

Ted Unfazed By Chappaquiddick

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was quoted Monday as saying the Chappaquiddick tragedy would not affect his political plans.

In an excerpt from a forthcoming book, "Ted Kennedy: His Triumphs and Tragedies," published in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal, Kennedy said:

Whether the accident is fading as an issue or not is not my criterion for being in public office or staying out of it."

He also was reported to have said he did not think what happened at Chappaquiddick was responsible for his defeat as Senate democratic whip last January.

Petaluma, Swim Club In Fee Stalemate

The Petaluma City Council stalemated last night in negotiations with the Petaluma Swim Club on cost sharing for winter use of the municipal swim center.

A council committee recommended the swim club be permitted use of the pool in January, February and March if it pays utility bills estimated at $1,150 per month. The city would pay $250 per month for normal utility bills and for reheating the pool.

Swim club president Thomas Nolan said the charge "would bankrupt the club" and that it could afford to pay only $500 per month since most of its annual budget of $18,000 is for salaries for four coaches for the 300 youthful swimmers and for pool rental.

Councilman Richard Clecak said the committee agreed that the city could not reduce charges further for the club because the pool is already $14,000 in the red from last year.

Attorney Clyde Nelson, a club director, argued unsuccessfully that the club should not be expected to finance both the coaches salaries and pool costs.

Offers to split the costs in half were rejected by the council as well as a club request to rent the pool for $500 in January while negotiations on costs continue. "We've got to do something for January," Nolan said. "We'd hate to lose our momentum," he said, explaining that competitive swimmers must practice at least 11 months of the year to remain in statewide competition.

The council urged Nolan to take the problem to a general membership meeting of the club on Jan. 5 and to return to the council meeting on Jan. 17 to continue discussion.

The Petaluma City Council also:

WATER — Heard City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer report the Sonoma County Water Agency yesterday approved installation of a new booster station at Cotati and new wells on the Russian River which should provide enough water for Petaluma and North Marin to meet demand next summer.

WARRANTS — Expressed interest in a countywide plan to computerize traffic and criminal warrants. Police Chief Larry D. Higgins said Sonoma County would bear 75 per cent of the cost and that Petaluma's share was estimated at $1,017 for the first year.

CURBS — Heard Heritage Homes of Petaluma urge that the council encourage the retention of cobblestone curbs where feasible.

BASEBALL — Heard that the American Little League had withdrawn its request to enlarge the ballfield at Lucchesi Park because of conflicts with the nearby soccer field.

Fixture Stolen

A light fixture valued at $75 was taken during the weekend from a home under construction by the Marken Corporation of Oakland at 176 Esmeyer Drive, San Rafael police reported today.

Armed Robbery Innocent Plea

Ernest Barrow Biard, 18, of San Francisco, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of armed robbery. Judge E. Warren McGuire set Feb. 7 as the date of trial.

Biard and George Gregory Watts, 18, also of San Francisco, are accused of holding up John D. Mackie and Sandra Pazamickas in their San Rafael apartment on Oct. 29. The victims told police that four men robbed them at gunpoint, gagged and threatened them before taking off with about $600 in cash and personal belongings.

Watts is scheduled to appear tomorrow for plea to the robbery charge.

$700 Sable Scarf Taken From Store

A $700 sable scarf was stolen yesterday from a fitting room at Livingston's store at the Northgate Mall, San Rafael police reported today.

Police said Lois B. Dohrmann, 55, of 36 Dominican Drive, San Rafael, told them she left the scarf in the fitting room while she tried on some new clothes and it was gone when she returned to the room.

Absenteeism In Congress Is Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, has proposed a constitutional amendment that would remove from office any senator or congressman who failed to vote at least 60 per cent of the time.

Mrs. Smith, who has one of the best voting records in Congress, directed her ire toward the absenteeism of several senators who are considered potdntial presidential candidates.

She said the absences of the presidential candidates, "moonlighters" and "junketeers" was a disgrace to the Senate.

Corte Madera Councilmen Rip Into Proposed Countywide Plan

The Corte Madera Town Council doesn't like the Marin preliminary countywide plan any more than the town's planning commission did.

As recommended by the planning commission the council last night returned the plan to the City-County Planning Council of Marin for further study and clarification.

The council had no kind word for the plan. Biggest objection was to a proposed county superagency that would monitor and overrule, if need be, municipal development of countywide importance.

Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff feared the plan would be "more or less starting a superagency that would have overriding power over the cities."

While that was the major objection, Councilman Byron D. White also wanted it made clear the town might object to other provisions. He didn't name any others.

Planning Commissioner John W. Gates called the agency a first step toward creation of a "city and county of Marin." He said that without the agency the plan provides good, nonbinding guidelines.

Mayor Holmes S. Norville agreed. "In terms of guidelines, I don't think any of us have objections to he county plan," he said.

A major tenet of the plan is a 60,000 growth rate per decade confined mostly to the urban, eastern third of the county.

Provisions directly affecting Corte Madera include stopping the spread of shopping centers and making the Civic Center-Northgate area the hub of the county, making Highway 101 eight lanes all the way from the Golden Gate Bridge to San Rafael and giving high priority to purchase of ridges and bay shoreline for open space.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

FAIRVIEW — Vacated portions of Pleasant Avenue, accepted deeds for easement on Fairview Avenue and formalized the lot lines of 11 parcels nestled near the junction of the roads in the Madera Park subdivision.

ZONING UPON ANNEXING — Set a public hearing for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 17 on a proposal to allow county zoning to continue on parcels built on prior to annexation to the town.

PUBLIC HEARINGS — Set a public hearing for 8 p.m. Jan. 17 on a plan to delete the requirement of a council hearing for applications denied by the planning commission and not appealed.

REFERRAL — Referred to the fire department improvement committee a request from the Mariner Townhouses Owners Association for employment of more firemen immediately.

DAMAGE CLAIM — Denied a claim by Margrit S. Wetter of 125 La Goma Avenue Mill Valley, who claimed her car sustained $171 damage when hit by a town garbage truck.

LEASE — Agreed to lease a room at the recreation center from the Lions Club for $150 a month for recreation programs over the objection of White, who felt the vote should be delayed until signups are analyzed.

RIDGES — Put over to Jan. 3 a planning commission recommendation to go on record in favor of preserving ridge tops and regulate development for their preservation.

NO EXTENSION — Declined to add ridges on the Tiburon Peninsula to the North Ridge Plan as requested by the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association.

MENKE PARK — Agreed to look into acquiring Menke Park in the Village Square. It is a small park the city has leased from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad for $5 a year.

REZONING — Rezoned a vacant lot at Corte Madera Avenue and First Street from apartment to local shopping to allow construction of a nursery.

VACATIONS — Adopted an ordinance raising the annual vacation from 10 to 12 days for town employees with fewer than five years employment.

STAMP SELLER — Granted Don Rowe of 243 Golden Hinde Passage a home occupation permit to conduct a business in collector's postage stamps.

ANOTHER BUSINESS — Gave Robert J. Weissen of 45 Tamal Vista Boulevard permission to run a part-time financial and business consultant firm at his home.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Shirley A. Walker from the park and recreation commission.

EMERGENCIES — Introduced an ordinance setting up machinery for handling emergency situations as part of a countywide program to update Civil Defense rules and passed resolutions to get state and federal aid in calamities.

PROMOTION MONEY — Turned down a request by the Redwood Empire Association for $250 or more to fund stepped up visitor promotion efforts.

AIRPORT HEARING — Agreed to ask the Association of Bay Area Governments to hold a hearing in Marin on a proposed airport plan as requested by Novato.

WATER REUSE — Authorized Warner Odenthal to study uses of recycled water and a recycling plant for his proposed 540-unit Meadowsweet Station development. The recycling program was suggested by conservationist Elizabeth C. Terwilliger of Mill Valley.

ANNEXATION — Acting at the Corte Madera Sanitary District board, approved annexing one acre of land near Branch Road at Paradise Drive, the site of a home being built by Richard D. Munden.

COMPENSATION — Voted to pay Lewis Spengler, a volunteer fireman injured while fighting a fire last week, $16.50 for a working day he lost because of his injury and set a policy of paying volunteers $82.50 for the first week lost because of injury — thus filling a gap in the town's insurance coverage.

Committed To Vacaville

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Mark Dee Souza, 32, of Petaluma, was committed yesterday to three months at the State Medical Facility at Vacaville for psychiatric evaluation.

Sonoma Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. said Souza would return in March for formal sentencing on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Souza had pleaded guilty after the charge was reduced from assault with intent to commit murder. A psychiatric examination in November ruled him sane and able to stand trial.

Souza was arrested Oct. 11 after stabbing his estranged wife, Carolyn, 21, with a knife during an argument at her home at 101 Burlington Drive, Petaluma.

State Allocates Road Funds

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Money to pay the state's share of a widening project at the intersection of Shoreline Highway and Almonte Boulevard has been allocated by the California Highway Commission.

Cost of the project, estimated at $65,000, will be shared by Marin County and the state, which will pay $51,000.

The project calls for widening Almonte Boulevard to provide two southbound lanes through the intersection, and widening Shoreline and installing a traffic signal.

PEDIATRICIAN'S VIEW

Medicine As A Career

By PAT BALMES

"Medicine is a wonderful career for women. Parents should rear daughters with the idea that there are opportunities for women in many different types of work. Whatever interests a girl is a field she should go into."

That is the view of Catherine Cline Pike, M.D.

When Doctor Pike came to Marin in 1945 she was the county's second pediatrician. Dr. Anne Brady was first.

"I made house calls from China Camp to Olema and Sausalito to Novato. You never thought of asking anyone to bring a sick child out in the cold; we thought it too dangerous.

"I remember going out to give a penicillin shot and sending a technician to the home to take blood tests. I made many a house call with my four little boys and a dog in the back of the station wagon," she said.

Pediatries was difficult to do part-time then; if a child was acutely ill parents wanted their familiar pediatrician, she said.

Mothers brining well babies to Doctor Pike for checkups often wanted to talk about their older children's problems. But pressures, interruptions and emergencies left little time for counseling.

"An emergency like a child taking a bottle of aspirin or cuts that had to be sutured would occur and off I'd go," she said.

CATHERINE CLINE Pike, M.D., second pediatrician to practice in Marin, urges parents to encourage their daughters to study to become doctors. She teaches courses on sexual problems in medical practice and sex education in public schools at University of California Medical School and gives pediatric counseling at her Ross home.

WHEN HER fourth son was born in 1951, Dr. Pike limited her practice to pediatric counseling, practicing part-time. She was also a Well-Child Conference physician for Marin County Health Department and guidance consultant for San Rafael City Schools. In 1966-67 she had a psychiatric fellowship at University of California Medical Center.

Doctor Pike, assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at the university's Medical School in San Francisco, works with the department of ambulatory and community medicine teaching medical students in the field of sex education in public schools, family planning and, with Dr. Herbert Vandervoort, developing a course on sexual problems in medical practice. Former electives, these courses are now taken by all medical students. She also works with the obstetrics and gynecology department on psychiatric problems of pregnant and surgical patients.

Her students work as resource teachers on family life, sex and drug abuse education in San Francisco public schools, showing films on human reproduction to parents before they are shown to children, and answering questions about the program. They develop skills in public speaking and are a catalyst to make teachers more comfortable when teaching students these subjects.

"Sex education is always done in the home and school. Sometimes it is a negative education by silence and reproval," Doctor Pike said.

At the Planned Parenthood Association her medical students observe, attend seminars, assist in clinics and participate in pregnancy counseling.

SHE ALSO counsels families in which there are emotional behavior problems, working with children, adolescents and adults at her Ross home, where she has lived for 20 years.

She tries to help parents and adolescents understand each other. It is hard to be an adolescent because the world is a complicated place, Doctor Pike said. Children often have parents who are not sure of what they believe. One task of the adolescent is to look again at all values a young person has been taught by parents, church and community, shake them up and develop his or her own scale of values.

There are too few places for the adolescent in society. He is too often a consumer, not a worker or contributor. Industrialization, urbanization and increasing population have made it difficult to find adequate opportunities for him to contribute, according to Doctor Pike.

When she counsels women, Doctor Pike encourages them to avoid the "empty nest" problem by keeping up adult interests during their children's childhood so they can expand them later. The broader a woman's interests, the more she can contribute to marital companionship. Doctor Pike praises the trend of women's involvement in adult education and volunteer, community and political activities.

For some women with young children, one day is too much like another. When their children reach nursery school age, some women will find it rewarding to work. Quality of time a mother spends with her children is more important than quantity as long as loving supervision is supplied in her absence, says the pediatrician.

DOCTOR PIKE received her medical degree from U.C. in 1943, when some hospitals would not take a woman intern. Now part-time medical work is possible. Opportunities for continuing medical training are abundant and medical school can be finished in five years instead of four. Refresher courses are available.

"Many of the medical and drug procedures used now were not even discovered when I was in medical school," she said.

The doctor shares with her husband, San Francisco investment broker Peter Pike, enthusiasm for camping, snow shoeing and traveling. Their sons are grown. Peter Jr., 28, in business in Switzerland, plans to sail his 26-foot boat from England to the United States to settle in San Francisco. Alan, 26, a Kenya bush pilot, is interested in Africa's livestock problems and zoology. Drummond, 23, works for the Center for Community Change in Washington, D.C. Bruce, 20, of San Rafael, accompanied his mother in 1965 when she joined Drs. Richard Hahn and Michael Franzblau in a tuberculosis case-finding project at Clinica de San Vicente in Zacapu, Mexico. He returned to volunteer for two summers and later six months in 1969.

Doctor Pike's interest in politics began "in response to my sons' questions and interest." She is a member of Common Cause, a citizens' lobby group to influence legislation.

"THERE IS an incredible need for more government funding of medical care for all. We raise people's hopes for medical schools and health facilities in the areas where people live. Too often bond issues fail for facilities such as completion of the medical school at Davis. Health care is not extended to where people live. Before the riots, people of Watts had to make three bus changes to get to the county hospital, an expensive hour-and-a-half trip," she explained.

America's neo-natal mortality rate is too high, she stated. Contributing factors are inadequate care and nutrition of pregnant women and housing problems. When a child is handicapped due to inadequate pre- or post-natal nutrition, it damages society economically to say nothing of the heartache to the child's family, according to the pediatrician.

"We must see that our government puts a higher priority on funding as well as passing legislation to provide adequate health care for all," she said.

CHP Officers' Wives Elect New President

Mrs. Raymond B. Nelson of Novato has been elected president of the Marin-Golden Gate-California Highway Patrol Officers Wives Club.

Janet Marie Nelson, the wife of a traffic officer with the CHP, has been a member for a year and a half. They are the parents of Eric, 5, Kenny, 3, and Christopher, 7 months. Mrs. Nelson says rearing three active boys and sewing are her pastimes.

Janet was born in Weeksville, N.C., and attended Illinois State University in Normal, Ill. She has lived in Marin County two years.

The informal, social and philanthropic organization makes party favors at Easter for the Dependent Chapter of the Sonoma County Juvenile Hall and on the Fourth of July and donates Halloween favors to the Marin County Juvenile Hall. They are preparing Christmas treats for the Marin County Juvenile Hall.

The new president was installed this month. Other officers are Mmes. Daniel Parr of Novato, vice-president; J. D. Lee of Santa Rosa, secretary; and William McChristian of Santa Rosa, treasurer.

Girls Can Compete With High School Boys

ALBANY N.Y. (UPI)—Responding to the pleas of a teenager, the New York State Board of Regents approved participation by girls on previously all-boy high school cross-country teams.

Earlier this year the regents voted to allow girls to play other non-contact sports with the boys such as tennis, bowling, archery and golf.

The latest move toward coeducational sports came as a result of Katie Schilley, who wanted to run against the boys on the Central Square High School team near Syracuse.

Regent Stephen K. Bailey of Syracuse offered a 10-stanza poem, dedicated to Katie, after the regents voted to make the change.

Entitled "The Ballad of Katie Schilley," Bailey's poem read, in part:

"Because of her stamina, fleetness and grace,

"She covets a spot in the cross-country race

"In central New York for Central Square High,

"To help them to win, or at least to a tie.

"Regents aren't ogres, our tenor's not terror;

"Like Scrooge let us happily note a sad error;

"In the course of this meeting our chinny-chin-chin,

"Let's amend Section 4 and let 'cross-country' in."

Thieves Fooled; Box Of Dirt Held A Diamond

DENVER (UPI)—Miss Margaret Hickman was red-faced as she told police about the box that was stolen from her unlocked car Monday.

"It was very embarrassing to try to explain to them that someone had stolen a box of dirt," she said.

The dirt came from an elevator shaft at the Mountain Bell offices where she works. She had lost the diamond from her engagement ring down the shaft and janitors boxed all the dirt for her when they were unable to find the gem.

Police believed the story, carried out a search and found the missing box in a clump of bushes a block away. The thieves apparently dumped the box after discovering it was filled with dirt.

Garbo's 'Evolution' To Be TV'd

Author Larry Carr, who devoted five years to writing the book, "Four Fabulous Faces," about Greta Garbo, Gloria Swanson, Joan Crawford and Marlene Dietrich, is planning a television special for early next year, according to Women's Wear Daily. Joan Crawford and Gloria Swanson will host the show.

His book illustrates the evolution and metamorphosis of these beauties, Carr said.

"I don't think any of the four could have been called extraordinary beauties to begin with," he said. "But each one learned to develop her potential and her face by accenting her best features and minimizing her shortcomings. Most people say that Garbo was the perfect beauty, but when you see what her face was in her early years, pudgy and undistinguished, you think again."

She lost weight, her hair was lightened, her teeth were capped, she learned makeup, grooming and became a beauty in a span of five years, according to the author.

"She came to Hollywood from Sweden in 1925, and by 1930 every woman in the world wanted to look like her," Carr said.

Hair Is Set En Route

Women traveling on the deluxe Italian train, Sette Bello, which runs between Rome and Milan, can have their hair set en route.

A small hairstyling salon opened recently on the train to give women something to do with their heads during the six-hour-ride, according to Women's Wear Daily.

The salon girls wear red, green and black wool tartan plaid uniforms especially designed for them by Heinz Riva.

Miss Ekwall Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ekwall of Corte Madera have announced the engagement of their daughter, Georgie Ann Ekwall, to Laurence Hale Vantrease of San Rafael.

The bride-elect, who is the granddaughter of Mrs. Dora Frederico of Fairfax, is a graduate of Redwood High School and is a student at the College of Marin.

Larry is the son of Mrs. Dolf Visser of Corte Madera and Laurence Vantrease of Novato. He is the brother of Linda Vantrease of San Rafael and Mark Vantrease of Corte Madera, who is serving with the Army at Fort Hood, Tex.

A graduate of Novato High School, he attends the College of Marin and is completing apprentice carpentry training. He is employed with the Vantrease Construction Co. in Novato.

The couple plans a June 23 wedding at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Boyfriend Always Sure He's Right — But Is He This Time?

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I am 17, Bo is 19. We went together six months and everything seemed perfect. I really thought it was love. He's the type who always knows he's right, so I tried every way to change so I'd be just the way he wants a girl. I thought I succeeded. We never even fought.

But suddenly he decided we shouldn't see each other so much because his parents "were hassling him." He suggested that we cool it for a month.

Two days later I saw him with another girl, and after that he was always with this girl.

Finally I decided to have it out so I asked him if it was all over. He said "yes" but not because of the girl. In the time he hadn't seen me, he said, he looked at "us" with an open mind and realized we were so different in thoughts, ideals and backgrounds that we'd never make it. But he still loves me, he added.

I have a lot of love invested in him and the way I feel now, I'll always have. But when his mind is made up, no one can change it, and he's so darn sure he's always right. Is he this time? — HURTING

DEAR HURTING:

More and more guys, it seems, are using the cop-out, "My parents are hassling me; let's cool it for a while." Guess it gives them time to think up a new excuse. Really, a simple "it's over" would be lots kinder.

The next dodge — your two personalities couldn't make it —doesn't go down either. Opposites usually attract. The differences add excitement. Maybe what Bo is trying to say is, "We're getting too much alike and it's a drag."

I'm glad you wrote this letter (though I'm sorry you're hurting) because it gives me a chance at a bit of advice: Girls, don't change for your guy so you'll be like him. He doesn't really want that, because then he sees in you a reflection of himself. What a bore.

And guys: Say what you mean. A clean break heals faster. — SUE

DEAR HURTING:

I don't think much of a fellow who leaves a relationship hanging when it's already dead. And when he's "always right" to boot —well, you'll soon realize how wrong he was for you. (Say in about a month, or maybe less if you make the clean break yourself.) — HELEN

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

I broke my wrist roller-skating down a steep hill. I got my cast off three weeks ago but now I'm scared stiff of even the smallest hill. Will I ever get over it? — J.M.

DEAR J:

Yes. But only if you think of that fear as a challenge. And try the baby hills first. — SUE

DEAR J:

How about regaining your confidence in a rink? Excuse me if I make noises like a mother, but roller skates on steep sidewalk hills can be hazardous not only to the wearer but to the person he meets on the way down. (And I know, because I once crashed into a woman carrying two dozen eggs, back in my roller-skating prime.) — HELEN

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

How can you help a pre-teenage youngster make a graceful transition from childhood to young adulthood? Most of us operate on a kind of brinksmanship policy — the event is upon us before we've taken the time to formulate a program of helpfulness.

Changes in clothes and behavior patterns occur almost without our guidance. Schoolmates are much more likely to succeed in this diplomatic field. But home environments can be shaped only by interested parents or adult members of the family.

The 11 or 12-year-old has a special clarity of vision, a critical eye and awareness of what's going on in the world and at home. It's a time when order and personal interests can develop. And it may be the last time a strong family influence will be appreciated.

The private or shared domain of a pre-teener can be organized into a more appropriate growing room. A new theme could easily be created around some special interest and the youngster's opinion could prove to be a fun takeoff point.

One example of an upgraded room is shown here. Designer Robert Charlton helped co-ordinate it for his 11-year-old daughter who has been hooked on the Peanuts cartoon characters of Charles Schulz. The theme was an easy one to accomplish because of the universality of Peanuts. Charlton and his daughter found clocks, books and a line of sheets and pillowcases imprinted with the cartoon family, so it gave them an inexpensive starting point.

A FUN INVESTMENT: An array of everybody's favorite characters embellishes this room designed by Robert Charlton and his 11-year-old daughter. Motif sheets and pillowcases provide an inexpensive theme for a Peanuts fan.

For several years the twin beds had been arranged against two walls, but now they decided to create a simple wall-hung shelf that could act as a desk. So one of the beds was shifted to an L-shaped island position. The shelf area has two spacious drawers for papers, books and utensils, two yellow canvas "Snoopy" chairs and wall decorations made of framed Peanuts pillowcases.

Bright red felt was cut to create a giant bulletin board and skirts for the beds. An old wall-to-wall carpet was removed in favor of the parquet floor (it's more fun for dance practice).

Frilly curtains gave way to painted shutters and a plant was added for the young ecologist. The resulting room encourages tender loving care, a sense of independence and responsibility. It's an investment in the future, yet when Miss Charlton's interests change as she matures, the dollar investment will not have been exorbitant. The basic room design will last; the motif can change.

Furnishings Style Rules Are Relaxing

Mixing different furniture styles such as contemporary with Spanish, once considered taboo by almost every decorator, is now a fashionable trend, according to a California interior designer.

Carole Eichen, an Orange County housewife without any formal interior design training, who has become a top decorator of subdivision model homes and apartments, says that the "eclectic look" is sweeping the interior design field and anyone can emulate it. Mrs. Eichen describes eclecticism as "blending the old with the new, or combining different furnishing styles such as traditional and country French."

"Rigid decorating rules, once demanding a single style be carried throughout a home, no longer apply," she explained.

"People are finding that discarded furnishings such as the old rocking chair they were going to throw out five-years ago but instead stuck in the garage, now fit in beautifully next to a contemporary chrome and glass coffee table. Or, wicker furniture, once banished to the patio or game room, is right at home today in even the most formal living room."

Bras, Freedom And Vanderbilt

Any woman who wears a bra when she does not have to does not know what freedom means, says etiquette authority Amy Vanderbilt.

Miss Vanderbilt says she concurs with the French rule, "Put a pencil under the breast, and if the pencil falls you do not need a bra."

THE ALUMNAE

"Remember that old superstition about money not growing on trees?"

Dessert Coffee For A Change

Serve a steaming cup of dessert coffee instead of the usual cup of coffee and dessert, some nutrition consultants suggest.

Combine equal quantities of hot double-strength coffee with steaming hot milk in a deep heat-proof mixing bowl, beat until frothy.

Serve in tall cups or glasses, top with a fluff of whipped cream and a spoonful of shaved sweet chocolate.

Mission Vows Are Exchanged

Melanie Brusati of San Francisco became the bride of Andrew J. Waite of Auckland, New Zealand, in a ceremony Dec. 11 at Mission San Rafael Arcangel in San Rafael.

The daughter of Mrs. Muriel Brusati of San Rafael, the bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Harold J. Miller of San Rafael.

Mrs. Robert O'Connor of San Francisco was the matron of honor and Carol Magiulo of Santa Rosa was the bridesmaid.

Serving as best man was Steven Dowd of Davis, and the ushers were Michael Brusati of San Mateo, Ronald Stollings of San Mateo and Robert O'Connor of San Francisco.

The couple will live in San Francisco when they return from Lake Tahoe, their wedding trip destination.

Melanie is a San Rafael High School graduate and attended the College of Marin. She is employed with the Bank of America in San Francisco.

She is the twin sister of Michael Brusati of San Mateo and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Miller of San Rafael.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kerkham of Auckland. He is a graduate of the University of Auckland Law School and is employed with a San Francisco law firm. He is the brother of Gregory Waite of Melborne, New Zealand, and Louise Kerkham of Auckland.

Students Continuing Dressing Down Trend

NEW YORK (UPI)—The dressing down movement among high school and college students continues to gain momentum despite fashion industry efforts to reverse it, according to Lester Rand, president of the Rand Youth Poll, an organization which assesses youth trends.

Comfort, a relaxes atmosphere, less spending money and conformity are the chief ingredients in the trend.

MRS. JUNIUS THOMSON
Leads Presbyterian group

Church Unit Elects President

The United Presbyterian Women of the Presbyterian Church of Novato have elected Mrs. Junius Thomson president. She has also served as treasurer, and she and her husband are former officers of the Mariners of the Church.

A member for nine years, Peggy Thomson says the purpose of the organization is mission work, fellowship, study and church improvements "with a feminine touch."

Projects planned for the coming year are completion of the bride's room and getting equipment for the kitchen and furniture in the Christensen Room. A cleaning day in March, a fellowship breakfast in the fall, an attic sale and a Christmas tea also are planned.

Peggy also participates in the church choir, the Junior High School Presbyterian Youth group and Eastern Star. She was born in Galveston, Tex., but grew up in Albuquerque, where she was graduated from business college.

The new president and her husband, an engineer with the U.S. Department of Treasury, are the parents of Joyce, 14, Kim, 10 and Gary, 13 months. Knitting, sewing, gardening, music, bridge, children and art work "when time permits" are the interests of Mrs. Thomson.

Officers installed with Mrs. Thomson were Mmes. Samuel Hecht, program chairman and vice-president; Philip Hicks, secretary; Winston J. Wishon, treasurer; E.C. Leigon, nominating committee chairman; Edward Fischer, service coordinator; Donald Powell, G.E. Halvorson and John Tautges, circle chairmen; Melvin Rupp publicity; and Halvorson, auditor.

MRS. LEW BAYSINGER
New golf captain

Golf Club Elects New Captain

A member of the Indian Valley Women's Golf Club for 10 years, Mrs. Lew A. Baysinger of San Rafael has been elected captain for the coming year.

Elsie Baysinger has also served as secretary of the club. She and her husband, who is employed in the purchasing department of American Forest Products in San Francisco, are the parents of Mrs. Henry Leonardi, Mrs. Tom Fracisco, Mrs. Don Holton and Lori Baysinger.

The new captain was born in South Wales. She was graduated from John Swett High School in Crockett and Miss McAleers Business School in San Francisco.

Other officers to serve with Mrs. Baysinger are Mmes. Roger William, co-captain; C. T. Henderson, secretary; Rowe Waller, Treasurer; Stan Fogler, tournament chairman; William McVickers, assistant tournament chairman; and Lloyd Abrams, handicap chairman.

Young Students Do Artwork

Second and third-grade students at West End School in San Rafael have done the artwork for a calendar which is being sold by members of the West End School Parent-Teacher Association.

Art coordinator for the calendar is Mary Case Dekker, who also designed the cover, which is a composite of three of the children's drawings.

FOOD FADDISM

Self-Discipline Down The Drain

By FREDERICK J. STARE, M.D.,
Chairman,
and Cynthia Ford, M.S.
Department of Nutrition
Harvard University
(Second of five articles)

"Get thin quick."

"Flush out excess fat."

"Lose unsightly inches overnight."

Promises like these are widely advertised by today's "diet doctors" and promoters of the cult of effortless weight loss. Geared to "instant action" — a promise of "something for nothing" — these crash cures relieve a person of the responsibility to think and to make realistic choices. Also, little personal and sustained effort is required to achieve promised success so one may avoid the self discipline and occasional frustration that accompany a sensible weight reduction program.

But are these weight loss schemes safe? Are they really a substitute for exercise and proper diet? Are these schemes effective and for how long? Let's take a look at one of the current "diet quickies" to see just how they operate.

THE HIGH PROTEIN DIET — The aim of this popular diet, also known as the Quick Weight Loss Diet, is to produce a nutritional imbalance by using high protein foods, but with little carbohydrate. The dieter is told to "eat all the protein foods you want" but to eliminate breads and cereals as well as most fruits and vegetables. Popularity of this diet is assured — no calories to count — no portion sizes to gauge — no choices to make.

How then, you may, ask does the dieter lose weight?

The all-protein eating supposedly allows your system to "burn up about 275 more calories each day" than a diet containing a variety of foods. The idea behind this concept came from studies performed some 50 years ago in which scientists demonstrated that when "pure protein" was fed to animals, extra calories were required to metabolize or "burn" it. This is partially true with "pure protein", but protein foods also contain either carbohydrate or fat, and usually very generous quantities of the latter, also mostly saturated fats which are not so good for those concerned with the level of cholesterol in their blood.

Another drawback to the high protein diet is the potential hazard it may present to persons with disturbances in kidney or liver function or with diabetes. Many people may be unaware that they have these conditions in their early phases. As previously mentioned, high-protein diets are rich in saturated fat, usually also in cholesterol and thus they will be hazardous to those with a predisposition to coronary heart disease.

CONTRARY TO popular belief, excess protein is stored as body fat. Proteins in the process of digestion are broken down to amino acids which if not needed to form new body protein are used for energy or to form excess body fat. So unless total calories are reduced (including those from protein foods) or more calories are burned, due to increased physical activity, loss of fat and hence of body weight will not take place.

Diet frauds are nearly as prevalent as diet fads. "Magic pills," "inflatable clothing" and "effortless exercises" — all of them advertised as the quick and easy substitute for sensible weight reduction.

DIET PILLS — Diuretics and amphetamines account for the major types of "diet pills." The former accomplish only a loss in water, not fat, and while the latter may curb the appetite temporarily, the body builds up a resistance and higher doses are soon required for the same effect. Both diuretics and amphetamines may have serious side effects, particularly when combined with other drugs as they are in the so-called "rainbow" diet pills.

INFLATABLE CLOTHING — Inflatable clothing, constricting bands and weighted belts do not cause one to lose fat. Any temporary loss in size is simply due to a shift in fluid from one place to another — remove the constriction and the fluid will soon return. Some water loss may occur from sweating, but again as soon as water or food is consumed, the water goes right back.

Weighted belts operate on the theory that excess calories are required to move around extra weight. True in principle, but the 10 or 15 pounds added by the belt is far from sufficient to produce a loss, particularly if one is not very active physically.

MASSAGES, SAUNAS AND MAGIC MACHINES — More ways to lose your money but not your fat. Simple exercises will help to strengthen muscles but unless sufficiently demanding to burn up extra calories, mild exercises will not eliminate much fat. Nor will massages, saunas or jiggling machines cause you to lose fat — water loss will occur during the sauna from sweating, but this loss is only temporary.

Exercise can be beneficial if you do the work and do enough of it — not all at once but with frequency and in moderation. Machines that move your body for you are not very helpful. Nor will massage burn calories except for the person giving it.

Tomorrow: The message from "nutritional missionaries."

Antique Patina

How do some furniture-makers create an antique patina? They physically distress the finish by hitting it with a piece of chain attached to a short broom handle. Color distressing uses six or seven strings of an ordinary household mop, dipped in glaze and wiped almost dry.

How To Avoid Mickey Finn From A Single King

You don't cry your eyes out because you lose a finesse; after all, you expect to lose almost half of the finesses you attempt. If you lose a finesse to a singleton king, however, you feel that Fate has slipped you a Mickey Finn.

Los Angeles expert Lew Mathe found a way to duck the Mickey last month when he won the National Mixed Pair Championship (wih his wife as his partner).

Opening lead -- ♣ K

Few pairs got to game with the North-South cards and their 20 high-card points, but the Mathes like to bid the spots off the cards.

The hand was played by South or North at a hundred-odd tables, and almost invariably declarer lost the diamond finesse to West's singleton king.

HOW IT STARTED

When Mathe played the hand at four hearts, West led the king of clubs and continued with the jack of clubs. Mathe ruffed and immediately led the seven of trumps toward dummy.

West played the nine of hearts, a natural but fatal error, and Mathe went right up with dummy's king of hearts since West surely had the ace for his strong bidding. Declarer then cashed the top spades, discovering that the suit broke evenly.

END PLAY

The stage was now set for the end play. Mathe led a heart from dummy, forcing West to take the lead with the ace. If West now returned a diamond (regardless of what West had in that suit), declarer would get a free finesse; if West led a club (the only other possibility), South would ruff while dummy got rid of a diamond.

Either way, declarer would not have to lose a diamond trick.

West could have saved himself by stepping up with the ace of hearts when that suit was first led. He could then get out safely with a spade or with another trump. Declarer could try running the spades, but East would ruff and lead a diamond, whereupon South would have to guess whether or not to try the finesse.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ - 7 4
♥ - J 8 7 2
♦ - A Q J 9 7 4
♣ - 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three diamonds. If partner bids three hearts, you will raise to four hearts. Otherwise, you plan to bid four diamonds, aiming at game in diamonds rather than game in notrump.

Aid To Refugees

GENEVA (UPI)—The World Council of Churches said today its members have so far contributed $3 million in cash and $4 million in medicines, food and blankets for East Pakistani refugees in India.

Pianist Excites College Audience

By ROBERT M. NESS

The highly disciplined College of Marin Community Orchestra, conducted by John Myers, performed a demanding slate of works Sunday night before a capacity audience at the college's Fine Arts Theater.

Pianist Carole Castro Mauia provided the most exciting performance of the evening with the Shostakovich Piano Concerto No. 2. The concerto is not very interesting by itself. Its meandering octave passages, drab orchestral accompaniment, and "Autumn Leaves"-like super-romantic slow movement were actually elevated beyond their worth by virtue of Miss Mauia's vigorous performance.

In the two allegro movements, she played with extreme clarity and sharp rhythmic drive. In the slow movement she liquefied the natural percussiveness of the instrument. She received a well deserved standing ovation for an electrifying performance.

The highlight for the orchestra was Grieg's three selections from "Sigurd Jorsalfar." This unashamedly romantic work was rich in expressive playing. The strings really came through with a deep rich sound and widely varied dynamics. The instrumental solos by cellist Jan Gauder and horn player Kevin Omi were especially exquisite.

Weber's "Oberon Overture" followed by Mozart's "Haffner Symphony" occupied the more serious first part of the program. It was immediately obvious that this orchestra had extended considerable effort in the preparation of this concert.

Both of these works are extremely difficult, especially for the strings. Though intonation problems were minimal and some very nice rhythmic subtleties came through, the performance suffered a lack of spontaneity and vigor.

This was most pronounced in the Mozart. The lack of variation in dynamics coupled with a rather heavy texture resulted in a forced performance.

Conductor Myers chose to depart from tradition by utilizing the whole string section rather than cutting it down to the customary chosen few.

At the expense of a more transparent texture and more precise intonation, he provided every string player with the opportunity to face the demands of Mozart.

Sausalito Woman Enters Innocent Plea

Felicia Mary Fouche, 25, of Gate 5, Sausalito, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of selling heroin. Judge E. Warren McGuire set her trial for Feb. 18.

State narcotics agents arrested Miss Fouche Oct. 13 and charged her with selling heroin to an undercover man on Sept. 28.

Works Of 8 Artists On Display

Works by eight Marin artists are included in the Christmas show now on display at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

Artists represented are Dale Diamond of Mill Valley, Bruce Lauritzen of Larkspur, Ada Garfinkel of Kentfield, Elizabeth Sher of Fairfax, Eleanor Bender of San Anselmo, and Gwen Stone, Tony Williams and Farhad Moezzi of San Rafael.

The show will continue through Sunday. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

$375,000 Given In Shooting Case

MARTINEZ (UPI) —A federal agent who was accidentally shot by a policeman during a raid has received $375,000 in settlement, his attorney announced Monday.

George Gudbinson, 31, the agent, suffered a paralyzed arm when he was shot at Concord on Feb. 1, 1969, by patrolman Don McLennan, attorney Bruce Walkup said.

Gudbinson and two other agents were shot when the patrolman mistook them for narcotics smugglers who were the target of the raid.

Suits for the two remaining men will start Feb. 7 in Contra Costa County Superior Court.

Walkup said the settlement had been made with the city's insurance companies.

Gudbinson, formerly of Pleasant Hill, is now assigned to a border station at Blaine, Wash.

Suicide Figures

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Close to a third of all suicides in San Francisco are committed by persons 60 or older.

Policy Reversed On The Use Of Plastic Piping

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Board of Supervisors reversed itself Monday and legalized the use of plastic pipe and plastic sheathed electrical cable in construction work.

The previous ban on such material threatened the city with the loss of millions of dollars in federal renewal and redevelopment money.

The federal government wanted the city to bring its codes into conformance with national standards adopted by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Only a week ago, the board voted 7-4 against amending the plumbing and electrical codes.

HUD Secretary George Romney told Mayor Joseph Alioto last week that either the material be permitted or federal funds would be terminated Dec. 21.

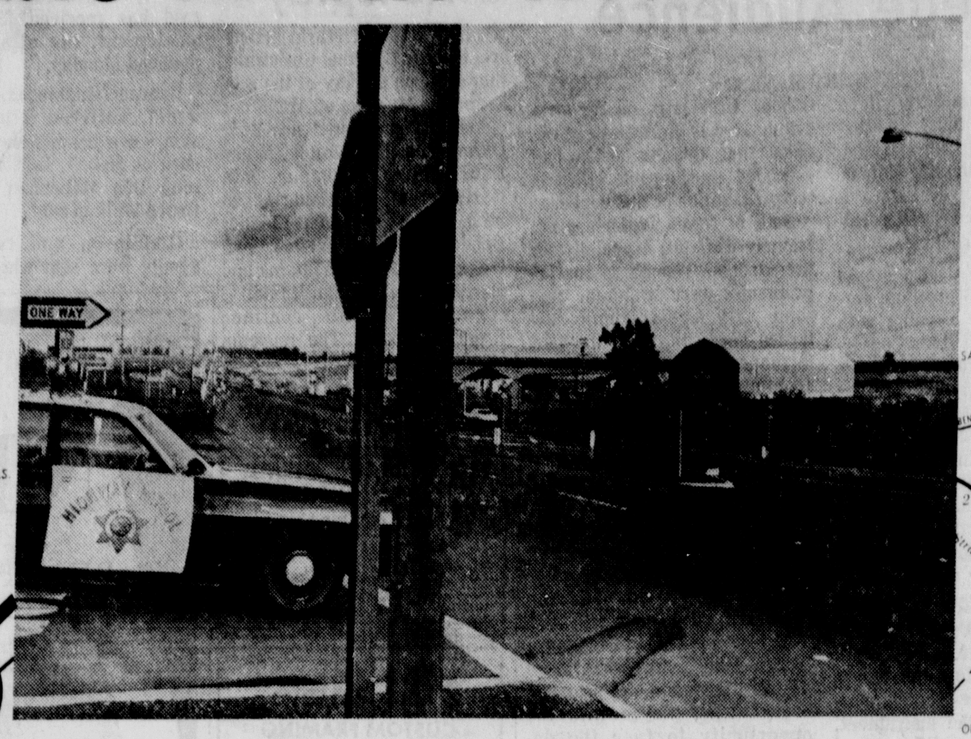
Caution — There's Trouble In The Road Ahead

HIGHWAY 37 — LAKEVILLE HIGHWAY — Scene of many bad wrecks, this intersection nevertheless provides the motorist with a clear view of approaching traffic, no matter in which direction he's traveling. The trouble? "People look but they don't see," said Sgt. Richard A. Nutting of the California Highway Patrol. "We've lost our ability to judge distances."



HIGHWAY 37 — ROUTE 121 — A left turn from Route 121 onto Highway 37 — as California Highway Patrol Sgt. Richard A. Nutting prepares to do — is the hazardous traffic move at this spot. Nutting said many of the motorists involved in accidents at this intersection are elderly persons unfamiliar with the area.

At various points in Marin — from twisting Shoreline Highway to high-speed Highway 101 — there is danger in the road.

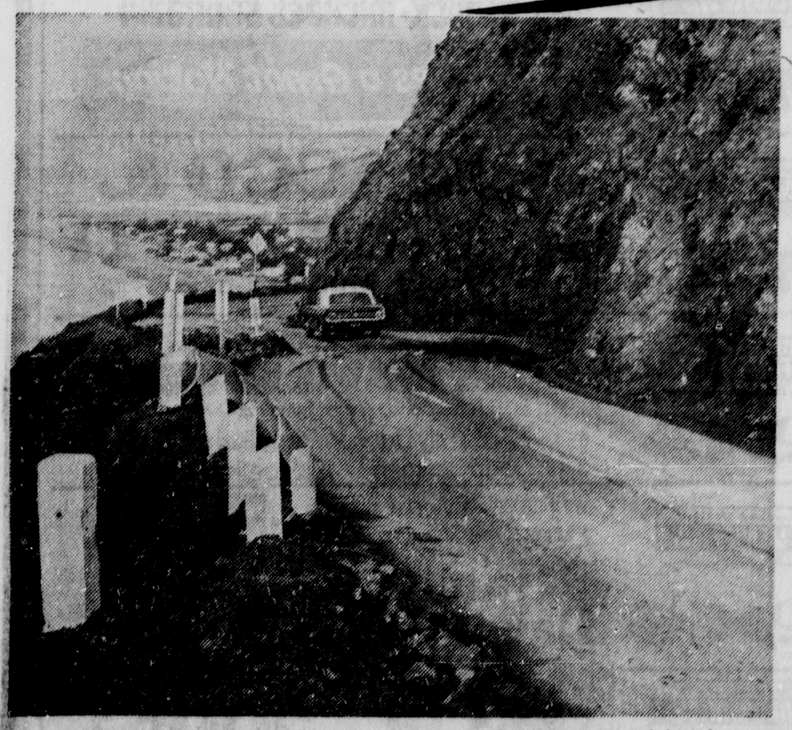
The county's streets and highways are dotted with trouble spots — a tricky turn, a blind curve or a hazardous intersection. On the other hand, a straight and open stretch of road can be turned into an instant death trap by driver inattentiveness or faulty vehicles.

In either case, it all adds up to accidents, injuries — and sometimes death. More than 350 persons have died in Marin traffic accidents in the past decade, with thousands injured.

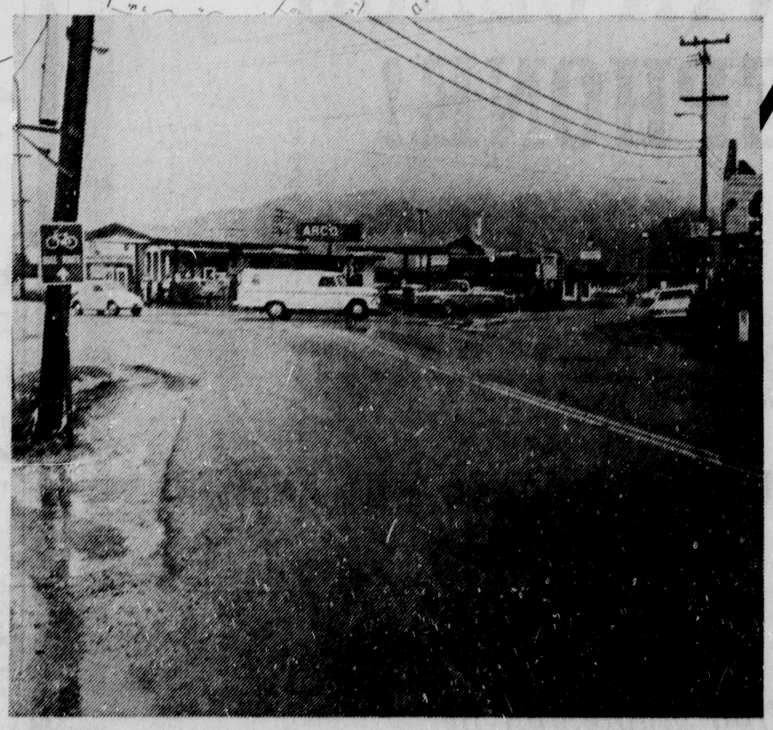
More have died — 152 — on Highway 101 than on any other Marin road during that period. Two of that freeway's trouble spots are pictured on this page, along with three other county road hazards.

Although statistics aren't available on the number of accidents that occur at various trouble spots, the California Highway Patrol considers these six locations among the most treacherous.

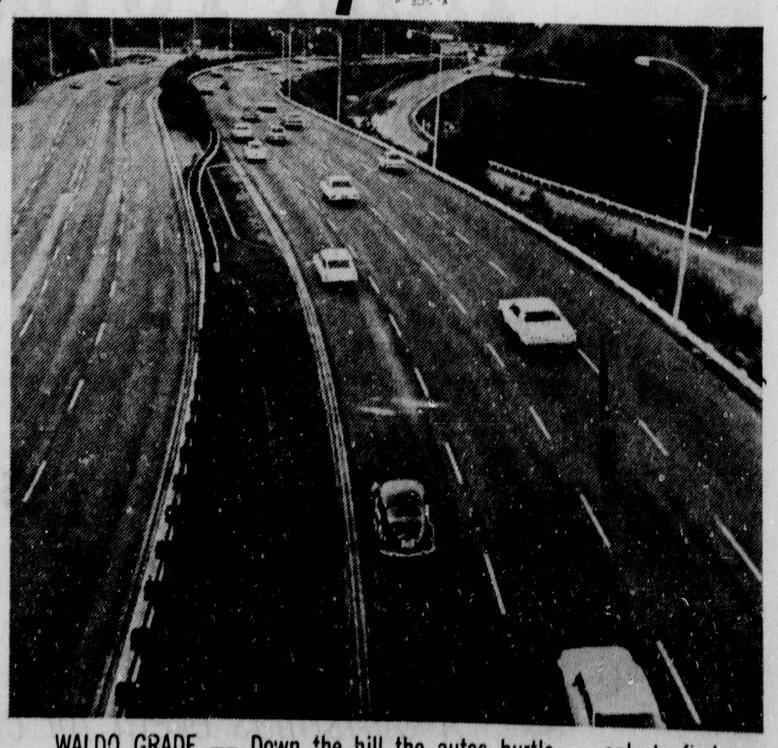
HIGHWAY 101, GREENBRAE — What causes difficulty here, especially in rush hour, according to the CHP, is traffic merging into northbound Highway 101 from Lucky Drive (note van, right), while other motorists leave the highway at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at the same spot. The result: a hazardous jumble of merging, turning vehicles.



SHORELINE HIGHWAY — No, the road doesn't end up ahead but is hidden behind the hill, just as Shoreline winds its way down to Stinson Beach. This is one of the many hazards along the twisting highway. Fail to make a curve — as many motorists have — and you'll find a rock beach hundreds of feet below.



TAM JUNCTION — On weekends, thousands of vehicles merge at this Southern Marin intersection, stalling traffic and triggering rear-end accidents. It's a case of too much traffic without proper control, but the state and county are planning improvements. A traffic light is among them.



WALDO GRADE — Down the hill the autos hurtle — only to find that the four lanes merge quickly into three. This is a particularly troublesome spot on Highway 101 during rush hour, as motorists hurriedly switch lanes to find the fastest-moving one. The carelessness results in accidents.

Zakessian Reported Dealing For Rail Land In Sausalito

Sausalito restaurant owner, Sam Zakessian is in the process of purchasing a large portion of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way through Sausalito, land the city is hoping to acquire, the Independent-Journal learned yesterday.

Oscar Osness, land agent for Northwestern Pacific, said yesterday the railroad plans to sell Zakessian, owner of Zack's, the 60-foot right-of-way between Mono and Johnson streets, although he said the title transfer has not yet been recorded.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said Zakessian's purchase of the land will not interfere with the city's plan to file a court action to condemn the entire right-of-way for city use.

The city council, at its meeting at 8 p.m. today, will consider a resolution authorizing City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to file a condemnation action to acquire the right-of-way from Johnson Street to the north city limits.

If the resolution is passed, Jordan said he hopes to take the matter to Marin Superior Court later this week.

St. Cyr. said Sausalito wants the land to meet its "intracity transit needs." He said the city hopes to use the property for bicycle paths and eventually, as part of a method of bringing visitors downtown from a northern parking facility which the city would like to build in the future.

Railroad service on the Sausalito line was abandoned by Northwestern Pacific on Nov. 24, and the city council, at its Dec. 7 meeting asked the city attorney to take steps toward condemnation of the land.

Osness told the I-J the railroad's commitment to Zakessian was made before the city expressed "official interest" in acquiring the right-of-way, part of which runs in front of the city's new waterfront park.

Zakessian, who has been at odds with the city government in several legal battles in past years, could not be reached to comment on his plans for the land or the price he has agreed to pay for it, a figure railroad officials declined to disclose.

The restaurant owner recently purchased a caboose and two box cars from Northwestern Pacific which he plans to turn into an annex to his restaurant.

Pair Selected For Rec Panel

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission last night recommended two persons to fill vacant youth seats.

The commission selected Don Cochran, 22, who will enroll in a state university next year, and Bill Bradley, a junior at Redwood High School, from among seven applicants, according to Harlan Barry, recreation director.

The recommendations will go to the city council for approval Dec. 28. The council had threatened to eliminate the youth seats because of spotty attendance by the young members, but relented at the last minute.

Fairs, Festivals Information Sought

Information about fairs and festivals in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties scheduled for 1972 is being sought by the Redwood Empire Association for inclusion in the association's annual calendar which is distributed to newspapers and magazines.

Dates and data about such affairs may be sent to the association at 476 Post Street, San Francisco 94102, immediately, according to association officials.

Marinwood CSD Accepts Gift Of Land: But Has It Been Offered?

The Marinwood Community Services District last night accepted a gift that may or may not have been offered.

The gift was a one-third-acre parcel at Las Gallinas Avenue and Roundtree Boulevard which the board wants for development as a park site from U.S. Development Corp., developer of Roundtree.

Genevieve T. Bolding, secretary to the Marinwood CSD board, said the parcel was included in original plans for the Roundtree condominium development and reserved for open space.

In October, the board opposed plans by U.S. Development to seek county permission to separate the parcel from the original plan and sell it for development.

At a Nov. 15 meeting of the county planning commission, Mrs. Bolding said, the development corporation said it was dropping its proposal to sell the property and would offer it to the community services district as a park site.

At a Nov. 19 meeting of the Marinwood Homeowners Association, however, the corporation said it would not donate the property, but might sell it for park development, according to Mrs. Bolding.

The CSD board — which hasn't heard from the corporation formally since October — last night acted on the information the site was being offered as a gift and accepted it, Mrs. Bolding said.

In other action last night, Mrs. Bolding reported, the board agreed to request the county planning commission to postpone a hearing from Jan. 10 to Jan. 17 on a proposal for a 109-unit townhouse development by Kaiser Aetna Co. at Las Gallinas Avenue and Mill Creek Road.

The proposal, revised from an original plan for 185 units and again from a revised 145 units, was discussed by the board, Mrs. Bolding said, which decided it wanted the Marinwood Park and Recreation Commission and Marinwood Homeowners Association to review the revised plan before the planning commission acted.

The Marinwood CSD Board Also:

CHAIRMAN — Elected Richard H. O'Brien its 1972 chairman.

EMPLOYEES — Approved a resolution to include the district's four miscellaneous employees in the state retirement system effective Jan. 1, and expressed its intent to include safety employees in the system in July.

FIREMAN — Hired Jeremiah Cannon of 40 Mount Tenaya Drive, Upper Lucas Valley, as a fireman effective Jan . 1 at $714 per month.

COMMISSIONS — Reappointed Kenneth Katz and Kirk Beales to the fire commission, making Beales, who was alternate member from Upper Lucas Valley, a full-voting member, but not as an Upper Lucas Valley representative, and reappointed David Paoli and Leland Spencer to the parks and recreation commission. Applicants for a vacancy on the parks and recreation commission or an alternate position on the fire commission may contact Mrs. Bolding at the district office, 536 Miller Creek Road.

Sentenced To Jail For Auto Theft

Davey Wade Cameron, 20, of San Francisco, must serve 15 days in Marin County Jail for auto theft.

He was sentenced yesterday in Marin Superior Court. Judge E. Warren McGuire also placed him on probation for 18 months. Cameron was arrested Sept. 29 in San Francisco in a car stolen from a Mill Valley auto dealer. He pleaded guilty to auto theft on Nov. 15.

Bay Link Protest To Be Readied

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors were ready today to consider protesting a state ruling that will force the county to remain in the San Francisco Bay Region for planning matters.

The California Council on Intergovernmental Relations ruled Friday that the county cannot join the proposed Alliance of North Coast Counties and must remain affiliated with bay region counties for purposes of receiving state and federal grants.

The supervisors were scheduled to consider filing a protest today claiming that the 6-3 vote by the 18-member council was illegal because a quorum was not present. The council advises the governor's office on regional grouping throughout the state.

The Sonoma Board, led by Robert Theiller, had sought to align itself with Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino and Lake counties. Staff advisers to the council recommended that Sonoma stay in the bay region because it has more in common there than with the predominantly rural counties to the north.

Speaking unsuccessfully in favor of the northern alliance were Theiller, James Groom, a Santa Rosa businessman; State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and Raymond Paschke, representing the County Board of Realtors.

Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam pointed to the strong connections between Petaluma and Marin and other Bay Area counties along with Burdette A. Shannon, manager of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce; Santa Rosa Mayor John Downey, and Frederick Silva, planner for the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Marin Man Muskie Aide

Deputy Marin County Counsel Joseph A. Forest, continuing 17 years of loyalty, has been named Marin coordinator for the Northern California Citizens for Muskie.

Forest, as a first-time voter in 1954 in Maine, cast his ballot for Muskie for governor, according to an announcement by the campaign citizens group.

Transfer Of Student Denied Despite Hub Official's Plea

The Marin County Board of Education last night refused to reconsider an interdistrict transfer despite the plea of W. Kenneth Lowry, superintendent of the San Anselmo School District.

Lowry asked the board to reconsider the transfer of Anthony Pukis, a kindergarten student, from his district to the Sausalito School District, but the board refused by a split vote, according to Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent of the county schools office.

Spain said Marilyn R. Crowell and Arnold T. Dolcini Jr. favored considering San Anselmo's case, but were not supported by four other board members present. James A. Swenson was absent, Spain said.

The action affirmed a board policy of granting inter-district transfers on the basis of need regardless of tuition, Spain said.

The San Anselmo complaint was tuition. "We believe the board's action was in opposition to the basis of the request, that of saving money — not to mention the $1400 to $1500 San Anselmo will be required to pay to Sausalito School District," Lowry said in a letter to the board.

He said the boy's working mother, Mrs. Carol Pukis, could find less expensive day care services in San Rafael and send the child to a San Rafael school at no cost to San Anselmo. Mrs. Pukis based the transfer of her child on the use of a day care center in Sausalito.

The San Anselmo School board voted to fight the transfer after the county board ordered tuition payments to Sausalito Nov. 15.

Marin County Board of Education Also:

EMPLEO — Hired Gerial DeOliveira to teach in Project EMPLEO at San Quentin at $34.92 per half day and Reuben Vega for the same program at $44.97 a day.

AIDES — Hired Pat Browder, Theresa Rosser and Joan Towers as instructional aides each for $2.73 an hour.

CONSULTANTS — Voted to hire eight experts headed by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, at a total cost of $570 for the Marin County Annual Teachers Winter Institute Jan. 28.

GIFTS — Accepted a gift of $2,000 from Mrs. Harry Corvin of San Francisco for use at Marindale School; 25 tickets to the circus of the San Francisco Police Athletic League from Balliet Bros. Construction Corporation of San Francisco; and $51 donated to Marindale by sponsors of Haunted House for Halloween.

TRANSFERS — Approved the transfer of Susan and Sally Blue from the Sausalito to the Mill Valley School District that Sausalito had denied, but turned down a similar request for the transfer of Cindy DeLuke.

INTERCOUNTY — Approved transfer of Joanne and Julie Moreda from Novato to the Petaluma School District; John Slek from San Francisco to Novato; and Gerald Russell and Annie Puckett from San Francisco to the Tamalpais High School District.

PRISON — Contracted with San Quentin State Prison to provide 384 hours of teaching in the prison's industrial education program between Jan. 3 and June 30. The prison will pay $2,990.

REPRESENTATIVE — Appointed Mrs. Crowell the board's representative on the Marin County School Boards Association.

TRANSFERS — Transferred land at Granada School from the Larkspur School District to Reed, correcting a 14-year-old oversight that left part of the Reed school under Larkspur jurisdiction, and transferred jurisdiction over the Nike missile site on Mount Tamalpais from the Kentfield School District to Mill Valley, where the Air Force children have been going to school.

RECLASSIFICATION — Placed about 15 miscellaneous employees including non-credentialed teachers and a program nurse in the category of classified employees.

MATERNITY LEAVE — Granted a maternity leave to Nancy V. Wartena, a teacher of the deaf at Gallinas School, until about March 1.

RAISE Gave a 2.5 per cent raise to 24 administrators effective three weeks ago that will cost the district $9,836 a year.

CLASSIFIED — Took no action pending clarifications by the county counsel on a proposal by classified employees for 8.3 per cent raises this year.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Jan. 3 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

Kamai Marriage Is Dissolved

The marriage of Curtis P. Kamai, 46, member of the Larkspur School District board of trustees, has been dissolved on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Last Friday, Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court approved the dissolution for Kamai and his wife, Ingrid E.

The judge ordered him to pay $200 per month alimony and $50 per month support for each of two minor boys, aged 16 and 20.

Mrs. Kamai, who lives at 2 Fairview Avenue, Corte Madera, told the court that they were married in Hawaii in 1947 and separated on July 12, 1969, after 21 years and seven months.

Kamai, an engineer, has been on the Larkspur school board since 1963 and was its president in 1968-69.

Mobile Clinic

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine Society for Crippled Children Inc. will operate early in 1972 a mobile orthopedic and rehabilitation clinic to examine and help in rehabilitation of orthopedically handicapped Filipinos in rural areas.

Expert On Goals Gives Marin Talk

At a dinner meeting attended by about 65 Marin school officials last night, an expert on goals outlined the history of legislation on goals and of the failure to transfer goals into programs.

According to Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins of the Tamalpais High School District, sponsor of the meeting at Dominic's in San Rafael, Dr. J. Richard Harsh said goals should be general, but to make them operational they must be made more specific.

The representative of the Educational Testing Service said that too often districts write goals, then quickly forget them, according to Hawkins.

However, Harsh said the Stull Bill, which goes into effect next September, is forcing districts to write goals, evaluate staff and assess whether goals have been reached, according to Hawkins.

Hawkins said the the audience, which asked questions after the 50-minute talk, included at least one representative from each school district within the borders of the high school district as well as the Tamalpais board and members of task forces working on goals at Redwood, Sir Francis Drake and Tamalpais high schools.

✔✔✔ WANT TWINS?

These aren't identical, but we've just listed an older duplex with side by side 1 bedroom units on a very large lot, in an excellent close in location. One unit has a fireplace - both have excellent potential for an imaginative investor! An unusual find at only $31,500!

Birth Control Bill Rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the second consecutive year, Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed legislation permitting doctors to prescribe birth control devices for teen-aged girls without parental consent.

Reagan made the announcement Monday when he also reported vetoing 14 other measures including pay raises for state workers, highway patrolmen and forest firefighters.

The governor axed the measure by Sen. George Msocne, D-San Francisco, calling for a $26.8 million—5 per cent—pay hike for civil servants. The measure said the legislature would have to raise taxes to provide the money.

In his veto message, Reagan said the $501 million tax bill enacted by lawmakers this month did not include the funds for the pay raise. He said it would be a "cruel hoax" on the employes to sign a bill when no money is available.

He said there was "no question that state employes warrant a cost-of-living increase," and reported he would include funds in next year's budget for salary increases. He did not say how much.

The governor also vetoed a $5.4 million bill by Moscone, a potential contender for governor in 1974, which proposed a 6 per cent pay raise for highway patrolmen.

"Under the circumstances I cannot single out these employes for a salary increase when our fiscal resources do not permit salary increases for the many equally deserving employes we have in other occupations," Reagan said in his veto message.

He cited similar reasons for vetoing a $1.8 million bill by Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, which proposed a 6 per cent pay raise for firefighters of the state Division of Forestry.

The bill, Reagan noted, contained a provision activating the increase only if tax revenues provided sufficient funds. Reagan said such funds were not forthcoming and that it would be "inequitable" to grant a firefighters' increase and not increase the salaries of other state employes, too.

He vetoed a controversial bill by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, which would have permitted minors under 18 to secure—without their parents' consent — contraceptives and birth control pills. He vetoed a similar bill last year on ground it might lead to sterilization of teen-agers without their parents' knowledge.

Reagan said approval of the Beilenson measure "would remove parental consent for care related to the prevention of pregnancy for all those under age 18—a group that includes thousands of persons who are still children in every sense."

He said removal of a parent's consent and guidance "can only result in further deterioration of the family unit to the detriment of the child and society in general."

A second Beilenson bill, directing the state to establish maximum permissible standards for noise caused by machinery, equipment and appliances, also was rejected.

He said it would force California manufacturers to comply with a "multitude" of standards which would result in eventual increased costs to the consumer and could cause more unemployment in the state.

"Placing special requirements on products sold in California but produced in other states could result in the creation of trade barriers for California-manufactured products," he said.

Reapportionment— Some Highlights

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Here are highlights of the reapportionment plans passed by the legislature.

(Editor's note: Governor Reagan, urged by Republicans, may veto the measures following study during a work-vacation at his Pacific Palisades home. If both Houses' plans are vetoed, reapportionment probably will find its ultimate solution in the courts.)

CONGRESS

California gains five new congressional seats because of its population growth the past decade. The seats will increase the state's congressional delegation from 38 to 43.

The new reapportionment plan, its sponsors say, permits each major party to win two new seats apiece, with the fifth up for grabs.

The toss-up district includes western Kern County, Kings County and small portions of San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties.

The district will have about a 54 per cent Democratic voter registration edge, but the area has voted Republican in past elections.

Maverick GOP Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of San Mateo must choose between his current area, revised to become heavily Democratic, or more into a new, unfamiliar but Republican district including Santa Clara, Santa Cruz counties and a small section of San Mateo County.

The third new district is carved in central Los Angeles with a heavy Democratic voter registration and a 49 per cent black constituency.

Torrance, which had been divided by an earlier proposal, will be included in the district of Democratic Rep. Charles Wilson. Palos Verdes will remain in the district of Republican Rep. Alphonzo Bell.

The fourth new district will be created in San Bernardino, Riverside and Los Angeles counties with a predominately Democratic registration.

The fifth district will include parts of Orange and San Diego Counties—including the Western White House at San Clemente— and have a firmly established 53 per cent Republican registration edge.

SENATE

Designed to maintain, according to sponsors, the current 21-19 Democratic majority at least through 1974, when Democrats could pick up another seat.

A predominately Mexican-American district in East Los Angeles would be created with a 63.1 per cent Democratic registration edge. The district was carved from areas of incumbents and would not come up for election until 1974.

Republican Sens. Milton Marks of San Francisco and Peter Bhhr of San Rafael will be thrown together and must challenge each other for political survival. Northern California had to surrender a seat to the south, where population grew faster.

Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, was given the most expansive and rearranged district under the Senate's reapportionment-plan. Way will represent such diverse areas stretching from Bridgeport in northern Mono County to Pismo Beach ic San Luis Obispo county and Needles in the Mojave to Carmel along the scenic coast.

Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, will have a district extending more than 40 miles up the coast beginning at Palos Verdes and extending north to Simi Valley and Camarillo in Ventura county. Segments are merely a block wide.

THE ASSEMBLY

Designed to increase the Democratic majority from the current 42-37 to 44-36 after next year's election. There currently is one vacancy in what is considered a safe Republican district in San Diego.

One Democrat and two Republicans would be eliminated under the plan.

The district of Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, shifts southward to provide another Democratic seat in faster growing Santa Clara county.

The districts of Assemblymen Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, and Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, are wiped out. Conrad is thrown into the district of Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys. Wakefield is placed in the heavily Democratic district of Assemblyman David Pierson, D-Inglewood.

A new district will be created in West Los Angeles and have a heavy Democratic voter registration.

The district of Assembly Democratic caucus chairman Ken Cory of Garden Grove has been drawn to wind through Orange County and resembles an unsolved jigsaw puzzle.

The district of Assemblyman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, is redesigned to dip through San Luis Obispo county and into portions of Santa Barbara and Kern Counties to the Ventura County area of Simi.

Republican assemblymen Ernest Mobley of Sanger and Ken Maddy of Fresno will be thrown together and must contest each other in a win-or-be-eliminated GOP primary.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most Scalp Hair Seldom Grows For Longer Than Six Years

Hair grows in cycles. Approximately 10 per cent of all hairs are in a resting (telogen) phase that lasts from two to three months. The hair becomes lighter in color and may fall out, but the root remains dormant. In contrast, the growth phase lasts much longer.

Most hairs on the scalp seldom grow for more than six years. An exception is the woman with hair extending down to the waist. Considering that hair grows at a rate of three-hundredths inch per day, this must represent at least 15 years of growth.

IT IS well-known that hair growth is impaired under conditions of ill health and generalized disease. Some individuals also have scalp hair with a short life cycle producing a greater turnover of hair.

There are 100,000 hairs on the average scalp. And — some truth to the statement that when the leaves begin to fall in October, so does the hair. The normal person sheds an average of 100 hairs a day — less in the summer than in the winter.

Telogen hairs are easily identified. When pulled out, the root end is small and club shaped. The shaft is thinner and lighter because pigment does not extend into the root area. In contrast, the bulb of a growing (anagen) hair is surrounded by an extensive translucent sheath (unless broken off when plucked) that is fully pigmented.

THE HAIR is dead from scalp to tip. But as a tulip, it grows from a bulb or root that gets its nourishment from underlying blood vessels. It grows best where the "soil" (scalp) is healthy.

Pulling out a hair usually changes the growth cycle. If a resting hair in the eyebrow is plucked, the root comes to life and another hair begins to grow. But when the brow is shaved, the follicles go into the resting stage for two to three months. On the other hand, shaving the scalp or beard does not affect the growth cycle and regrowth begins shortly thereafter. But plucking the scalp or beard may throw the follicles into a 90 day resting cycle.

BRONCHI AND AIR SACS

W.T. writes: How do bronchitis and emphysema differ?

REPLY

Bronchitis is inflammation of the bronchi, characterized by coughing. Emphysema is a chronic lung disorder in which the walls of the bronchi are thickened, often as a result of long-standing bronchitis. The air sacs also have lost their elasticity. Because of overstretching, they no longer function properly. Shortness of breath and cough result. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on emphysema.

BORN WITH MURMUR

Mrs. J. writes: Our baby was born with heart murmur. Does this mean he is going to be an invalid for life?

REPLY

No. Many babies have heart murmurs but only your physician can determine whether it is an innocent murmur or comes from a congenital heart defect.

NUMB FOOT

M.R. writes: Could a minor stroke leave the sole of the foot on the affected side with a pins-and-needles sensation?

REPLY

Yes. After a stroke, sensations of numbness may occur in the extremioies.

ORDINANCE NO. 1046

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL AMENDING VARIOUS SECTIONS OF CHAPTER 3.24 OF TITLE 3 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL PROVIDING FOR THE PAYMENT OF FEES IN CONNECTION WITH

Legal Notice

CONSTRUCTION OF DWELLING UNITS.

THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1. Section 3.24.30, Definitions, subsection (b) is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.30 "(b) The term "dwelling unit" shall include the following: (1) single family dwelling; (2) each unit of an apartment duplex or multiple dwelling structure designed as a separate habitation for one or more persons; (3) additions of or conversion to bedrooms in existing structures; (4) rooms that may be used as or converted to bedrooms; (5) mobile homes."

There is hereby added to Section 3.24.30 Definitions, subsection (c) which shall read as follows:

3.24.30 "(c) Mobile home space or pad shall mean each space or pad in a mobile home park designed to be used for parking a mobile home on a temporary, semi-permanent or permanent basis."

Section 3.24.50, Fees: Amount, is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.50 "FEES: AMOUNT. Every person constructing any dwelling unit in the City of San Rafael for which a park and recreation fee is required to be paid by Section 3.24.30 of this article shall pay to the City the following fees: (1) for each bedroom within each dwelling unit, $30.00 (2) for the addition of or conversion to a bedroom within an existing structure, $30.00; (3) for each room in a dwelling unit or structure that may be used as or converted to a bedroom, $30.00; (4) for each mobile home space or pad, $60.00.".

Section 3.24.60, Fees: When Payable, is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.60 "FEES: WHEN PAYABLE. Subsection (a) The fees imposed by Section 3.24.50 of this article with the exception of mobile homes shall be collected by the building inspector and shall be due and payable upon issuance of a building permit for the construction of any such dwelling unit provided, however, that there shall be a refund of such fees in the event that the building permit is not used for such construction with sixty (60) days from the date of issuance."

"Subsection (b). The fees imposed by Section 3.24.50 of this article on mobile homes shall be collected by the Building Inspector as follows:

(1) One-half of the total fee upon issuance of a building permit, provided however, that there shall be a refund of such fee in the event that the building permit is not used for such construction within sixty (60) days from the date of issuance.

(2) One-half of the total fee one (1) year after the issuance of said building permit.

Section 3.24.70. Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund is hereby amended to read as follows:

3.24.70 "PARKS AND RECREATION FACILITIES FUND. There is hereby established a Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund. All of the sums collected pursuant to this article shall be deposited in said Parks and Recreation Facilities Fund and shall be used solely for the acquisition, improvement and expansion of public parks, playgrounds and/or recreation facilities only. Said sums shall be separate and distinct from all other park funds collected pursuant to any other ordinance of the City of San Rafael."

Section 3.24.80 is hereby added to Chapter 3.24 and shall read as follows:

3.24.80 "CREDIT FOR DEDICATION OF LAND. At the option of the Parks and Recreation Commission and the City Council, land may be dedicated to the City of San Rafael for park purposes in lieu of the above-mentioned fees. The amount of land to be dedicated and the amount of credit to be given, if any, shall be at the discretion of the Parks and Recreation Commission and the City Council of the City of San Rafael."

DIVISION 2. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion of this ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid or unconstitutional by the decision of any Court of competent jurisdiction, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The City Council of this City hereby declares that it would have adopted this ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or portion thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more of the phrases or portions be declared invalid or unconstitutional.

DIVISION 3. This ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage in the INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael.

DIVISION 4. This ordinance shall go into effect and be in full force and operation thirty (30) days after its final passage.

Berkeley Man Treated After Fall At Park

A 23-year-old Berkeley man was treated for a bruised back at Marin General Hospital yesterday after he fell from a cliff while rock climbing Sunday near Stinson Beach State park.

Hank Keeton was injured about 4 p.m., according to Col. George H. White, Stinson Beach volunteer fire chief, when a rock hanger gave way as he climbed on the cliffs south of the beach.

Picture Captions Are Transposed

Captions to pictures accompanying a story on students living at the Kentfield Fire Department were transposed in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

One photo showed two of the student-firemen cleaning their quarters; the other showed another two donning firefighting garb during a dry run at the fire station.

Church Sets Pageant Of Season

Reviving a tradition several years old, the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley will stage a live nativity pageant three nights this week.

Presented by the youth of the church, the pageant will include shepherds, Christ's family, a cow and a pony in scenes from the Bible. The animals are being provided by the George Giannecchini family of Tennessee Valley, according to Rev. John A. MacDonald.

The pageants will be staged at 7 p.m. tonight through Thursday in front of the church, 285 Miller Avenue. Coffee and hot chocolate will be served after each performance.

The pageant was a church tradition for many years, MacDonald said, but was not held last year.

FLAMES THROUGH ROOK — A lone fireman is silhouetted against dense smoke and flame as he directs water on the roof of a blazing apartment house at 108 Professional Center Parkway, San Rafael. Firemen battled two hours to control the blaze, which broke out before dawn today, routing 75 occupants. Total damage was estimated at about $50,000.

FIRE RUINS — A fire-ravaged roof and jumbled furnishings made a shambles of the apartment of Fanya Wegner after flames swept the fourth floor and attic of the 40-unit dwelling. Seventy-five persons were routed, but no one was injured.

Fire Victims Put It Back Together

By JEFF GREER

Still numb from the shock of a raging predawn fire that routed them from their beds today, nearly 40 families living in the Park Towers apartments began trying to piece their lives back together today. (See story, page 1)

Red Cross officials reported they were trying to reach the burned-out tenants at midmorning, but many of them had gone to work or to stay with friends.

William L. Braden, social service director for the Marin Chapter of Red Cross, explained that residents who were made homeless by the blaze should report to his office in San Rafael to make arrangements for housing, clothing and food. "The help will be grants, not loans," he said.

Braden said at least the two lower floors of the four-story structure on Professional Center Parkway probably would be livable, after utilities were restored, "but I don't know how long that will take."

Most tenants agreed with Mrs. Christopher Cupples, who lived with her husband and two cats in Apartment 312, one floor below the blaze. "I can't believe how lucky we were," to survive, she said as she clutched a wide-eyed cat in her arms.

Joyce Coniglio, in whose apartment the blaze started, sobbed as firemen led her back into the rooms more than three hours after she fled for her life.

"Oh, my God," she said, looking in bewilderment at the apartment. Its roof was gaping open to the gray sky, everything within was ashes.

Firemen had to lead her by the hand to show her where the various rooms had been, then helped her search the wet ashes below the bathroom cabinet where her jewelry had been.

She found and slipped onto her finger a blackened, distorted ring, then picked her way out through the hall strewn with fire hoses, inches deep in water and muck. Friends took her away in a car.

One second floor resident, anxiously waiting outside, first asked the time, and then in a worried voice explained "I've got to drive to work, but I can't because my contact lenses are still inside. I wonder when they'll let me back in. Don't put my name in the paper; I just got divorced and I don't want her to know where I live."

Mrs. Hannah Hughes of Apt. 211 and her two daughters sat in the Northgate Convalescent Home next door, where the fire refugees were given warmth and coffee while firemen fought the blaze.

"Did you ever hear an alarm like that one?" Mrs. Hughes asked. "It was horrible; I almost had a heart attack" when the building's fire warning system was triggered.

She said she was waiting for friends to arrive to take her family to a nearby home.

"It's the third fire we've been through," Mrs. Hughes said. The family had escaped safely from a fire in an apartment building on Nova Albion Way last year, then another small blaze in the Park Towers in Mid-October. Her daughters sat nervously in the rest home's lobby, petting a neighbor's dog that had been rescued from the fire. They were in nightclothes and stocking feet.

"Are they letting anyone back in?" one asked. "We need our shoes."

"I'm worried about my library books. I had a whole pile of them to take back," the other girl said.

After firemen let the residents reenter the building, it became a dark, steaming eerie hive. People were shuffling in the dark — the only light was through smoke-darkened outside windows, and the hallways were ink-black.

Below the fourth floor, water was dripping through ceilings and running down hallways. Occupants fumbled in the dark to dress in street clothes and save Christmas presents and other belongings.

The Plummer family concentrated first on finding their cats. A fireman helped coax one from beneath a bed; the other was safe in a closet.

Harriett Woll of Apt. 209 said she was relieved to hear that the actual fire was confined to the top floor. "I had no insurance," she said. It was a common plaint among most of the apartment dwellers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patrick, the apartment building's managers, said they were in the same predicament. "I was going to go right down and get insurance after the other fire — but then I decided it couldn't happen again," Mrs. Patrick reported.

"Isn't this a helluva way to spend Christmas?" commented the man who needed his contact lenses.

"Yeah, if they don't let me stay there, I haven't got any place else to go," agreed another young man.

None of the apartment dwellers who lingered at the fire scene had any firm plans for the immediate future. Most said they were simply waiting to see how much damage their apartments suffered before deciding what to do.

San Rafael Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci said he did not know how long it would be before tenants could reoccupy their apartments. Relief fire crews were busy mopping up water on the lower floors. The top floor was uninhabitable, the chief said.

Early in the battle against the fire, all electricity and gas were turned off; firemen hunted to find valves to shut off streams of hot water pouring from broken pipes in the Coniglio apartment.

Shortly before 8:30 a.m., Pacific Gas and Electric Co. crews restored electricity to the building's ground floor.

A Christmas tree in the lobby suddenly lighted up.

"Merry Christmas," murmured a fireman standing outside.

TELLS OF HAVOC — Joyce Coniglio, in whose apartment the blaze started, tells Fire Marshall Kenneth Mazza of her efforts to alert other residents. "I just rang on doors," she said.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

18 Die In Apartment Explosion

PARIS (UPI) — An explosion so violent it blew residents and decorated Christmas trees through the windows, blasted a 13-story apartment building in the northwestern suburb of Argenteuil today.

Two hours after the blast officials said the provisional toll was 18 persons killed and 106 injured, many of them seriously.

Police said pending an official investigation it appeared the explosion originated from a fire in the gas-fired central heating installation of the building in the midst of a densely-populated low-cost housing project.

The blast shattered windows in surrounding apartment buildings for several hundred yards. The frame of the building held, however, while the blast roared upward apparently demolishing interior walls and floors.

Firemen said they took at least 100 injured victims to the Argenteuil Hospital while others were taken to other civil and military hospitals in the region.

Biggest Use Of Gas Is Recorded

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Because of low temperatures, Northern Californians used more gas to keep warm last Friday than on any other day in history, Pacific Gas & Electric Co. reports.

During that day, the firm's 2.3 million gas customers used 3.766 billion cubic feet of gas.

Temperatures reached the 30s and 40s.

DOG IN ARMS — A fireman carries a dog down a ladder from a fourth floor balcony shortly after flames erupted in the modern apartment building. Three persons also were rescued by early-arriving firemen.

SPORT NOTES

Niner Expects Good Show From Ex-Mates

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Big, rugged Earl Edwards is expecting the best from Billy Kilmer and Clifton McNeil next Sunday in Candlestick Park in the playoff game between the 49ers and Washington Redskins.

Edwards, 49ers' 6-foot-6, 262-pound defensive right tackle, knows that former 49er players such as quarterback Kilmer and flanker McNeil reach for "that little something extra" when they go against their ex-teammates.

"George Allen (Washington head coach) has a way of winning ball games, he's got a winning attitude," Edwards told members of the Marin Chapter, 49er Goal Rushers Club yesterday at Terra Linda's Holiday Inn. "There is a 100 per cent improvement in that team now," he said referring to the spark inserted by Allen since going from the Los Angeles Rams to the Redskins." Edwards said it should be quite a battle Sunday at Candlestick.

EDWARDS IS in his third year with the 49ers after playing two years of college ball at University of Wichita and then two years in the Canadian League with the Edmonton Eskimos in Alberta. He explained that the rule differences in Canadian football (such as wider field and a yard of space between the offensive and defensive lines) make the game better for the smaller, quick linemen.

When asked his views about 49ers' reserve fullback Larry Schreiber who has come on strong the last two games, Edwards said he and the other blacks on the team kid Kentucky born Schreiber quite a bit.

"Somebody told him he must have been struck with a sickle cell when he was very young because he runs like a brother," joked Edwards.

The big linemen, nattily dressed in tan suede jacket and beige slacks, said that guard Elmer Collett is probably the team's biggest personal cheer leader. "During a game Elmer is always yelling and screaming," he laughed about the Mill Valley lineman who plays on the special team.

FRANK NUNLEY is another one of those hyperactive players. Edwards said that when the Niners' middle linebacker runs out to the field before a game he usually bangs the pads of the first teammate he reaches on the sidelines.

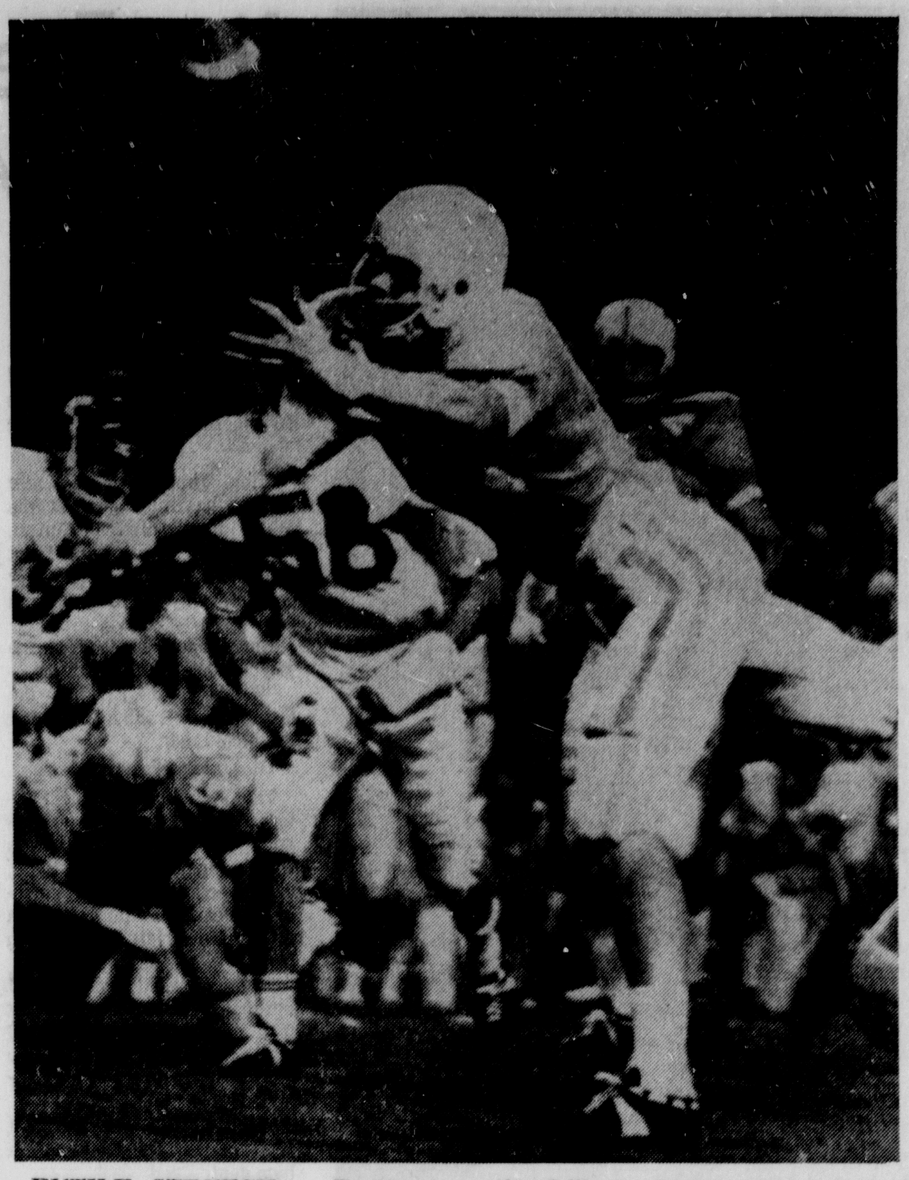
"He really gets fired up," said Edwards. "One time he hit Bruce Taylor so hard on the shoulders he knocked him on the bench. Bruce came over to me and asked, 'What's the matter with Frank?' He thought Nunley was really mad at him."

About the 49er quarterback picture, Edwards said, "There were moments early this year when I thought this might be John Brodie's last year. But now I think he's more like a bottle of fine wine." When Brodie does hang them up, Earl said he felt there would be quite a battle for the job between Steve Spurrier and taxi squad member Joe Reed. "That Reed is a born leader," said No. 74.

PLAYING ONE of his best games of the season last Sunday in the title-clinching 31-27 victory over the Detroit Lions, Edwards made three unassisted tackles and helped out in eight other stops. He was the first to hit quarterback Greg Landry on a fourth down and inches to go play in the fourth quarter, which gave the ball to the 49ers on the Detroit 40-yard line. Nine plays later Brodie ran 10 yards for a winning touchdown.

In explaining that defensive play, Edwards said, "Charlie Krueger (defensive left tackle) and I were pinching in, expecting Landry to carry. We just got lucky."

When asked which 49er players he expected to make all-league this season, Edwards named center Forrest Blue, guard Woody Peoples and running back Ken Willard.



FUTILE STRETCH — Tennessee end Gary Theiler made an all-out effort to reach a pass against Arkansas last night in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, while Razorback defender Ron Revard (58) watched the pass fall incomplete.

IN LIBERTY BOWL

Late Tennessee Vol Kick Defeats Arkansas, 14-13

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—It all boiled down to a battle of talented toes and a disputed fumble in the heart-stopping Liberty Bowl Monday night.

Tennessee's George Hunt tied on the mantle of hero when his extra point kick defeated Arkansas, 14-13, with only 1:56 to play following a 17-yard run by fullback Curt Watson.

Arkansas' Billy McClard, the top kick-scorer in the history of college football (Hunt is number two) packed up his disappointment and went duck hunting with razorback quarterback Joe Ferguson. Ferguson, who completed 18 out of 28 passes for 200 yards, found little consolation in being named the game's most valuable player.

TWO BOOTS

McClard had kicked field goals of 19 and 30 yards in the final period to give Arkansas a 13-7 lead and an apparent upset with time running out. In fact, Arkansas' defense had so stifled ninth-ranked Tennessee that it didn't seem to matter when McClard had a 48-yard field goal nullified by a penalty with less than five minutes to play.

Suddenly, Tennessee had the ball in Arkansas territory for the first time in the second half with less than three minutes to play when Volunteer tackle Carl Witherspoon recovered a fumble by Jon Richardson on the Arkansas 37. Three plays later Watson scored and Hunt kicked his second extra point.

SURPRISE

"Tom Reed (of Arkansas) jumped on that fumble and had it under his chest," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles of the recovery credited to Witherspoon. "He even handed the ball to the official. I couldn't believe it when they said Tennessee's ball.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of," he added, "We played well enough to win."

"I handed the ball to the official," said Reed. "I couldn't believe it when he said 'Orange'."

RECORD CROWD

A record crowd of 51,410 watched the two teams— playing for the first time since Tennessee won 14-2 back in 1907 —battle to a 7-7 deadlock.

Tennessee scored first on a two-yard plunge by Bill Rudder in the first quarter to cap a 55yard drive in eight plays. A key pass intereference penalty against Arkansas' Clark Irwin at the Arkansas 22 kept the drive alive.

COMPLETES SIX

Then Ferguson, a 6-2 junior from Shreveport, La., took over in the second quarter. He completed six consecutive passes in a drive that covered 66 yards and threw 36 yards to flanker Jim Hodge for the score.

Not only was Ferguson named the most valuable offensive player, but Arkansas safety Louis Campbell was named the most valuable defensive player with three interceptions to his credit. Two of them led to McClard's field goals in the second half.

"It was a nice honor," said Campbell. "We won everything but the game."

Young Tennessee Coach Bill Battle said his Volunteers made too many costly offensive mistakes.

"But we still played well enough to win when we had a real opportunity."

DUNN SAYS

And Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn said in the steamy Volunteer dressing room that he was ready for his ham. He bet a ham with Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers on the game but Bumpers said that if Tennessee won Dunn would have to go into the Arkansas woods and catch his own Razorback hog.

"I'm ready to go hog hunting," said Dunn.

49ers Like Kilmer, But Won't Show It In Sunday's Playoff

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One of the favorite guys of almost every member of the San Francisco 49ers is Billy Kilmer, the gutty player who was once told after an auto crash he might never walk again but came back to star in pro ball.

The only trouble is that Kilmer is no longer with the 49ers. He'll be quarterbacking the Washington Redskins in Sunday's big playoff battle at Candlestick Park.

JIM JOHNSON

Jimmy Johnson, former teammate at both UCLA and San Francisco, commented Monday that "Bill's a helluva great guy. We were together at UCLA and with the 49ers. But the 49ers have a job to do and he plays for the Redskins now. We'll talk to him in a very friendly way—after the game."

Johnson was awarded defensive player of the year honors by the 49er boosters Monday. Other awards went to Vic Washington as offensive star and John Isenbarger as number one on special teams.

Johnson has been playing with a cast on his right wrist since about midseason.

'BETTER NOW'

"The doctor told me he could fit me with a cast so that I would risk no further injury," said Johnson, "and that I could keep playing if I could stand the pain. I wasn't able to use the arm much the first couple of weeks, but it's better now."

Asked about the zone defense, the all-league performer said he preferred the man-to-man and had to curb his instinct to "follow my man," but that he was getting used to the zone.

Coach Dick Nolan commented that he thought the 49ers had a better team than last year's 10-31 champs that beat Minnesota and lost to Dallas in the playoffs.

'IMPROVED'

"Our running game has improved tremendously," he said, "(and) our defensive team is improved because of added experience and so have our special teams. Our problem this year was turnovers and mistakes, but we have reduced them in recent games."

The 49ers were made 5½ point favorites over the Redskins Monday.

In other playoff games, Dallas is favored by one over Minnesota; Kansas City three over Miami; and Baltimore by four over Cleveland.

The Redskins deep pass threat will be Clifton McNeil — like Billy Kilmer, an ex-49er.

Meanwhile Washington Redskin star receiver Charlie Taylor was firmly ruled out today for active duty even though he had shed the cast from a broken ankle and joined the team's first workouts for the Sunday showdown.

'NO CHANCE'

"There's no chance for Taylor to be activated," Redskin Coach George Allen told newsmen. "The cast was removed but he's not ready. He's still walking on a cane and even though he'll do some running with us this week, I wouldn't take a chance on reinjury."

Taylor, a wide receiver of All-Pro status, broke a bone in his ankle against Kansas City Oct. 24. At that point, the Redskins were leading the Eastern Division of the NFL with five victories against no losses.

FAILED OFF

Since Taylor's injury, Washington tailed off to a record of four wins, four losses and a tie and wound up second to the Dallas Cowboys in their division but still qualified for the playoffs because of the best second place record in the National Football Conference.

Allen said he planned no personnel changes in the lineup for the clash with the Forty Niners and reported no major injuries from the 20-13 loss to the Cleveland Browns in the regular season finale.

'PREFER NINERS'

He also said he shared the opinion of a number of Redskin players that they felt better about facing the Forty Niners rather than the Los Angeles Rams whom they dealt a 38-24 defeat eight days ago.

Allen told newsmen he agreed "it is hard to beat any team twice in one season, let alone twice in less than three weeks."

As head coach of the Rams before coming to Washington this season, Allen chalked up a record of six wins, three losses and a tie against the Forty Niners plus five preseason victories as well.

Asked what type of game he envisioned against San Francisco, Allen replied in timehonored coaching phraseology: "I wish I knew. I know we're going to have to play a great game and not make mistakes."

Novato Tops San Mateo Quintet

Novato High School's man-on-man defense choked off San Mateo in the second half and the Hornets rallied for a 63-51 non-league basketball victory yesterday at San Mateo.

"We played much better defense in the second half," said coach Jim Caranica. "Dan Del Rose did an exceptional job on offense for us as well."

Del Rose scored 14 points, his best production of the year. Marty Moroski led Novato's scorers with 21. Tom Conklin added nine and Willie Barnes eight.

Novato (5-6) trailed at halftime, 35-28, but outscored the Peninsula team 35-16 after intermission, grabbing the lead at the tail end of the third quarter. The second-half surge featured balanced scoring by Moroski (eight points), Del Rose (seven), Barnes (six), and Conklin (five).

The game originally was scheduled to be played tomorrow, but later was switched.

Novato	12	16	16	19	— 63
San Mateo	15	20	8	8	— 51

Novato — Conklin 4-1-9, Conte 1-0-2, Barnes 4-0-8, Moroski 7-7-21, Gilliam 1-1-3, Powell 2-0-4, Del Rose 6-2-14, High 0-2-2. Totals: 25-13-63.

San Mateo — Viehweig 7-4-18, Lindsey 2-2-6, Giffin 5-1-11, Paton 4-4-12, Eitel 1-0-2, Yamaguma 1-0-2. Totals: 20-11-51.

Marinaro, Allen Lead Shrine Cast

If you're going to the Shrine East-West football game Dec. 31 at Candlestick Park in San Francisco, it might be a good idea to take along a slide rule and an adding machine.

Some of the college players involved in that game turned in astonishing statistics during the regular season, including nine who set national single-game highs for 1971.

Eric Allen of Michigan State, for example, ran for 350 yards in a game against Purdue. Not only is that a season high, but it's a National Collegiate Athletic Association record.

Durable Ed Marinaro of Cornell, the Maxwell Award winner, once scored 32 points in a game. Marinaro carried 47 times in a game, as did Dave Schilling of Oregon.

John Reaves of Florida, the NCAA's total-yardage champion for a career, completed 33 passes in a tilt against Miami. Brian Sipe of San Diego State threw for 439 yards against Utah State, with his flanker, Tom Reynolds, grabbing 290 yards worth. Mike Siani of Villanova caught five touchdown passes in one clash.

Even the special teams have a statistical wonder. Marv Bateman, Utah, once boomed a 90-yard punt.

Tickets are still available at Macy's in San Rafael. All seats are $6.50. Game time is 1 p.m.

Golden State Warriors Host New York Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors get a chance tonight to break a deadlocked series this season with the New York Knicks, champions of the National Basketball Association two years ago.

The Warriors are 1-1 with the Knicks in the two games played in New York. Golden State won the last meeting, 112-103.

The Knicks are in the Eastern Conference Atlantic Division, trailing Boston by only 2 ½ games, but aren't dominating the league as they were two years ago.

Their primary problem has been the loss of center Willie Reed, who has been out for more than a month with a bad knee. Jerry Lucas, who was traded to the Knicks from the Warriors for Cazzie Russell, has been filling in for Reed and averaging 15 points per game.

The Warriors, in third place in the Pacific division, have had their own problems this month.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Injuries Cited In Fall Of Raiders From Top

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders are trying to forget the 1971 football season, but they still may be asking themselves why they failed to make it a fifth straight playoff game.

The answer may be the loss of wide receiver Warren Wells and injuries to two key backs, Hewritt Dixon and Charlie Smith.

"What would happen to Kansas City if you took away Otis Taylor, Ed Pocolak and Wendell Hayes?" Raiders managing general partner Al Davis asked rhetorically. "What would happen to the 49ers if you took away Gen Washington, Ken Willard and Vic Washington?"

Oakland lost Wells, a deep pass threat, before the season started when his probation was revoked and he was sent to a state prison.

Wells had caught 36 passes in three years. His replacements, Rod Sherman, Eldridge Dickey and Drew Buie, caught four combined this season.

Smith and Dixon were out most of the season. Smith is a pass threat too, and may have caused the Raiders to change to a power running game with Marv Hubbard and Pete Banazak.

Seals Receive Day Off; Face Hawks Tomorrow

OAKLAND (UPI) —Logic dictates that the California Golden Seals, an expansion team in the National Hockey League, should be winning against similar latecomers and trying to break even against the establishment clubs.

But the Seals, who are resting comfortably in third place in the NHL Western Division, have been giving the top clubs plenty of trouble.

Of the Seals' 10 wins this season, six have come against the tougher teams. They have beaten Boston twice and Toronto and Chicago once, while beating Detroit twice and tying the Red Wings.

In their last outing Sunday night, the Seals got off to a bad start against Montreal, but managed a 3-3 tie with the Stanley Cup champions.

The Seals, who hold down the third spot with 27 points, two over Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, are off today. They get another chance against the top club Wednesday night when they host the Chicago Black Hawks, the West division leaders, in the Oakland Coliseum arena.

Mill Valley Youth Group Obtains Boat

The Mill Valley Youth Commission has gained its first sailboat for use in a sailing course for Edna Maguire School students in Mill Valley.

Robert S. Griswold, of 506 Fawn Drive, San Anselmo, read about the commission's drive to raise money for boats and donated a 17-foot Catamaran to the panel Friday, according to Commissioner Jack B. Benjamin.

The boat, with three sails and a trailer, is valued at $3,000, Benjamin said.

The sailing program, under which Edna MaGuire students earn physical education credits, already has use of seven other boats owned by the Mill Valley Sea and Ski Club.

Virginia Wade Joins San Francisco Field

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Virginia Wade, Britain's top-seeded women's tennis star, will make her first San Francisco appearance Jan. 12-15 as a touring pro in the British Motors Pro Tennis Championships.

The 26-year-old from Sittingbourne, England, joins two other top-rated players, Billie Jean King of Long Beach and Francoise Durr of France, in the $17,000 event.

ROSE BOWL

Michigan Coach Changes Plans

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Coach Glenn "Bo" Schembechler says he isn't going to make the same mistake this time that he made two years ago in preparing the Michigan Wolverines for the Rose Bowl game.

Michigan lost the 1970 game 10-3 to the University of Southern California and Schembechler blames himself for getting the team to its peak a week before the game.

"We were not as sharp in our second week of practice," he told a news conference Monday after the Wolverines arrived here. "We/lost our edge and I don't intend to make that mistake this time."

Schembechler was a pregame casualty on New Year's Day, 1970, suffering a mild heart attack before the encounter and missing the contest.

The Wolverines meet Stanford University on New Year's Day and Schembechler showed his respect for the Indians by declaring the odds of 12 1-2 points favoring Michigan were entirely out of line.

Schembechler candidly admitted he stressed defense more than offense and would not hesitate to move a good offensive player to the defensive squad if he thought it would better the defense.

But Schembechler said Michigan's running attack was the reason why the team compiled an 11-0 record and that was the reason why he switched to the Wishbone formation this season.

It took the Stanford Indians only one practice session to suffer a key injury that may keep split end Eric Cross out of the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day.

The Indians assembled at this beach city Monday and held a single workout late in the afternoon during which Cross suffered a pulled hamstring muscle. It was a reinjury of the hamstring that had sidelined him during much of the season.

Cross, a junior, had been a key member of the victorious 1970 Stanford team which went to the Rose Bowl last New Year's Day and upset Ohio State.

Ralston indicated he expected to put his team through several hard days of practice, announcing he had scheduled double workouts Wednesday and Thursday.

Novato Hunter Wins The Prize

By AL GIDDINGS

I guess the hottest news I received this past week was from Rob Raab of Novato. He and three other Novatans — Fritz Mulendorf, Dick Zant and Bob Frye — had recently returned from Nevada where they had all got their bucks, all nice four-pointers. The big deal was that Raab had also won the grand prize given away each year by the Commerical Hotel at Elko, Nev., in their annual buck derby. The grand prize was a four wheel drive International Scout! How about that?

SPEAKING ABOUT derbies — Eddie Richardson of Inverness still retains his lead in the Tomales Bay bass derby with a 19-pound striper. The contest ends Dec. 31. I'm going to try it some night this week, but I wish it would warm up a little out there.

Kay Schneider caught another salmon Saturday in Tomales Bay off Millerton Point. That's about his 19th. I checked the anglers along White House Pool Sunday in Inverness. I was discussing this year's runs of salmon with Ciero Giamona and Glenn Davis, both of Point Reyes. They really surprised me. Ciero has caught 19 fish and Glenn 14. Both have fished the White House Pool area since the season opened. Ciero has two steelheads, both in the 12-pound class, taken this past week. I have to believe him! He gave me the roe. Both anglers have been using a Meps No. 3 silver spinner and both fish everyday, even if it's just during their lunch hour.

I HAD AN invite to go fishing last week to the "R" Ranch located on the fish-hook bend of the Klamath River. Alvin Guthertz of San Rafael, one of the public relations men for the project, took Robert Schwartz of Sausalito and Irwin Herlihy of Novato up for a show of the ranch property and some fishing. I coauldn't make the trip, but hear that the boys did catch some steelhead. Under construction and bonded for completion and use before Dec. 31, 1972 on the 5,000 acres are 857 campsites, a swimming pool complex with two teen centers, tennis courts, a lodge on the river, stables, corrals and about 50 horses for riding. It sounds good and even has lots of hunting possibilities. If you are interested, call Alvin Guthertz at 988 Market St. in San Francisco.

I DID TAKE a ride with George Goertz and Gerald Pierce of Novato, and what a ride! George wanted me to give it a go hunting ducks from his 3-man skullboat. I met them at 7 a.m. at the Black Point launching ramp. A skullboat is a low-riding, camouflaged boat in which the front two men either sit up or lie flat on their back, while the third man towards the rear of the boat, propels it forward by an over and under movement of an oar that sticks straight out the stern of the craft. George used a small motor to get us out on the bay off the Sonoma shoreline. We were able to sit up while this went on, but after that, while George skulled, both Gerald and I were flat on our backs.

We made a number of "sneaks" finally getting within range, and George would whisper "Take 'em!" By three o'clock we had eight northern bluies (Greater Scaup) and two canvasbacks, but George kept skulling. By 4:45, I couldn't move to even get up, I was so stiff. Lying on a flat hard board for 10 hours was too much for me. We finally started in to shore, arriving about 7:15 p.m. Cold! My legs were frozen tooth picks! One time I looked back and there was George whistling a happy tune. He was in his glory and I couldn't help think of the Glenn Ford movie in which Ford played the last cowboy. George, who is almost 60, could have been the last skuller!

As we hit the dock, I asked Gerald what he thought of skulling. He whispered, "It's like someone pounding your finger with a hammer — you are sure glad when it's over!" Of course Enos Foster, my neighbor, was waiting for me when I got home. He thinks he's pretty smart just getting pond ducks lately on his skulling trips, so he says, "Pretty nice birds, Al, and they don't smell too bad either!" Of course he was kidding, but I did smell those bay birds a couple of times just to make sure. That rat!

FRANK SUE of Corte Madera spent 25 minutes landing a 61-pound sturgeon on his little ol' fly rod to take the lead in the Nesei Club derby in San Francisco. He was a happy boy!

I saw Rich Bloom formerly of Point Reyes, with a nice pheasant over at St. Vincent's last week. I told him I would put his name in the news with his one bird so his Pt. Reyes friends would know he was still around. He said, "Don't say one bird — tell'em I had ten!" And so it goes.

Jim Fregosi Trade Gets Mixed Views

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) —The phone rang and Jim Fregosi picked it up.

Tommy Helms, happy and full of the devil as always, was on the other end calling long distance.

"Hey, Jim," Houston's new second baseman greeted the Mets' new third baseman, "what was it with you? I got traded because of a 'personality conflict,' why did they let you go?"

Jim Fregosi laughed at the way Tommy Helms put it.

"With me," he said into the mouthpiece, "I think they think I'm an old man."

FIVE TRADED

That's the part of the four-forone deal, in which the Mets got Fregosi from the California Angels for pitcher Nolan Ryan, outfielder Leroy Stanton, catcher Francisco "Paquin" Estrada and rookie righthander Don Rose, which rankled Fregosi.

"Being traded didn't upset me that much," he says. "What teed me off was that they said I was old. I'm not old. I'm only 29, and I think I can play for quite a long time yet."

The Mets are counting on it or else they made themselves a bum deal.

RESERVATIONS

Among those who have some reservations about the swap is Jim Fregosi's 7-year-old son, James, Jr.

"He's happy to go to New York and meet new friends," his father smiles, "but he was talking with some people in school and was told 'they talk funny in New York.'"

Much of the New York press was critical of the deal. Critical from the Mets' point of view. They felt the Mets gave up too much for an infielder who has been around awhile and hit only .233 for the Angels this year.

The Mets throw out this year. They insist it wasn't any kind of barometer on the real Fregosi.

HIT .186

He hit .186 playing with a small growth on his right foot until the All-Star break. He then underwent surgery at Mayo Brothers Clinic after which he looked far more like his old All-Star self, winding up the second half of the season at a better than .330 clip. That's the Jim Fregosi the Mets dealt for, says Bob Scheffing, the general manager.

Nonetheless, the general sentiment among the New York press has gotten back to Fregosi. One or two writers who called him told him "you know, of course, the Mets were after a big hitter like Santo."

Jim Fregosi knows all about that.

"I wasn't in that league so I can't say much about it," he says regarding the Mets' unsuccessful attempts to land the Cubs third baseman. "All I can say is I think I can play and help the ball club."

MIXED MAIL

In the Angels' front office, the mail has been running about 50-50 over the deal. Some people don't like it; about as many do.

Harry Dalton, the Angels' new general manager, phoned Fregosi before he dealt him but was unable to reach him. The two haven't had a chance to talk personally since but Dalton has written Fregosi outlining his reasons for making the deal.

"It certainly wasn't because we considered Jim old," says Dalton. "I never mentioned that word at all, he did. The reasons we made the deal, as I explained to Jim in the letter, is that we were able to strengthen and deepen the pitching staff; add a young power hitting prospect in the outfield, and deepen our catching staff. In addition, it means we now have enough pitching to put some of it together for another trade."

Reasoning like that is difficult to fault.

But I like Archie Fregosi's reasoning better.

FATHER SAYS

Archie Fregosi is Jim's 58-year-old papa. He tosses some fine Italian in with his English and nobody ever sticks him because he knows his baseball along with everything else.

Shortly after the deal was announced, Jim called his father, who runs a thriving little delicatessen shop in San Francisco, and the conversation went something like this:

"Dad, I just got traded to the New York Mets."

"Fine. Now I can go to Candlestick Park when they come here and watch you play."

"That's right."

"By the way, Jimmy, how many players did they get for you?"

"Four."

"That's good. As long as they got more than one . . ."

Trevino Gets Top Pro Golf Honor

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI)—Lee Trevino was honored as the 1971 Pro Golfer of the Year by West Coast golf writers and sportscasters at a dinner Monday.

Trevino received 63 votes from the Golf writers and broadcasters while Arnold Palmer was runner-up with nine votes.

The honor was accorded Trevino for his feat in becoming the first man to win the American, Canadian and British opens in one year. Despite an appendectomy in August which sidelined him for several tournaments, Trevino earned $231,201 in 1971, second to Jack Nicklaus, who won $244,290.

Nicklaus had been honored by the group as their choice for Golfer of the Year in 1970. Orville Moody was the 1969 winner and Billy Casper received the award in 1968.

Trevino's charitable work was cited by the writers and broadcasters who pointed out he had donated large portions of his winnings to orphanages, caddy funds and scholarships throughout the world.

Although Trevino was unable to attend the dinner, he addressed the group by telephone and said his objectives for next year were to attend fewer banquets and use a six wood instead of a two or three iron.

Trevino said he would miss five tournaments in 1972 prior to the U.S. Open. He listed them as the Phoenix, Jacksonville, Houston, New Orleans and possibly the Atlanta opens. He said the reason was he would be helping build a radium therapy center in his home town of El Paso, Tex. His mother died this year of cancer.

But Trevino said he would play the Doral Open and the Masters tournament whose course he had said was not suited to his game.

Troy Tips Iowa State; USF Falls

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The championship-caliber basketball teams prove themselves by winning against tough competition on the road, which is why Southern California is back among the nation's elite cage powers today.

After winning the Jayhawk Classic last weekend, the Trojans became the only one of seven travelling Coast quintents to win Monday when they sweated out an 89-86 win at Iowa State.

USC BREEZES

USC breezed to a 55-38 lead and then hung on behind the shooting of star guard Paul Westphal, who wound up with 30 points.

Arizona State, the team that beat USC, hosted Fresno State and took the 95-75 win although Jerry Pender of the losers hit 21. The Bulldogs went without starting guards Clarence Metcalf and Charles Bailey, left home for disciplinary reasons.

REAL GO

USF gave it a real go at New Mexico State but lost in overtime 91-84. Six-foot-9 Kevin Restani of the Dons outplayed 7-foot Roland Grant in the pivot to keep the Bay Area team in the game until the extra stanza.

San Jose State, which hasn't even been winning them at home too often played surprisingly well at powerhouse Creighton before losing 70-59.

CAL POLY

Cal Poly SLO took a 105-75 drubbing at Northern Illinois and San Francisco State was nudged at Cleveland State 72-71 although Gary Bradford had 21 for the losers.

Other scores: UC San Diego 81 Sonoma State 65, Redlands 75 Dominguez State 75, South Alabama 76 Arizona 66, Eastern Oregon 93 College of Idaho 70, Lewis and Clark 90 Victoria 53, Hayward State 88 Southern Oregon 85 (overtime), Azusa 81 George Fox 75, Great Falls 84, Southern Utah 82.

Stanford finds itself at Princeton in a game tonight.

Gabriel In Surgery

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Roman Gabriel, veteran quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams, was to have surgery today at St. John's Hospital to repair ligament damage in his right knee.

The surgery was scheduled by Dr. Dan Levinthal, the team's orthopedic specialist, who said it would correct an injury Gabriel suffered early in the season.

Gabriel, a 10-year veteran from North Carolina State, had the same knee operated on after the 1970 season for removal of torn cartilage.

Despite the injury, Gabriel appeared in every game the Rams played this season. Los Angeles finished with an 8-5-1 record, closing out the the schedule Sunday with a 23-14 win over Pittsburgh.

SEATTLE — Hugh McElhenny, former University of Washington and San Francisco 49er star, says a domed stadium is the top priority for getting a National Football League Franchise for Seattle.

It's my understanding that the NFL wouldn't give a city a franchise without a public stadium," said McElhenny. "I'm sure we'd have to use the University of Washington Stadium as an interim facility if we get a franchise for 1973."

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — The frustrations of trying to shake off the effects of corrective arm surgery caused quarterback Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers to lose his cool and take a swing at an exuberant fan after Sunday's loss to Miami.

It was an unexpected reaction from Starr, noted as one of the gentlemen of professional football.

"He wanted my chin strap," Starr said. "I told him no, but then he reached for it. So I hit him."

The incident occurred as Starr and the Packers went to the locker room after a 27-6 loss to Miami.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — More than 50 college football players from throughout the nation began practice today for the 34th annual Blue-Gray football game Dec. 28.

The South squad for the annual charity game was beefed up Monday with the addition of Solomon Freelon, a 256-pound guard from Grambling.

The North offense got a boost with the addition of John Henley, who finished the year as Missouri's all-time leading pass receiver.

FOXBORO, Mass. — There is a good likelihood of a 10 to 20 per cent turnover in the personnel of the New England Patriots in the off-season, according to General Manager Upton Bell.

At least three of the players on the trading block are common knowledge-Ron Sellers, Mike Taliaferro and Ed Philpott.

SPORT SHORTS

Auto Racing

NEW YORK — Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., was one of five repeaters named yesterday to the 1971 All-American Racing team.

Joining Donohue, a 34-year-old engineer who won eight of his 11 Sports Car Club of America Trans-Am races this year, were Don "Big Daddy" Garlits, a drag racing veteran from Seffner, Fla.; Nascar Grand National Champion Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C.; Ronnie Sox, a drag racing champion from Burlington, S.C.; and Parnelli Jones, former Indianapolis 500 winner from Palos Verdes.

Named for the first time were George Follmer, a road racer from Arcadia; Peter Revson, the Can-Am Challenge Cup winner from Redondo Beach; Joe Leonard, USAC National Driving champion and California 500 winner from San Jose; Bobby Allison, the NASCAR superspeedway king from Hueytown, Ala.; and Ray Elder, veteran NASCAR driver from Garuthers.

Donohue, as top vote-getter, will receive the Jerry Titus Memorial Award. Al Unser, lastyear's award winner, failed to make the 1971 team.

Golf

ATLANTA — Only members of the immediate family gathered Monday around the Carnation-covered casket under a faded green canopy for the burial of golfing immortal Bobby Jones.

The short ceremony was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John D. Stapleton, who had baptized the 69-year-old Jones into the Romand Catholic faith only three days before his death Saturday.

U.S. Olympic Team Wins Praise Of Top Skaters

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Olympic veteran Neil Blatchford and schoolgirl Anne Henning, a pair of brilliant skaters from Northbrook, Ill., head the United States Winter Olympic team picked Monday and called the "strongest team ever."

"I think it's definitely our strongest team ever as far as depth is concerned," said Lamar Ottsen, Chairman of the Olympic Committee for skating. "We're weakest in the long events but strong in the 500 and 1,500."

The 10 men and six women named to the team will compete Feb. 3-13 in the Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan.

Miss Henning, just 16, swept nearly every race at all distances in the four days of trials that concluded Monday at the U.S. Olympic Rink at Wisconsin State Fair Park.

Blatchford, only 20 but an Olympic veteran, was particularly sharp in the sprints and Sunday equalled the U.S. rink record of 39.1 second for the 500-meters.

Ed Rudolph of Northbrook, one of the team's coaches, said he felt the team was good now and could be "fantastic" by the time the Olympics are held. He said he thought the team could win five to seven gold medals.

Joining Blatchford on the men's team is Dan Carroll, St. Louis, who dominated the distance events during the four days of trials. Others named are Greg Lyman, Northbrook; Peter Eberling, Paramount, Calif.; Charles Gilmore, Anaheim, Calif.; Gary Jonland, Park Ridge, Ill.; Clark King of Studio City, Calif.; Bill Lanigan, New York City, Jack Walters, Boston; and John Wurster, Ballston Spa, N.Y.

Carroll, Lonland and Lanigan are all in the U.S. Army.

Diane Holum, also of Northbrook, a medal winner in the 1968 Olympics, was also named to the women's team. Others named are Leah Poulos, Northbrook; Kay Lunda, Madison, Wis.; Jeanne Omelencnuck and Sheila Young, both of Detroit.

Greenman Leads Wallbanger Past Teachers, 78-72

Bob Greenman and John Silvers combined for 47 points to lead Harvey Wallbanger past the San Rafael Teachers, 78-72, in the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult basketball league yesterday.

Greenman scored 26 and John Silvers 21. For the Teachers, Bill Pandiandi sank 28 and Bret Tovani 21.

Kettle forfeited its game to the Sharks. KSJO-radio and First American Title were involved in a double forfeit.

Barry Battle Continues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI — Still another chapter was recorded yesterday in the continuing legal battle between basketball great Rick Barry and his former employer, the Golden State, nee San Francisco, Warriors.

The Golden State Warriors were granted permission Monday by U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli to file a cross-complaint against Barry asking that he not be allowed to renew his contract with the New York Nets when it expires next fall.

The court actions have been piling up since Barry signed with the National Basketball Association Warriors, then based in San Francisco, jumped to the old Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association in 1967, and then tried to jump back to the NBA in 1969.

"It's better that this court hear it than that it be in several courts," Zirpoli said. There was no indication when he would hand down a decision.

An attorney for the Nets expressed the hope that the Warriors would live up to what he called "their verbal promise" not to try to force Barry back to San Francisco before the end of the 1972 season "because the Nets are going to have a championship team."

Addie Burial Set

NEW YORK (UPI) —Johnny Addie, the ring announcer for more than 100 world championship bouts at Madison Square Garden and other locations during the past 25 yars, will be buried Thursday at Mt. Vernon, N.Y. Addie died Monday of a blood infection at the age of 69.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Will These Issues Fit His Objectives?

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My chief investment objective is good quality stocks for long-term appreciation, but with a measure of risk not quite bordering on speculation. Accordingly I hold City Investing, Teledyne and United Brands warrants. Since last April, when I invested, I have a 30 per cent paper loss. Do you think these issues fit my objectives? — W.H.

A. In my opinion, your portfolio is more speculative than you appear to realize. Nonetheless, I see no reason at this time to make any changes.

Spearheaded by broad gains at Guerdon and General Development, City Investing (NYSE) showed a strong increase in earnings for the nine months. While its insurance subsidiary has also turned in a strong performance, lower ordnance and aerospace orders were restraining influences. Full year net should easily surpass the $1.44 fully diluted per share results of 1970.

Similarly, Teledyne has been hurt by reduced government spending and aided by improved insurance operations. Thus, for the fiscal year ended October, sales were off 9 per cent while earnings dropped 11.5 per cent. Recovery in the current fiscal year is anticipated.

United Brands, which was hard hit by the dock strikes and weak prices for bananas incurred a loss in the third quarter. Cost reductions, stabilization in the banana market and greater contributions from its restaurant business should boost net in 1972. If this is the case the warrants (ASE) would undoubtedly outpace any improvements in share price.

Q. Could you please tell me if Windsor Fund went ex-dividend between the first and the fifth of November? — M.M.

A. On Oct. 29, Windsor Fund sold ex or without a 50 cents per share capital gains distribution. Reinvestment was optional at $8.55 a share. On the same date shares sold ex a 16 cent a share income dividend. The share price quotation was adjusted to reflect these distributions on Nov. 1. The day-to-day price change on that day was a minus 82 cents to $8.55 a share. Of this, only 16 cents resulted from normal daily fluctuation in portfolio value.

Market Setback 'Normal'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Profit taking shot down the high flying glamor group on the New York Stock Exchange today, and on balance the market was slightly lower in active trading.

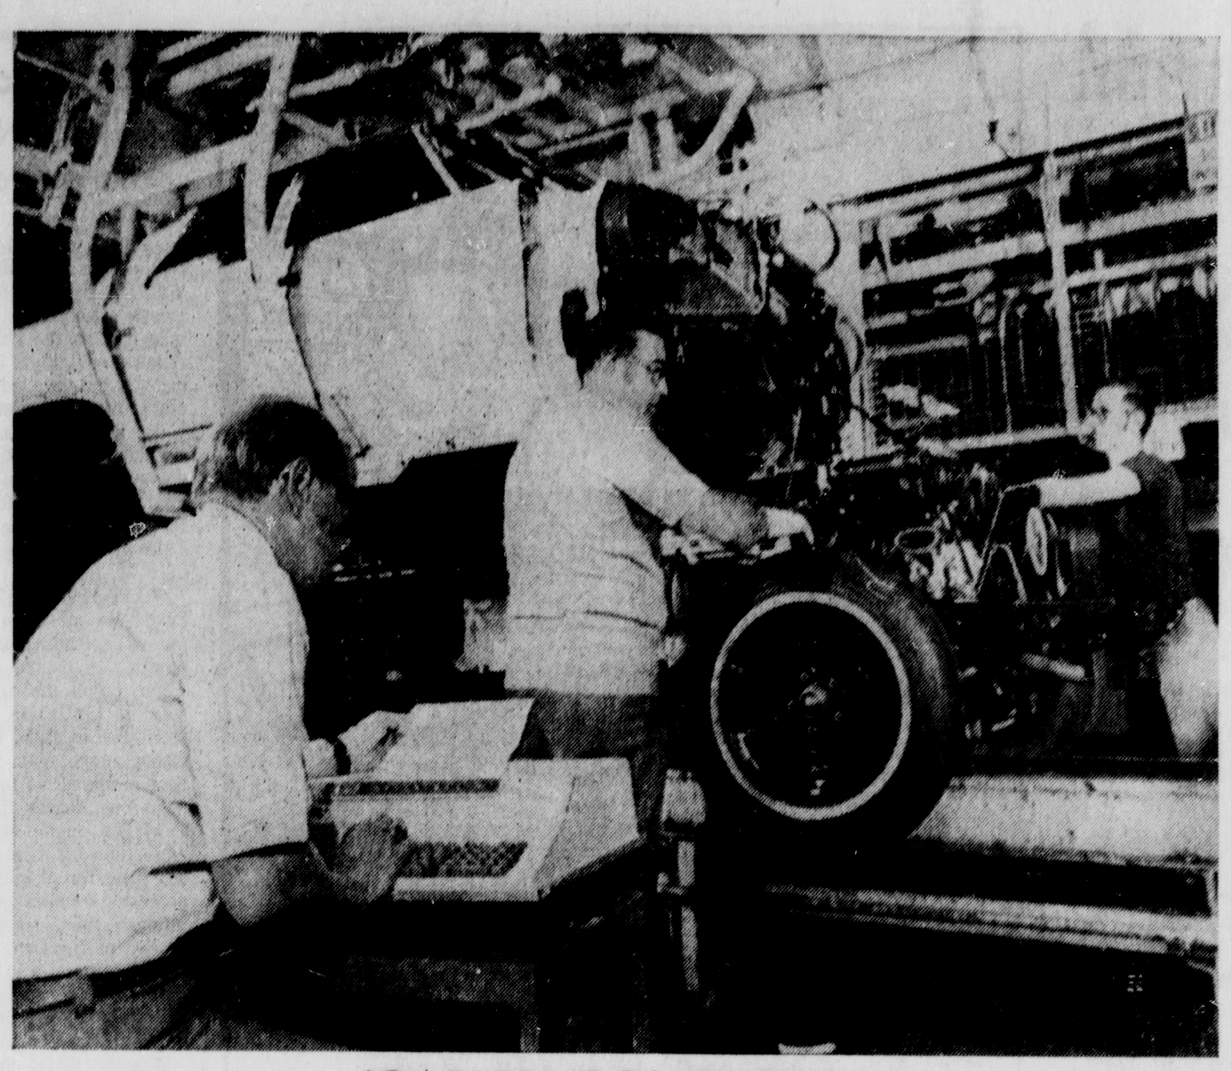
Much of the setback was viewed as a normal development in the wake of Monday's spectacular market advance which followed a break in the international monetary crisis over the weekend.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 3 points at 882.00 after about two hours of trading. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.16 at 101.39, and declines topped advances by 125 issues.

Prices also eased in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Topper, by far the most active Amex issue, was slightly lower on more than 110,000 shares.

Among the Big Board's softest spots were Honeywell down 3 3-8, Super Oil 3 1-2, and Walt Disney 2 1-2. Off a point or more were KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, IBM, Burroughs, and Eastman Kodak.

Fractionally lower stocks included U.S. Steel, General Motors, Ford, Jersey Standard, Penn Central, General Dynamics, Levitz Furniture, UAL Inc., Trans-World Airlines, General Electric, Westinghouse, Sperry Rand, and Texas Instruments.



'CAR BY COMPUTER'

A new computer-controlled delivery system for all new Pontiac car orders, recently inaugurated nationwide, is the result of linking Pontiac motor division with General Electric's international information services network. With on-the-hour accuracy, dealers are able to keep track of the status of each customer's car throughout production and delivery. On the assembly line, a teletypewriter is used to report a car's status into the "interprocessing" network.

Marin's 11-Year Hiring Outlined

Business service organizations showed highest percentage gains in the number of employees hired during the 11-year period from 1959 to 1970, according to figures recently released by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

In a facts report showing the standings of various types of businesses, chamber manager Carroll A. Snyker said he considered only the first quarter of each year for comparison purposes, due to a lack of complete information available between 1959 and 1962, which handicapped comparisons with the population census.

Business service organizations increased the total number of employees in 1959 from 217 to 982 in 1970, a gain of 352.5 per cent. The category includes a variety of operations, which Snyker said usually follow a growth in other businesses.

Second on the list of percentage increases was shown by medical health services, increasing total employees of 705 in 1959 to 2,417 in 1971. Other high gainers were motels and tourist courts, increasing employees by 207.6 per cent; retail drugs, increasing 190.3 per cent; and general merchandise, up 151.3 per cent. The number of employees in mining dropped 36.3 per cent and in food manufacturing 29.4 per cent. Those employed in contract construction were down 7.6 per cent.

Average employees' compensation was highest with drugs and chemicals workers in 1970 at $2,242 for the quarter. Construction materials workers averaged $2,228 for the quarter, in second place. Communications workers averaged $2,215, trucking and warehousing employees $2,199 and grocery employees $2,196.

Motels and tourist court employees, a category third highest in percentage increase in number of employees, averaged only $945; and employees in eating and drinking establishments only $961 per quarter.

Speedier Delivery

HELSINKI (UPI)—The movement of goods from Europe to Japan will be speeded up by one half in the near future following the signing of an agreement between Finnish and Soviet officials on the opening of a container rail link between Finland and Japan through the Soviet Union.

World Cereals Surplus Seen

PALO ALTO (BW) — During the next decade, worldwide production of cereals will rise somewhat faster than demand, creating more imbalances in international trade, a high ranking United Nations official told an international conference at Stanford University.

Eric Ojala, assistant director general of the economic and social department of the U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), said a newly completed study projects a worldwide increase in demand for all cereals at a rate of 2.3 per cent annually through this decade.

Based on current trends, output of wheat, rice, and other cereal grains will rise about 2.8 per cent annually.

Gus Balistreri of Petaluma is observing his 20th anniversary as an active member of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. field force. He is an agency manager in the company's San Rafael district office at Northgate.

BANK OF AMERICA'S most recent Small Business Reporter issue deals with the equipment rental business, said to be one of the fastest growing services industries in the country.

However, with manufacturers and suppliers of equipment entering the field and establishing their own outlets, the business is becoming increasingly competitive.

A Look At New State Tax Program

The brand on California's new state tax system, enacted by the Legislature at its special session, is the brand of Marin-Sonoma Assemblyman William T. Bagley. And the system deserves a thorough look.

Most of it was contained in revenue bills that Bagley introduced last year and again this year. Partisan politicking was largely to blame for the long inaction. When the Legislature adjourned its 1971 session without acting on taxes, Gov. Ronald Reagan called it back. The first bill before it was Bagley's measure. This time it passed, quickly.

It is labeled "tax reform," and it is — to an extent. It also was heralded as offering "tax relief," and it does — to a smaller extent.

THE "REFORMS" are these:

Withholding — Starting Jan. 1, Californians' state income tax will be withheld, after the manner of the federal tax. State withholding won't bite too deeply, at first. Whether it does later will depend largely on how closely we watch our legislators, and what kind we elect to office.

Minimum income tax — Citizens whose earnings otherwise are exempt from state income tax will have to pay a 2½ per cent levy as a minimum tax. (This will make sure that Governor Reagan himself does not escape again.)

"Soak the rich" — An 11 per cent tax bracket is added for those making $31,000 per year or more.

Bank and corporation tax will be increased by .6 of one per cent. Oil and gas depletion allowance will be decreased from 27.5 to 22 per cent, matching the federal allowance. There also are changes in capital gains and inheritance tax structures, the latter also to match the federal system.

THE "RELIEF" is included in these:

The 20 per cent "forgiveness" — Because we will already by paying out 1972 state income tax (through withholding), we will deduct 20 per cent from the total of our 1971 tax when filing our return in April.

Senior citizens' property tax assistance will be expanded to allow greater deductions, and may apply at age 62 instead of age 65.

The package will bring faster flow of money into state coffers and make possible a balanced state budget.

IT SHOULD be borne in mind, however, that this latter applies only to the current fiscal year. Unless the state takes a more realistic look at its spending in 1972, the budget for the following year will require another tax increase.

Unfortunately for us, such an increase will be easier for the legislators to assess by reason of the withholding feature: a lot of little bites don't hurt as much at first as one big bite.

Mister Robin

Robins are a very special bird to most of us. One lady we know always refers to them singularly, as Mister Robin. "There's Mr. Robin eating the hawthorn berries," she will say.

We are so fond of robins, it is difficult for us to imagine that they were considered game birds a century ago, and were shot and eaten. In fact, as late as 1913 some butcher shops sold robins for 60 cents a dozen.

Most Marinites would about as soon eat the family dog or cat as harm a robin these days.

By RUS WALTON:

Taxpayer Gets Plucked To Feather These Nests

SACRAMENTO — Today a quick lesson in political science — the science of "How To Feather a Nest."

If you're a taxpayer, you should be interested. You supply about 80 per cent of the feathers.

California's legislative retirement system is the most generous in the nation. Your friendly corner legislator has seen to that.

Under the system, a legislator may retire at 60, or after 20 years in office, and receive two-thirds of his legislative salary — about $12,800 a year, or more. When he dies, his widow receives one-half of his pension as long as she lives.

There are also periodic cost-of-living adjustments. That way he won't have to worry about inflation.

Each legislator contributes $768 a year as his share of the retirement fund. That is 4 per cent of his $19,200 annual salary. Taxpayers chunk in $5 for every $1 the legislators put into the fund. By contrast, state civil service employes match the taxpayer dollar-for-dollar on their retirement fund.

If a legislator was a late-bloomer in politics, he may retire at 60 after only four years in office. His annual retirement benefits in that case would run about $3,100 a year for the rest of his life.

Or, a legislator may retire after 15 years in office and take a slight penalty. If he is not yet 60, he loses 2 per cent for each year he is under.

BUT WAIT. There's more!

It all goes back to 1965 and the State Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decree. That brought on a hasty mid-decade reapportionment and sudden political death for 30 incumbents. In a generous farewell, the legislature handed out early retirement benefits to the victims who otherwise would have been left with their pensions dangling until they reached 60.

The good-bye gift: any incumbent with four years in office, regardless of age, became immediately eligible for retirement benefits if his days at the capitol were ended, or even threatened, by reapportionment. If he were defeated in his new district, or if his old district were abolished, or if he just quit, he could retire, and receive an early retirement bonus.

The bonus works like this. Suppose a 42-year-old assemblyman with 10 years in office quits the legislature because of reapportionment. His pension starts immediately at $7,700 a year. During the next 18 years, until he reaches 60, his early retirement bonus will total $138,700. From age 60 on, his retirement benefits continue. If he lives to reach 70, those will total another $77,000 — plus cost of living adjustments.

THERE WAS AN ATTEMPT — to reform all that in 1969 but incumbents were protected by a grandfather clause. Which means that any legislator affected by the 1972 reapportionment can still get in on the act and enjoy those early retirement benefits.

There's a snag, though. A legislator must exercise his retirement option in 1972, or forfeit his early retirement bonus.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, a veteran of 22 years in office, wants to remove the snag. His AB 2329 would give legislators a permanent vested interest in the early retirement option.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was chief huckster for the bill. He argued that many legislators might retire in 1972 if they had to choose between staying in office or taking the immediate retirement bonus option. Bagley predicted a huge brain drain.

That line doesn't do much for me.

Mr. Lanterman's bill is on the governor's desk. It should be vetoed.

'Pass No New Law' Response Awaited

A friend has forwarded me your editorial of Dec. 3, which I thoroughly enjoyed.

I sincerely appreciate the kind remarks you made about me in that editorial and firmly stand behind what I said.

I suppose we'll have to await the beginning of the 1972 session to see if my remarks had any impact on my fellow colleagues.

Commuters Worried About New Schedules

Can you find out, and publish at their expense, some (any) information concerning the bus schedules of this new Golden Gate bus service as it pertains to us riders here in Fairfax? We don't know where to call to find out anything. We don't know where the pickup stop will be in Fairfax. We don't know where they will be for a return trip from San Francisco, and Jan. 1 is close upon us.

We're sorry to see the Greyhound, with its well organized system, going out of business and this ragtime outfit taking over. Where will the office in Fairfax be located?

Can you, or will you, in the interests of us Fairfax riders get to the company and get them to publish their schedule and stopping points?

THOMAS J. STOLTY

Fairfax

(Not only Fairfax commuters, but also those in all other cities of Marin and southern Sonoma counties, have been wondering about schedules and pickup points for the Golden Gate Bridge District's commute service which will start Jan. 3. The bridge district promises to have complete schedules available Thursday. They are to be passed out on Greyhound commute buses, and will be published in the Independent-Journal. — Editor.)

Jail Too Crowded? Too Many Lawbreakers

I noted in the Dec. 14th edition of the Independent-Journal the story concerning the overcrowding of our county jail. I feel that the main point in all this is being overlooked. I once had the opportunity to spend a little time in the old jail one night. I had broken the law. I was where I belonged. I did not cry about the conditions. I faced up to the fact that I belonged there. The bailiff told me, "Next time think before you act".

The people who are complaining about this should think about that sound piece of advice. Think before you act. We are all held responsible by some higher authority for all of our actions. Our jails are there to help us to remember not to repeat the act. They were never built like a Holiday Inn — nor should they be put in that category.

If everyone of us in Marin County tried to help our fellow man and lived exemplary lives we would have very few occupants of our jail. This is our primary duty to society. If our jail is a little bit overcrowded, the inmates have no one to blame but themselves. If they (the inmates) had been more prudent in their daily living, they would be spending evenings in their homes not at the Civic Center. I speak from experience. I hope that I am never again a guest of the county; if so, I will not complain.

Bon Air Proposal Conforms To Standards

I am a member of the Larkspur Planning Commission. I feel compelled to comment on a letter published in your "What Our Readers Say" column on Dec. 13, supporting the commission's rejection of the Larwin Co. submission to construct 224 units in Bon Air.

I voted for the submission on the recommendation of the Larkspur planning staff and the city's architectural review board. I was also under the impression that our new planning consultant was not opposed to the proposal. In my opinion, the Larwin plan was legal in all respects and was rejected by three of my colleagues on what I feel were their personal views rather than the laws under which we operate.

I consider it most inequitable for the commission... to accept city laws as a guideline and then to deny approval to an applicant who has abided by these laws and, moreover, has modified his plans to follow the recommendations and restrictions of our advisers.

In the letter supporting the rejection, comment was made about schools, sewers, city services and cars. These comments presented the matter in an unfair light.

Average daily attendance in the Kentfield School District, and particularly in the Greenbrae School, has dropped below that anticipated when the schools were built and is substantially below capacity. The impact of the proposed development on schools and other services will be less than our present zoning allows, as the projected number of dwelling units is 20 per cent under the maximum density permitted. Sewer facilities, according to Larkspur's staff, are adequate to take care of the project...

The impact of the additional cars on the surrounding streets has been, in my opinion, exaggerated. This development is very suitably situated for traffic circulation, as it has two avenues of easy access to Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and one to South Eliseo Drive. This should tend to distribute the traffic load and ease the burden on any individual street.

In summary, I voted in favor of the Larwin proposal because I felt that the environmental impact would be minimal. Aesthetically, the project is far superior to the exisiting developments in Bon Air. The developer voluntarily reduced the population density of his project below that existing anywhere else in Bon Air...

Newspaper Exemption Unjustified

(By JOHN S. KNIGHT in Detroit Free Press)

The United States Senate has voted 50-36 to exempt newspapers, radio, magazines and other information media from wage and price controls.

The ascribed reason given by Sen. Alan Cranston of California, sponsor of the bill, is that present controls would hand the government "economic life-or-death power over every publishing and broadcasting operation in the country." He cites as a precedent that no such controls were applied to the media during World War II and the Korean War.

Sen. Sam. J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina, in favoring the exemption, views controls as presenting a threat to freedom of the press under the Constitution.

For my part, I see no such threat in the present system of controls, nor do I think it is in the national interest to grant special exemptions to a press which has been calling for sacrifices from every other segment of our society.

Senator Cranston's bill is bad legislation. If a similar measure is approved by the House, it should be vetoed by the President.

Risk Of New Middle East War Increases As Year Ends

JERUSALEM — As the days pass toward the end of this turbulent year, the risk of war in the Middle East increases. With the Egyptian forces on a full alert, Israeli intelligence, which is very good indeed, puts the chances at 60-40 for a renewal of fighting that might not be all-out war but the kind of sporadic fire that marked the war of attrition.

The loud, angry noises from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sound as though a fourth conflict between Arab and Israeli is inevitable, He had promised that 1971 would be the year of decision. Out of Cairo via the grapevine comes the following:

WHAT ALTERNATIVE does Sadat now have? He must see to it that a law is passed extending 1971 for at least six months.

For Israel the alternative is what it was in 1948, 1956 and 1967. That is, readiness to fight to defend the lands where more than 2,500,000 Jews have been gathered in from all over the world.

No one doubts that Israel would be victorious again, even though, if it became all-out war, at a much greater cost. The new threat comes at a time when domestic troubles pile up. Rising costs, inflation, the housing shortage, the heavy burden of taxation, the agitation of the Oriental Jews who in the farthest extreme call themselves Black Panthers — all these create tensions in what is theoretically peacetime in Israel.

Whether Sadat and his generals are adding all this up to a conviction that Israel is weak and, therefore, it is time to strike weighs heavily in the balance between war and peace. That would be a grave mistake, for the history of the past 25 years show that the Israelis have a remarkable capacity for uniting in the face of an external threat.

That is as true today as in the past, and the question is one of credibility in the mind of President Sadat. He must weigh the accounts of internal difficulties, probably exaggerated in the telling, and at the same time equate this with the consequences of the India-Pakistan war.

ISRAELI NEWSPAPERS report the Pakistani charge that the Soviet Union supplied India with SAM-3 ground-to-air missiles more advanced than the SAM-2s already emplaced. There is even the hint that Russian pilots flying advanced-type planes might do the same thing for Egypt in a new war with Israel.

But the belief widely held here is that Moscow wants to avoid another Middle East conflict and is urging restraint on Sadat. The cost to the Russians of sustaining Egypt with its ever-increasing burden of population and poverty is great even though Sadat claims to be paying hard currency for military material. Moreover, President Nixon's visit set for early May is a deadline of sorts. To get involved in a conflict of indeterminate length with still another bloody nose of Egypt would put an end to the detente — a SALT agreement on nuclear weapons, increased trade, a European security conference —that Moscow is promoting.

The heroine in the Israeli drama is the tireless former Milwaukee schoolteacher, Prime Minister Golda Meir. While she may not have brought the additional Phantom fighter-bombers back in her shopping bag as she jokingly said when she took off for Washington, no one doubts that in her long talk with President Nixon she got the assurance that the military balance in the Middle East would be maintained with American weapons sold to Israel and with economic aid to ease the pains of an economy in which 25 per cent of the gross national product goes for defense.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER Yigal Allon says that the balance must not only be maintained but must be seen. Golda, as high and low all call her, is living proof that it is sustained — a fact of first importance to this Jewish state living in a sea of Arabs.

Surrounded as she is by brilliant, hard-driving military men such as Allon and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, she is the undisputed leader holding together powerful rival factions. As she knows full well, peace is the deep desire of her people, and she may be more successful than the other woman prime minister, Indira Gandhi, in averting still another war.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Soviet Union Appears Principal Winner In India-Pakistan War

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—The real victor in the Indo-Pakistan conflict is the Soviet Union in the opinion of diplomatic sources here.

Russia stands deeply entrenched in the Indian subcontinent with newly won political influence, a claim on India and the possibility of an even firmer hold on the newly emerging Bangla Desh, already proclaimed a "Peoples Republic" and awaiting imminent Soviet recognition.

The soviets also have the prospect of firmer bases or "facilties" (as Moscow prefers to call them) in the Indian Ocean area.

WHAT IS EVEN MORE telling, diplomatic sources here believe, is the triumph of Russian influence over Chinese in the sensitive sphere of the Far East where Peking has been seeking a dominant place.

In a first assessment of the consequences of the Indian war against Pakistan and the latter's partial dismemberment, diplomatic sources here pointed out that the full impact will become known only after some time has elapsed.

The Kremlin has not moved into the area overnight, but to all appearances has laid the foundations for its political victory.

Five years ago Moscow acted as the peacemaker in the Indo-Pakistan conflict and emerged with enhanced prestige.

Moscow has deepened its influence by backing India politically and above all by mounting arms supplies recently complemented with Soviet advisers. A 20-year friendship treaty last August sealed the alignment with Delhi and committed Russia on the side of India.

PAKISTAN RELIED on Chinese support.

The Indian victory with Russian support is a political and a moral defeat for Peking, for the present at any rate, because China failed to come to the rescue of its Pakistan ally. Peking offered moral and political support.

However, diplomatic sources believe that it is not all gain for the Soviet Union. Union.

Soviet credibility as a peace loving power which rejects war as a means of solving international conflicts may well suffer in the eyes of the Third World.

Political Pot In Petaluma Is One That Brews The Coffee

Politicians are usually thought of as gathering in darkly lit and intriguing places to brew devious schemes, but in Petaluma it's the coffee shops that take the honor.

It's impossible to gauge how many civic decisions, appointments and political plans have been hatched over coffee and eggs. The politicos and businessmen can often be seen huddling in the mornings and late afternoons to compare notes.

Many a candidate has made the decision to seek elective office based on reactions at the coffee pot sessions, and others attend hoping to start political careers by gaining favor for commission appointments.

COUNTY SUPERVISOR Philip L. Joerger is one of the coffee shop regulars and uses the early morning hours to meet with his confidantes to sound out ideas. This is probably a holdover from his days on the Petaluma City Council and from planning sessions during his successful campaign.

Perhaps because of a lack of available coffee shops for hobnobbing, the Rohnert Park City Council conducts its business differently. When faced with the task of reconstituting its planning commission and coming up with five appointees at one time, the council threw the jobs open to everyone and invited applications from the general community.

Most were pleased to get the 17 applicants from whom to choose. The names were announced to permit public reaction and a portion of the interviews were opened to the public before the council made its selection. It's certain that not everyone was thrilled about all the appointments, but at least residents had a chance to voice opposition or support and to witness some of the interviews to gauge qualifications on their own.

PETALUMANS RARELY get that chance. When an appointment it to be made to the council or a commission, random applications are always invited, but the public is never told who has applied or is getting serious consideration. Interviews, if held at all, always exclude the public.

It seems if Petalumans want a bigger say in city affairs and appointments, they'll have to join the coffee brigade.

ART BUCHWALD

Blame That Dollar Devaluation On Kilmer And The Redskins

WASHINGTON — The devaluation of the American dollar as agreed to by President Nixon in his meeting with French President Georges Pompidou in the Azores came as a surprise to many people. The Nixon strategy up until the meeting was to make the Europeans devalue the dollar rather than the United States.

People in Washington are still wondering what happened. The clue to it was a short news item from the Azores which reported that President Nixon had stayed up to 4:30 a.m. in the Azores on Tuesday morning listening to the Washington Redskins-Los Angeles Rams game on the radio.

This clue, plus a version of what happened given to me in absolute confidence by a French newspaperman, is what took place.

ON TUESDAY MORNING at 8 o'clock, President Pompidou was eating his breakfast of croissants with cafe au lait when his chief intelligence officer burst into the room and said, "Monsieur le President, I can report to you that the President of the United States had no sleep last night."

"Alors!" President Pompidou said. "How do you know this?"

"He listened to the Washington Redskins-Los Angeles Rams game until 4:30 in the morning."

"What is this Washington Redskins, Los Angeles Rams game?"

"It is a football game, Monsieur le President, between the teams of two cities. The President never misses a football game. He is a devoted Redskin supporter."

"He likes Indians?"

"NO, THE TEAM is not made up of Indians. They call themselves Redskins just so people won't confuse them with the Rams or the Colts or the Lions or the Falcons."

"I do not understand how this information can be of use to me," President Pompidou said.

"Monsieur le President, all during the game President Nixon kept waking up his staff to tell them what the score was. Secretary Rogers and Secretary Connally received no sleep either. They are all groggy."

"Zut! This is formidable. Tell me something about these Washington Indians."

"Redskins, not Indians, Monsieur le President!"

AN HOUR LATER the French president and the American President met with each other, along with their staffs.

The Americans were yawning and rubbing their eyes.

President Pompidou said, "President Nixon, my congratulations on the football game last night."

"Do you follow American football?" President Nixon asked in surprise.

"My wife and I are both avid George Allen fans."

"Well, Mr. President, it was really a fantastic game."

"Then," said President Pompidou, "that means we will be in the National League playoffs."

"We?" Mr. Nixon said.

"OF COURSE WE. The French support the team the President of the United States supports."

"De Gaulle was never like that," Mr. Nixon said. "Mr. President, Billy Kilmer had his greatest day, and I can't say enough about Jefferson and Speedy Duncan."

"Did you contain Roman Gabriel?" Monsieur Pompidou asked.

"The entire game."

"Bon! Now about the dollar. I imagine it makes no difference if you devalue it now."

"I hadn't really been giving it much thought."

"Please just sign here, and then we can talk more about the football game."

President Nixon looked around to see if he could get some advice from Secretary Rogers or Connally. They were both fast asleep with their heads on the conference table. Rather than disturb them he signed the agreement.

And that's how Washington won a chance at the Super Bowl, and the United States lost 10 per cent of the American dollar.

Eaton, Russian Aide Confer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Soviet Union's minister of agriculture, Vladimir Matskevich, spent part of the weekend visiting with multimillionaire industrialist Cyrus Eaton and other business leaders.

Eaton held a luncheon for Matskevich Saturday and then the Soviet official spent the night at Eaton's nearby retreat.

Matskevich has been touring the U.S. since Dec. 9 under the sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He talked with Eaton about Russia's announced intentions to purchase U.S.-made agricultural and industrial equipment.

Campus Police Chief Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The chief of the campus police force at San Francisco State College was found shot to death Sunday night in what a campus spokesman called an apparent suicide.

The spokesman said Wayne M. Berry, 58, was found dead in his home near the campus. No notes were found.

Berry, a retired Navy chief petty officer, had been with the 21-man force for about 12 years.

Deck, Stereo Tapes Stolen From Van

A tape deck and stereo tapes, valued at a total of $230, were stolen from a van parked at the Bermuda Palms Motel, 737 Francisco Boulevard between 9 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 a.m. Sunday, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Police said the theft was reported by Sandra Lee Nelson of 1428 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, who said she had borrowed the van from David A. Alden of 376 Sunset Avenue, Mill Valley, and the stolen tapes and deck belonged to Alden.

Motel Reports Room Damage

Two men staying at the Casa Buena Motel in Corte Madera left their room so damaged that police were called Sunday.

Corte Madera police, arriving at 12:24 p.m., found a table lamp torn off, broken light bulbs ground into the carpet, a heater fixture ripped from the wall, cigarette burns in the furnishings and beer cans and bottles strewn about a room at the motel, 1595 Casa Buena Drive.
